By ARTHUR BRISBANE

GEN. HAYASHI, new Japanese war minister, says that if war comes, it will be Russia's fault. Japan longs only for peace. You remember hearing something like that in 1914.

At the same time, Stalin, who doesn't seem to know that it is polite to say: "I love everybody," was telling the Communist Party in Moscow:

"We warn everybody not to poke their snouts into the Soviet potato patch." (He should have said "his snout.")

The Russian gathering roared approval, expressing fullest confidence and delight in anything Stalin might wish to do.

STALIN ADDED that Japan is not the only country with an ambition to "wage war against the Soviet Union and share its territory." Some European nations have that idea, according to Stalin. He is supposed to mean Germany.

Gen. Hayashi says it is silly to talk about war between the United States and Japan, and he is right. Russia, in her present state of revolutionary enthusiasm, would keep any country busy.

"YOU LEAVE my husband alone!" appeals to many jurymen. Miss Inez Lindsay, young, was in a car with Mrs. Ella Mae Mumford's husband.

Mrs. Mumford shot Inez, killed her, admitted it, but told the jury she really could not remember anything about it. The jury said she was insane, and told her to go home.

Primitive justice, indicating that the "sacred marriage tie" is taken more seriously in some places than in others.

THE PRESIDENT fixes dollar value at fifty-nine and six-one-hundredths cents. That is the official value of each dollar you earn and spend. Just what "value" means remains to be demonstrated.

One New York banker figures out that with gold up and the dollar down, the "bank credit of the United States could be expanded to about three hundred thousand million dollars."

That seems a good deal of money, if it be real money. Or is there any real money?

The fact is that we have something more than seven thousand million dollars in gold after raising the "value" of gold from about twenty to thirty-five dollars.

How that much gold can be spread out to cover 300 billion dollars would puzzle a goldbeater.

With your ear against the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington recently, you might have heard banging and whirring of machinery.

Beautiful new money was coming from printing presses, all bills of ten thousand dollars each. The government will use them to pay Federal Reserve banks for three thousand six hundred million dollars' worth of gold, that the banks must turn over, "even as you and I," to old Uncle Sam.

The government must print 360,000 ten thousand dollar notes to get that gold, but it is a bargain. Where those notes came from, there are more.

NOW THAT we have started printing money, there is no knowing how busy those presses will be or how long they will run, if paper holds out. It is announced that President Roosevelt will buy "any and all gold," no matter whence it comes, and pay $35 an ounce for it.

You would be willing to pay $35 yourself, or even $36, if you could print the money to buy it.

MISS EVELYN CLARK, 22, hitch-hiker from Los Angeles, was taken into his car by Mr. W. H. Bybee, newly escaped from the penitentiary.

Miss Clark thought there must be something wrong about the sawed-off automatic shotgun, rifle, automatic pistol and much ammunition that she noticed in the car. When Bybee stopped for gas, Miss Clark drove off with his car, told the police. They got Bybee, who says:

"I'll shoot the next hitch-hiker I see."

LORD ROTHERMERE demands Fascism for England on the front page of his Daily Mail, and urges readers to join Mosley's Fascist "Black Shirts."

Lord Rothermere thinks Fascism will "break the strangle-hold which senile politicians have so long maintained on public affairs."

THE "YOUTH movement" in India, tired of Gandhi's slow methods, borrows the Rothermere idea and demands Fascism for India.

A young high-caste leader, speaking English as well as his own language, says Fascism will and must "free India from the strangle-hold which the British empire has on it."

VERNE SANKEY, called by police "one of the nation's most notorious kidnapers," which means that he is high up in a profitable industry, made some mistake, and the police have him, thanks to co-operation of federal detective force. Sankey confesses to two kidnapings, denies others, will probably be executed for killing a policeman.

The equipment found in his apartment included two heavy revolvers, a sawed-off shotgun, much ammunition, $3,200 in one hundred dollar bills and $230 in smaller bills. He carried poison pills to kill himself in case of emergency.

Napoleon and other great ones are said to have carried poison always, but they never seemed to swallow it.

"No greater service could be done the American people than the work now being carried along by the Hearst newspapers in the publishing of the horrible pictures of the recent war. Every civilized human being is opposed to war. It is simply a question how best to prolong the period of peace. I am convinced by far the best method is to build a big navy and a huge air fleet. If necessary, twice as big as any other nation. Then we can dictate disarmament.—Not before."

SAVINGS TAX BAN UPHELD BY COURT

County Will Appeal Judge Trimble's Decision

Savings accounts in banks are not subject to the county's four-mill personal property tax, Judge Thomas P. Trimble ruled in Orphans Court today.

The court held the Einstein-Coyne bill passed by the last Legislature, exempting interest-bearing accounts, is constitutional and in accordance with public policy in protecting the thrifty and upholding a sound banking system.

APPEAL LIKELY

The decision, if upheld by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, to which it likely will be carried, will deprive the county of $800,000 yearly revenue, representing the tax on more than 200 million dollars.

The county had attacked constitutionality of the exemption on the ground that it was discriminatory. A test case was instituted over the estate of James Donnelly, which refused to pay $88.06 on three savings accounts.

In his opinion Judge Trimble stated:

"The state has authorized an elaborate banking system which it supervises for the benefit of all the people. As part of that system the depositor may receive interest. The deposits are necessary for the success of the banking system. Without them few banks would last a day.

'PUBLIC POLICY'

"The maintenance of a sound banking system by the state for the convenience and protection of the thrifty and for stimulation and extension of credits, made possible by encouraging depositors to open and keep non-taxable interest-bearing accounts, is a public policy of the State of Pennsylvania."

County Solicitor J. P. Fife said exceptions would be filed to Judge Trimble's ruling, and when this is done the case will be argued before a full bench in Orphans Court.

DEFAULTERS HIT AGAIN BY SENATE

Bill Banning Credits To Debt Dodgers Repassed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The Senate today repassed the Johnson bill, this time with administration support, to deny new credits in this country to all nations behind in their debts to the American government.

The retaliatory measure, putting debt-defaulters on notice anew that the United States expects payment of all war and post-war debts overdue, was approved and sent to the House without a record vote after administration leaders

City Solicitor Told Of Change of Front On Realty

Pittsburgh's public utilities today withdrew what was considered an offer to submit their exempt properties for taxation provided Council dropped the $5 tax proposed on meters by Councilman John J. Kane.

In a letter to City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully, Attorney E. P. Griffiths, of the Philadelphia Company, explained that the utilities had learned that:

"The aggregate value of the exempt property is not nearly so large as has been anticipated. It is therefore apparent that the suggestion is not a practicable one."

Griffiths warned Scully that if the meter tax is passed, the Philadelphia Company will contest its validity as "inequitable and unenforceable."

The Kane meter tax would, by estimates, bring in three million dollars. The realty tax on utility property has been estimated at $160,000.

Trexler Will Seek Judge Renomination

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Judge Frank M. Trexler, of Allentown, a member of the Superior Court since 1913, has announced his candidacy for renomination as President Judge on the Republican ticket.

Leaders of the party greeted the announcement last night with the prediction that he would be unopposed in the primary.

CLOUDS GREET GROUNDHOG

The groundhog emerged from his hole in the ground today, heard about ground rent and single tax, snorted and crawled back home.

He failed, incidentally, to cast a shadow which is supposed to signify that winter is ended and from now on all will be Miami. You don't have to believe this.

The guess was bad right from the start, anyway. A goodly sprinkling of snow fell soon after he returned to his lair.

Things certainly had changed since the groundhog was with us last. He learned, for one thing, that Pittsburgh's new Mayor is opposed to those who merely live off the land without putting in improvements. He found vague plans to increase his taxes to a five-to-one ratio. And there was puzzling talk of ground rent.

As usual he crawled out of the earth at Gobbler's Knob, Punxsutawney, where the natives were on hand to greet him. He snorted his best when somebody sang "The Last Roundup."

All of this is distasteful to Weatherman Brotzman, who points to his record to prove that the groundhog's shadow doesn't prove a thing. However, the weatherman doesn't believe in Santa Claus either.

5-Alarm Blaze Sweeps Mill in Lawrenceville

Four Firemen Escape Death as Wall Falls; M'Nair at Scene

A giant furnace of flame today reduced to a charred skeleton the Crucible Steel Company's clay pot plant in Lawrenceville.

A dozen fire companies, answering five alarms, futilely poured 15 streams of water on the three-story bulding, at Thirty-fifth street and Allegheny Valley Railroad, which was being dismantled.

Hundreds of spectators, unknowingly endangered by explosives in nearby buildings, were pushed back from the fire zone. Mayor McNair, too, was there.

FLEE FOR LIVES

Four firemen ran for their lives and barely escaped serious injury when one wall of the building collapsed. One other fireman was overcome by smoke and exhaustion.

Firemen succeeded in keeping the flames from the nearby paint plant of Schaffer Moss Chemical Corporation and the Standard Oil Company plant. From the roof of the American Steel Foundry plant they directed several streams on the flames.

The building, abandoned last November, was being dismantled and its equipment moved to another plant.

PUMPMAN INJURED

Sparks from blow torches of workmen salvaging pipe might have caused the fire. Small quantities of grease and oil were reported stored in the building, which was about one-fourth the size of a city block.

Joseph Bush, pumpman, cut on a hand and overcome by smoke, was taken to Mercy Hospital after being treated at the scene by Dr. Daniel E. Sable, city surgeon.

This was the fourth fire in Crucible properties in four years.

FACTOR JURORS IN DEADLOCK

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The jury trying Roger Touhy and two others for the kidnaping of John Factor, speculator, was still unable to agree upon a verdict today, and Judge Michael Feinberg announced he would take a poll of the jurors.

Judge Feinberg said he would not dismiss the jury, however, unless the jurors indicated they were hopelessly deadlocked.

The jury retired at 4 o'clock yesterday.

U.S. Relief Funds Aid 14 Per Cent in Penna.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Fourteen per cent of all the families in Pennsylvania received unemployment relief from public funds in November last year, Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrato, told the House Appropriations Committee today.

The average for the country was 11 per cent, Hopkins said.

Government Invasion Of Private Business

AN ACTION of high significance was taken by the House of Representatives last week.

It was only an amendment, expressed in a few words, hardly more than a single clause, to the Treasury appropriation bill.

But in the opinion of Representative Ludlow, of Indiana, who moved its adoption, it concerned nothing less than the "FUNDAMENTALS OF AMERICAN PHILOSOPHY."

The action taken by the House of Representatives grew out of a project which is associated with Mrs. Roosevelt.

It will be remembered that some weeks ago the President's wife made a brief visit to the mining districts of West Virginia, to look into the plight of the idle miners.

Following this visit and, as is generally assumed, growing out of it, a project was formed for the erection of a furniture factory at Reedsville, W. Va., to provide work for the unemployed.

The factory, designed primarily to manufacture equipment for postoffices, is now in course of construction, aided by an allocation of $525,000 from the Public Works fund.

SPEAKING with the proper respect for Mrs. Roosevelt and her sincerity, Representative Ludlow did not flinch from a frank and vigorous expression of his objections to the project. In the course of the House debate on the amendment, he said:

"While I honor and respect the proponents of this project for the high, altruistic and humanitarian purpose that motivated them, I would be less than human if I did not hear the cries of distress,

FATHER SHOOTS GIRL, ENDS LIFE

INDIANA, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Suddenly opening fire with a pistol upon members of his family, Joseph Mazza, 65, retired manufacturer, wounded his daughter and killed himself at his home in Homer City today.

Police said Mazza fired several shots at his wife, but no bullets struck her. He then shot his daughter, May, in the neck and a few minutes later fired a bullet into his head.

Police said that prior to the shooting, the daughter, May, ran to the home of a neighbor and said her father was acting in a strange manner. The friend returned to the house as Mrs. Mazza ran out on the porch. Mazza followed, firing his pistol, police said.

He then fired three times at his daughter, but missed. He followed her as she fled down the street and shot her, police said.

The officers expressed the opinion that Mazza became temporarily insane.

U. S. AND BRITAIN SEEK ACCORD ON MONETARY PROGRAM

CONFERENCES REPORTED IN PROGRESS

French Gold Embargo Looms as Threat To America

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—A series of private money talks with Great Britain were indicated authoritatively today to be either under way or about to begin, as officials here investigated actions in London and Paris to determine their own course.

In the intricate web of European governmental high finance, authorities saw possibilities that might determine the future of President Roosevelt's dollar program. Reactions abroad yesterday to the 40.96 per cent devaluation and the new high for gold were not considered highly satisfactory here.

EMBARGO THREAT

High sources conceded the Roosevelt gold policy could be hampered by a French embargo on gold which would eliminate this heavy source of the world market supply and simultaneously act against the effect of America's fixed $35 an ounce price.

Officials watched particularly for movements that might affect the gold standard position of France, such as continued heavy drains of gold from Paris to London.

Although some here predicted a heavy flow of gold into the United States because of the profit inherent in foreign gold prices considerably below this country's $35, the belief was nevertheless current in authoritative quarters that if France should go off the gold standard it would be because of British rather than American activity.

Coupled with this opinion, however, was the view that it would be to London's benefit to have France on gold, that to keep the pound at around $5 it is necessary for London to draw on Paris for gold.

Another alternative viewed possible here would be for Great Britain to wield her huge equilization fund in the dollar market.

Such action might mean a currency war between Washington and London, which Secretary Morgenthau asserts would be "costly to both" countries. Officials, nevertheless, predicted early use of this nation's $2,000,000,000 fund.

MIDDLE COURSE

The middle and best ground, as some officials here gauged it, was an understanding on currencies. Discussions with London were viewed as the start of the move.

Domestically, the administration was watching for commodity price response to the 59.06 per cent dollar and what Morgenthau called a "1934 model gold bullion standard." Treasury experts confidently expected the rise to come—provided there are no unsettling European moves—but said there was always a lag behind a rising gold price.

London Uses Dollar As Gold Price Basis

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—The new, devalued American dollar was substituted for the French franc today as the basis upon which the daily London gold price is fixed and, as a result, today's rate was shot phenomenally upward to a price approximating the $35 an ounce now established as the fixed American price under the Roosevelt gold proclamation.

Creating a sensation in British financial circles, the gold arbiters marked today's price up four shillings (about $1) to a rate of 139 shillings, six pence per ounce, equal to about $34.85 in American currency at today's opening exchange rate of $4.99½.

The London gold price had been fixed each day on the pound's relation to the franc ever since Great Britain abandoned the gold standard in 1931. Official announcement that the "new" American dollar now was being used created even greater excitement than the city had shown at announcement of the all-time record high price.

Mills in California, Mum on Politics

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury, declined to discuss politics on his arrival here last night from Kansas City.

Mills said he planned to go to his home at Millbrae, on the San Francisco peninsula, a few miles from the Stanford University residence of former President Herbert Hoover, in whose cabinet he served. He said he will pay a "friendly call" on Mr. Hoover.

DEFICIT TOTALS $1,922,598,173

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The government ended seven months of the fiscal year with a cash outlay of $3,602,449,624 and a deficit of $1,922,598,173.

This leaves $7,454,829,000 for spending between now and June 30 to fulfill President Roosevelt's budget estimates that aggregate government outlays this year will exceed $11,000,000,000.

The figures of the government's financial condition at the close of January were accompained by Treasury assurances that it still planned to meet cash needs by borrowing rather than spending any of its gold profit on routine government expenses.

TYSON TERMS CWA 'DOLE'

Referring to the CWA as a dole, Dr. Francis D. Tyson, University of Pittsburgh economist, intimated it has undermined the morale of the unemployed, basing his theory on what he said was the failure of 8,000 of the 41,000 men given employment by the CWA.

The occasion was Dr. Tyson's address before the Forum Club, Ormsby Hall, South Side, last night. Another system, he suggested, would have to be adopted by the government to provide for unemployment, saying it probably would take the form of unemployment insurance.

CWA HEAD ASKS CENSUS AID

Calling for co-operation from residents of the county in the CWA unemployment census, Eric H. Biddle state CWA administrator, said today that complete information is needed to develop an accurate picture of conditions here. Success in the venture, he said, is "vitally necessary to the welfare of our people."

The census and the real property inventory being conducted with it are expected to end February 15.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure that was centered over Georgia and South Carolina yesterday morning is now centered off the New England coast. It produced generous rains over the southeastern states and from 5 to 10 inches of snow from North Carolina to New England. The low that was centered over Alberta yesterday is now centered over Northern Illinois, and is causing light snowfall over Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. There was a decided drop in temperature during last night over the states east of the Mississippi River, while over the West temperatures are rising. Moderate weather will prevail over this section during the next several days.

River Conditions.

STEEL AND GAS PRICES PROBED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The Senate today asked the Federal Trade Commission to investigate "price-fixing" under the steel code and the reasons for the advance in gasoline prices in the last six months.

The Borah resolution, approved without debate, calls on the commission to investigate and report to the Senate the "practice of the steel industry" of increasing the prices for its products and all other practices under the code.

It asks also what affect the increase in gasoline prices has had on consumers.

Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, has repeatedly complained of alleged price-fixing under the NRA codes and has pending a bill to restore the anti-trust laws in connection with operation of the codes.

STONE HOISTED AT CATHEDRAL

Officials at the University of Pittsburgh announced today that the last of 598 carloads of stone has been hoisted to its correct level on the Cathedral of Learning and completion of the outside of the structure is expected by February 15.

More than 100 stonemasons are employed on the building and it is said only inclement weather can prevent them from finishing the job by the middle of the month.

Work on the Faculty Club, to be located on the fifteenth floor, is due to begin today, and construction on the tower roof is to start early next week.

SEAWAY TREATY VOTE SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—As President Roosevelt indicated today he was willing for the Senate to vote within a week on the St. Lawrence waterways treaty, administration leaders began negotiations with the opposition to set a date.

Senator Robinson, the majority leader, yesterday had predicted a final vote by February 9 or 10, and the consent of the President for the earlier date was taken to reflect confidence in ratification.

Senator Capper (Rep.), of Kansas, in the first speech of the day lent his support. He asserted the waterway would facilitate commerce between the Middle West and the remainder of the world.

AIR MAIL PAPERS SEIZED BY INQUIRY

Former U. S. Official Defies Senate Investigators

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—As the climax to a tensely dramatic session, in which former Assistant Secretary of Commerce William P. MacCracken defied its authority, the Black Senate committee investigating air mail contracts today ordered MacCracken's air mail correspondence seized and impounded.

The committee adopted this drastic course after MacCracken refused to turn over the papers voluntarily.

Republican as well as Democratic committee members were indignant over the revelation that MacCracken, now attorney for about a dozen big air mail companies, had permitted removal of confidential files from his office in defiance of a Senate subpena.

ASSAILS ACTION

Senator White (Rep.), of Maine, joined Senators Black (Dem.), of Alabama, King (Dem.), of Utah, and McCarran (Dem.), of Nevada, in denouncing MacCracken's action.

White assailed it as "shocking" and declared he had no sympathy for MacCracken.

During the stormy session, McCarran accused MacCracken of permitting the evidence to be "tampered with" and assailed the witness as a high-powered lobbyist masquerading as a lawyer.

Black made biting references to MacCracken's part in the so-called "spoils conference" over which MacCracken presided and at which big aviation interests agreed among themselves how nearly all the air mail routes in the country would be parcelled out.

DEFIES INQUIRY

MacCracken's refusal to turn over the data was based on a lawyer's plea of privilege.

When the former Commerce Department official received the committee's ultimatum, he asked for permission to use the telephone. He said:

"I want to consult with some of the associates."

A few minutes later he returned and reiterated his refusal. Black said:

"Very well, then that is all."

The meeting adjourned abruptly and committee agents left at once for MacCracken's office to seize the paper.

SENATE HITS DEFAULTERS

and Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, author of the proposal, agreed to modifying amendments.

BILL AMENDED

The measure first was passed unanimously January 11 with only a handful of Senators on the floor, but had been held up since by a motion to reconsider by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the majority leader. Robinson worked out the amendments with the State Department and Johnson and pronounced the bill satisfactory to the administration.

As repassed, the bill provides penalties up to $10,000 and five years' imprisonment for any person or corporation to buy or sell any new securities or loan money to any foreign government or its subdivision which is in default in whole or in part on its obligations to this government.

The amendments approved would exempt refunding issues replacing old ones and exclude countries in default only on private debts, such as certain South American republics.

STABILIZATION FUND

Another change exempted American government corporations from financial dealings with defaulters. This was incorporated so as not to conflict with the Treasury's fund for stabilizing the dollar abroad.

The bill was interpreted by its supporters as applying to about 18 nations, including those which have made only small "token" payments, like Great Britain, as well as France and others which are in complete default.

A report to the Senate this week by the Treasury showed the foreign debtors had defaulted thus far on more than $300,000,000 exclusive of payments due on post-war obligations owed the United States.

Sentiment in the House was said by Democratic leaders to be strong for the bill.

Many of the war-debt defaulters also have fallen behind in their payments on securities floated privately in the United States.

Senate Group Approves House Navy Bill

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The Vinson bill, authorizing construction of about 100 new warships to build the American Navy up to full treaty strength, was approved today by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

The committee approved two House provisions, limiting contractors to a 10 per cent profit on the total cost of construction and dividing construction work equally between public and private yards.

The latter provision, however, was amended to permit its being waived by the President in event such action would be desirable in the public interest.

The committee previously approved the Trammel bill calling for the same construction. As the Vinson bill has passed the House, it will be substituted for the Senate Bill.

Congress Must Not Become Mere Rubber Stamp for President, R. W. Child Says

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and United States Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administrations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—If there is any super-folly in this Congress, it is the idea held by some of the leaders of the majority that a government can be run on sentiment alone.

The best kind of loyalty and support of the President is the kind that is founded on the truth that good government is run on good sense.

Good sense is almost as valuable a contribution from the worst old fast-dye Republican as from the President himself.

This is a self-governing country and there is no reason why every citizen should not keep in practice and there is every reason in the world why Senators and Congressmen should use their heads.

A DELIBERATIVE assembly of supposed democracy which has developed a two-party system to discuss pros and cons becomes in sum-total a mere farce, if all debate is stilled, all opposition or even questioning bulldozed and browbeaten by so-called patriotic blah-blah.

Such an assembly as sa voting machine with only one button to press could be replaced by a mechanical device infinitely less expensive to the taxpayer than Congress.

"If the bucket of oats of patronage and the fear to speak out of turn among the majority itself," says a member of that majority, "is to result in mere 'Simon-says-thumbs-up' power of a little group of leadership claiming to be the President's voice, we could engrave our solid vote on a bronze tablet and go home leaving the opposition and all inquirers to argue with the tablet."

Of course, the fact is that the President himself does not wave himself around in red light as his supposed supporters in Congress wave him until it is nauseating and constitutes about the only blight on the landscape of an earned popularity.

IF WHAT the "silence squad" in Congress really means is that Congress has no function and every critic of the administration should be shot at sunrise then they may as well say so. They can do it in a word or two. They can say the whole thing by a simpler program than they disclose.

Scrap the Constitution.

Abolish Congress.

Substitute a disc record for the Supreme Court.

Criticism may be founded on mere obstruction and may be condemned. But criticism may also be provided on facts and reason and it is the American tradition to reverse it.

There is a wholesome, balanced wisdom contributing support to the President which he must enjoy.

There is a sickly, bootlicking, supine support which must disgust him.

The first, for either citizens or Congress, is founded on sense—and sense is rare.

The second is founded by a lot of flabby sychophants and bombastic oratorial asses on cheap sentiment, and cheap sentiment never ran a government anywhere except toward the ditch.

'Half Way' Ohio Canal Plans Protested Here

Leaders Also Oppose Use of PWA Funds For Waterway

Opposition to construction of the Beaver-Mahoning waterway connecting Youngstown, O., with the Ohio River, arose here today from a cross section of Pittsburgh industrialists and civic leaders.

Their attack was incited by announcement that the United States Army Board of Engineers has approved the project, which completely ignores Pittsburgh's request that the waterway be cut through to Lake Erie.

Canalization work to make navigation possible on a 35-mile strip from Rochester, Pa., to Struthers, just below Youngstown, appears likely through an expected PWA appropriation of between $31,000,000 and $41,000,000, according to Washington dispatches.

PWA FUND PROTESTED

Local leaders pointed to the many millions of PWA funds being spent in Ohio and the fact that practically nothing has been spent in a manner which will benefit the Pittsburgh district, despite the fact that this district will eventually pay a large part of the cost of the whole PWA program.

The consensus here is that the "half-way" plan will put Youngstown on the Ohio River without putting Pittsburgh on the Great Lakes. Decrying the proposal as "unbeneficial," Councilman William A. Magee, long active for a through-canal from the Ohio to Lake Erie, via Youngstown, said:

"The canal should go all the way to the lake. Both Pittsburgh and Youngstown want the canal, but under this latest development, it will mean nothing to Pittsburgh, and Youngstown will get only half a loaf. Youngstown will be able to get cheaper coal from the Pittsburgh district coal fields, but will not be able to get cheaper iron ore from the lake region.

"But Youngstown apparently is satisfied with half a loaf."

DUNN SCORES PLAN

Thomas A. Dunn, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, which has long favored a through canal, said:

"I'm red hot for a waterway to the lake. If we can't have that, we'll take nothing. I'm against this makeshift business. It's bad for Pittsburgh and will give Youngstown only partial help."

Steel men agreed that Youngstown could have been the center of a great steel and coal area if a through canal were completed, combining cheaper coal and iron ore.

HOURS BOOSTED ON CWA JOBS

Workmen on projects in boroughs and first-class townships of less than 2,500 population in Allegheny County now may work 24 hours a week instead of 15, Administrator James L. Stuart of the county Civil Works Administration, announced. They had been placed on a 15-hour basis by Federal Administrator Harry L. Hopkins as an economy measure.

The new move, Stuart explained, is an interpretation of an order by State Administrator Eric H. Biddle that "Allegheny County was preponderantly urban in population."

Stuart's office today was investigating charges that Charles Heiman, paymaster, forced CWA workers in Baldwin Township to walk four miles to his home to collect their pay checks. It was said that Heimen is chairman of the school board in Baldwin Township, and officials recalled that CWA regulations provide immediate discharge for any public official found on the payroll in any supervisory capacity.

HOUSE DELAYS FUND ASKED BY ROOSEVELT

Continuation of CWA Indefinitely Opposed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Discovering that a movement was uinder way to continue the CWA indefinitely, Hounse leaders today suddenly postponed until Monday consideration of the $950,000,000 federal relief and civil works appropriation requested by President Roosevelt.

The measure was reported to the House by the Appropriations Committee and Democratic leaders had announced that it would be passed by adjournment tonight.

When they learned of the effort to boost the total it was decided to consider the bill on Monday under suspension of rules when amendments will be barred.

FEDERAL RELIEF

In urging the fund the committee warned that federal relief for the needy is a temporary policy and "only the extreme emergency justifies it."

Ignoring charges of graft in the CWA but conceding that mistakes have been made, the committee praised the work of Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator.

One restriction, however, was imposed upon Hopkins. The committee wrote a provision in the bill prohibiting him from using CWA funds for federal projects on the ground that he has undertaken projects rejected by Congress.

Another provision denies the benefit of the government compensation law to Civil Works employes. Already a liability of $14,000,000 has been incurred by more than 140 deaths and 14,000 injuries.

POWERFUL WEAPON

A powerful weapon for Hopkins in dealing with recalcitrant governors was given when a provision was inserted allowing him to make relief grants directly to cities and towns. This was done, it was explained, so that relief should not be denied by a Governor's refusing to apply for it.

The $950,000,000 the committee said, will carry the CWA until May and general relief activities for one year.

The committee said that with additional funds Hopkins would increase hours of CWA workers, which were recently cut to 24 in cities and 15 a week in rural communities.

The half million dollar relief fund, the committee said, assumes that an average of 3,000,000 families will be continued on relief rolls.

The committee was informed by Hopkins that a survey indicates 3,000,000 unemployed in the country for an indefinite time, regardless of the pickup in business.

The CWA has cost $675,000,000 with $400,000,000 being provided by the Public Works Administration, $100,000,000 by the relief administration and $175,000,000 by local communities.

The federal government now is paying 62 per cent of public relief cost and has been spending at the rate of $70,000,000 a week.

U. S. MILLIONS COMING HOME

By WILLIAM PARKER

International News Service.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Five hundred million dollars worth of American "panic money" is going back home.

Shipped to France for speculation or "safe-keeping" during the hectic days which followed America's abandonment of the gold standard, the $500,000,000 is being repatriated as speedily as possible.

Much of it, according to indications here, is destined for use by Wall street speculators now anxious to get in on the ground floor of the stock market boom which followed in the wake of President Roosevelt's devaluation of the dollar to 59.06 cents.

Something in the neighborhood of $1,000,000,000, according to estimates here, fled to Europe when America abandoned gold. Since that time it has reposed in European vaults or been used for dealings on European exchanges.

Snell Declares Hoover 'Better Than Roosevelt'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Democratic chieftains today mulled over a new Republican move in the national political forum—a speech by Representative, Snell, of New York, asserting a continuance of Herbert Hoover's regime would have been more beneficial than has the Roosevelt administration.

Some observers declared they heard a buzzing of the presidential bee when two leading Republicans within four days delivered essentially political speeches.

Ogden Mills, Hoover administration Treasury Secretary and a chief political lieutenant in the 32 campaign, told a Topeka (Kan.) crowd early in the week of his disagreement with many of President Roosevelt's moves.

Snell, taking the floor yesterday as minority leader of the House, said he was "absolutely sure" Mr. Hoover would have done a better job than has Mr. Roosevelt. He asserted the former President "never received a particle of co-operation from the Democrats except for the RFC." Snell declared:

"They intended from the beginning not to support Mr. Hoover's legislation, for fear he would benefit from it, and they didn't want him elected. Now the best part of your program is taken from the program of Herbert Hoover two years ago."

Alice 'Gold Standard' At Roosevelt Fete

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Gaiety and glamour mingled as high officials and low complimented the Roosevelts' reception for government department heads as "a real party."

Divested of the austerity and some of the dignity of functions in years past, last night's event was a glittering display of modishly gowned women and correctly groomed men, who flicked wet snowflakes from evening apparel as they arrived.

Perhaps as a humorous reminder of the monetary policies of the President, his distant Republican cousin, Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, was charmingly gowned in blue velvet with "gold standard" accountrements: yellow gold ear-rings, a red gold necklace with a green gold pendant, a white gold watch-bracelet and golden amber combs bedecking her coiffure.

Acquainted now with an ample portion of his administration captains and lieutenants, the President had a cheery personal word for many of them as they passed through the receiving line and on to the ballroom for dancing or the small private dining room for a sociable cigaret.

At least two generals were among them—Hugh S. Johnson, of NRA, and Frank T. Hines, of the Veterans' Administration—and, of course, the cabinet members.

PARENTS HURT HELPING IN ESCAPE

Two Canaries, Pet Dog Perish in Blaze in Beechview

A man and his wife were burned slightly, and their eldest daughter—a South High School pupil—made a heroic move to rescue her 8-year-old twin sisters when fire broke out in their home, 1414 Westfield street, early today.

The blaze broke out while the three children—Vivian, 16, and Jane and Betty, the twins—were asleep on the second floor, and it was discovered when their parents, A. D. Mattern and his wife, Vashta, returned from a neighbor's home where they were visiting.

SISTER ROUSES TWINS

Mattern raced to the rear of the first floor to telephone the fire department, and Vivian, hearing her father call, ran from her room into a rear bedroom for her sisters. She roused the sleeping twins and rushed them into a front bedroom where her mother found her preparing to put them out the window to the roof.

Mrs Mattern gathered her children around her and herded them down the smoke-filled stairway. The mother's hair was singed by the flames when she ran through the kitchen to the stairway.

After learning that his children were safe, Mattern ran back into the house for his canaries, "Mickey" and "Boots," only to find them suffocated. The children's pet, "Duke," a fox terrier, apparently met a similar end. They couldn't find him after the fire.

FATHER BURNED

Mattern was burned on the face when he attempted to combat the blaze in the kitchen. According to firemen, the fire began near the furnace in the cellar, and worked up into the rear of the first floor. Smoke was drifting to the second floor when the Matterns returned home.

Fifth Battalion Chief Saul Klein estimated the loss at $600. Mattern, a freight conductor, explained that he and Mrs. Mattern had gone to a neighbor's home when he came from work at midnight, returning to his own residence about 3 o'clock.

SLOT MACHINE OWNER SOUGHT

The owner of 34 alleged gambling machines, seized last night in a raid on a garage in the rear of 6350 Aurelia street, believed to be the East End storage place for another big slot machine ring, was sought by police today.

Capt. Walter Kaiser and Lieut. John Jones raided the garage shortly after receiving a tip that the machines were stored there. In the place they also reported finding papers from which they obtained the name of the alleged distributor.

The tip came from Harrutune Nercessian, of the Aurelia street address, who told police he rented the garage to a stranger Wednesday morning, they said. The tenant, who did not give his name, promised to pay the rent later in the day. When he failed to return yesterday, Nercessian became suspicious and called police.

The raid was the third big blow to the slot machine syndicates in the city within a week. More than 200 machines were seized by police in raids in Carrick and Forbes street.

450 Slot Machines Seized inPhiladelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Police have 450 slot machines stacked in a station house, their prizes in what was described as a race last night between the police department, the owners and hijackers for the devices.

Supt. Joseph A. LeStrange sent out an order for seizure of every machine in sight. Raiding squads left every station house in the city and within an hour were back with their haul.

A spokesman for the Denny estate said only the ground was owned by it.

South Dakota Guards Outlaw; May Set Bail at $500,000

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Feb. 2.—Verne Sankey, kidnaper and South Dakota badman, arrived here today in company with a number of federal agents.

Sankey was taken immediately to the city jail for safekeeping.

Melvin Purvis, chief of the United States Bureau of Investigation in Chicago, accompanied the party here.

Authorities refused to divulge whether the confessed kidnaper will be taken to Pierre, S. D., immediately or moved to the state penitentiary here, where it is believed he would have less chance of escaping.

There was a possibility, authorities said, that the outlaw's bond would be raised from $100,000 to $500,000 to insure his safekeeping in the hands of the federal agents.

It has already been established that Sankey will be tried for the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher in Pierre. It was reported that a special grand jury and a special term of Federal Court will be called to try the abductor.

VIENNA RECALLS ENVOY TO NAZIS

International News Service.

VIENNA, Feb. 2.—Dr. Stefan Tauschitz, Austrian minister to Nazi Germany, was recalled from Berlin today in connection with the Austro-German dispute over alleged Nazi interference in Austrian affairs.

It was officially stated that Dr. Tauschitz' recall was not to be interpreted as severance of diplomatic relations between Germany and Austria, but that the minister had been summoned to Vienna merely to give the government a detailed report of the situation.

The Austrian legation in Berlin was left in the hands of the charge d'affaires. It was not known how long the Austrian government intends to keep Dr. Tauschitz away from his post, but his recall gave clear indications of the gravity with which Chancellor Dollfuss views the situation.

Priest Bares Gambling, McNair Refuses to Act

A gambler's quest for gambling quarters among the parishioners of the Rev. Thomas F. Coakley, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, moved the priest to make a complaint to Mayor McNair's office today.

The Mayor was unsympathetic. He is opposed, he said, to interfering with anyone in need who can obtain money, even from a gambler.

Informed of the Mayor's statement, Father Coakley refused to comment, saying he did not wish to engage in a controversy. He planned to communicate with Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary, to whom he addressed his complaint.

Father Coakley said some of his flock were desperately poor, which made them easy marks for the offer. A big East End gambler offered to pay rent and a portion of his profits to any who would rent a room in a home to him, the priest said.

Father Coakley wrote

"This sort of thing should be stamped out."

Mayor McNair replied:

"That's better than starving. My wife rented the ground floor of a house once for a card party and gave prizes. It's the same thing."

William the Conqueror Blamed for Spelling

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—You can trace "our silly spelling" to a bunch of foreigners who didn't know the English language and, perhaps, agree with Dr. Dewitt C. Croissant, head of the English department of George Washington University and an advocate of simplified spelling.

Dr. Croissant in an address here blamed William the Conqueror who brought a crowd of Frenchmen into England, and another William Caxton, the first English printer, who imported Dutch printers and "made confusion worst confounded." The Dutchmen put the H in "ghost" and O-U-G-H in "through."

Then Dr. Johnson with the first English dictionary "embalmed this hodge-podge," Dr. Croissant said.

He saw no reason why "beauty" is more beautiful than "duty," and in general he felt that as a result of complexity and confusion English spelling is approaching the Chinese ideographic system—in many schools, he said, pupils don't study the alphabet and learn words as pictures.

His definition of present day spelling? It is "unhistorical, unscientific, unscholarly, unnatural, unreasonable and uneconomical." Dr. Croissant doesn't like it.

Mother Hypnotized for Clue in Baby's Fate cot-nd

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Hypnotism has been used to solve the mystery of an abandoned baby's death.

The hypnotist was Dr. Nathaniel Selby, of the Manhattan Neurological Hospital, who yesterday persuaded the subconscious self of Mrs. Elsie Smith, 24, to reveal the story of what happened to her 8-month-old baby, James Loew, Jr.

The baby, found dead in a swamp last November at Annandale, N. Y., was declared to be the son of a soldier, now in jail in Raleigh, N. C. Mrs. Smith admitted the baby was hers, but when a jury indicted her for murder, she insisted she could not remember what had happened to him November 7.

Her attorney, Harry Klauber, obtained permission from the Lunacy Commission to summon Dr. Selby, thus establishing a legal precedent.

The experiments took place at midnight in the woman's cell. Dr. Selby made a series of "passes," ordered her to keep her eye on a certain spot on the wall, reiterated certain words for half an hour, and finally caused her to "sleep."

Mrs. Smith, in her sleep, declared she had abandoned her baby on a street corner, hoping some one would adopt him, and never saw him again.

BOARD SPEEDS UNION VOTE AT WEIRTON

Preparations to poll the workers of the Weirton Steel Company at once in conformity with President Roosevelt's order to determine the true sentiment of the Weirton employes on the company union issue were made today by the National Labor Board.

Fred Keightly, an investigator for the board, was here, but denied he had been assigned to the Weirton case. He said, however, than another investigator probably would be here tomorrow or Monday.

ROOSEVELT ORDER

President Roosevelt issued his order late yesterday. It provided for a canvas of workers in all industries where there is a dispute over union representation.

A house-to-house canvass will be made at Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, O., where the Weirton company has plants. A simple question will be asked: Do the employes favor a new election of employe representatives in collective bargaining, or are they satised with the company union representatives elected in December by ballot?

Followers of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers greeted with satisfaction President Roosevelt's decision to learn independently of the steel company the workers' attitude on the company union issue.

UP TO WORKERS

The union leaders said they would abide by the decision of the men, determined outside the mill gates, on whether there shall be a new election.

President Roosevelt gave the National Labor Board blanket power in conducting the poll and, if the workers wish it, a new election.

It seemed probable that the case ultimately would reach the courts if a new election is attempted. The steel company has maintained the Labor Board has no authority to upset the rules of electing by secret ballot as set up by the company union. The company asserts the company union is truly representative of the workers and to hold an election under any other rules would be a violation of the National Recovery Act.

This position stayed the hand of the Labor Board until President Roosevelt provided the means of settling the issue as to the true wishes of the men by ruling that the house-to-house canvass should be made.

UNION CHEERED

The Amalgamated Association officials said President Roosevelt's action had given their followers new hope. They asserted a strike could not have been averted if the government had not taken action.

Claiming 85 per cent of the Weirton employes are members of the Amalgamated, the officials said they had no doubt regarding the outcome of the poll.

Company officials meanwhile were silent.

The Amalgamated Association held a mass meeting Wednesday night upon the return of four of the union officers from a conference with the President. Another meeting was held last night, and others are scheduled for tonight, tomorrow afternoon and Sunday.

The union asserted messages have been recieved from all parts of the country pledging support of other labor organizations in the Amalgamated's stand for a new election.

A representation of 75,000 persons throughout the North Ohio River district was claimed by the union through affiliated groups. They said a meeting of the district conference would be held February 11 at Wheeling.

Government Invasion Of Private Business

coming from my own district, from those who will surely suffer if this West Virginia project is carried out."

Putting his finger unerringly upon the true ground of exception to it, he continued:

"THE PROPOSAL TO PUT THE GOVERNMENT IN COMPETITION WITH PRIVATE BUSINESS VIOLATES THE FUNDAMENTALS OF AMERICAN PHILOSOPHY AND SETS A PRECEDENT THAT WILL HOUND AND PLAGUE THIS COUNTRY FOR YEARS TO COME."

Seconded by another Democrat, Representative Arnold, of Illinois, the amendment was adopted and a clause inserted in the Treasury appropriation bill prohibiting the expenditure of postoffice money for equipment manufactured by the Reedsville plant.

The prohibition also applies to any other so-called "federal factory."

HERE is a salutary and timely warning to all the New Dealers and the ardent yearners for a new order—to all those, in fact, who find in American history and in the deep-rooted traits of the American people something repugnant to their thinking. We suppose it should be called the "New Thinking."

This proposed furniture plant in West Virginia, financed with great prodigality from the public revenues, will come into direct and most unfair competition, with some eighty private enterprises supplying similar government orders, all of which have been started through individual initiative, and developed and maintained by those resources of private capital which are America's reward to her people for their diligence and thrift.

THE AMERICAN people are not so crushed with the problems of a passing depression that they wish to abandon the principles which have brought them growth and power. They feel that they can cope with their problems, and also with false guides and fallacious teaching.

They do not propose that a government which they sustain with hard-paid taxes shall invade the various fields of their individual activity. They do not propose to erect their own government into an oppressive competitor which shall destroy them and their livelihoods.

Self-reliant as Americans have always been, the people of today are no more ready than their fathers to flock to PATERNALISTIC SOCIALISM. They refuse to permit the bases of their lives and the foundations of their institutions to be undermined by an overworked plea of "emergency."

WE ARE reading carefully the expressions of our courts as they pass upon the new governmental formulas, so lightly fashioned and impetuously dashed off, and we do not fail to note that it is expressly stated by our judges that the theory of an emergency must not be utilized as a furtive means to revolutionary changes in American institutions, secretly concocted and stealthily put over.

These were the thoughts, no doubt, in the mind of Representative Ludlow when he said of the GOVERNMENT-BUILT, GOVERNMENT PAID-FOR, GOVERNMENT-OWNED and GOVERNMENT-OPERATED furniture factory at Reedsville, that it "VIOLATES THE FUNDAMENTALS OF AMERICAN PHILOSOPHY AND SETS A PRECEDENT THAT WILL HOUND AND PLAGUE THIS COUNTRY FOR YEARS TO COME."

And it was doubtless because it fully shared these views, that the House of Representatives quickly adopted the Ludlow amendment—DOING GREAT CREDIT TO ITS INDIVIDUAL MEMBERSHIP AND TO ITSELF AS A TRUTHFUL ORGAN OF AMERICAN PUBLIC OPINION.

HOTEL STRIKERS APPEAL TO NRA

The half dozen striking waitresses of the Penn-McKee Hotel, in McKeesport, were to take their troubles to the Pittsburgh office of the NRA today, while another striking group—the William Penn Hotel's kitchen help—talked their differences over with the manager, F. L. Andrews.

Working hours and wages are the complaints of the McKeesport group, and the William Penn Hotel help will ask union recognition and a $20 weekly minimum wage.

The McKeesport girls walked out Saturday when they were ordered, they said, to serve beer and liquors from the grill. They returned Tuesday, and walked out again the following day. The walkout in the William Penn occurred yesterday morning, but ended within an hour pending a parley today.

F. L. Andrews, manager of the William Penn Hotel, met with cepresentatives of 300 of his dissatisfied employes, who were on strike yesterday for 45 minutes. The employes are scheduled to meet tonight to discuss the negotiations. They are complaining against what they contend is a wage cut.

Biddle to Stand On Record of CWA

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Eric H. Biddle, Pennsylvania's CWA administrator, says he will be content to let his work "speak for itself after the job is done."

Speaking at a dinner given in his honor by 400 Mercer County residents, Biddle last night asserted it his policy to offer no defense against criticism directed at the CWA organization because he believes everybody is making a good showing.

DYER STRIKER GETS RETRIAL

Admitting an error in his charge to the jury, Judge James H. Gray has granted a retrial to Morris Balter, North Side, convicted of contempt of court.

Balter, a member of the Cleaners and Dyers Local Union No. 18,300, was accused of assaulting a driver for D. H. Seruset and Company during strike difficulties. A contempt charge was made against him last October.

Judge Gray denied a request by defense counsel that the jury be charged that Balter could be convicted only if proved guilty beyond reasonable doubt. Granting the retrial motion, the court now admits that "there being a criminal contempt charge, the jury should have been instructed that the burden of proof was upon the complainant to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt."

Millard C. Dorntge, president of the International Garage Association and one of the compilers of the garage code, will define the industry's code for garage men of the district at a meeting in Webster Hall Monday night.

Mr Nuskay

The meeting, arranged by the Greater Pittsburg Garage Association, will be open to garage proprietors. A committee including John D. Garage men failing to sign the declaration will be excluded from voting on the selection of an administrator for the code.

Zipper Industry Placed Under Code

The zipper industry, code negotiations disclosed, is one of the few which prospered during the depression.

Blue Eagle Soon To Have Rival In 'Code Bird'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The Blue Eagle, most publicized bird in America, is soon to have an offspring that may become more widely known than the original.

With a majority of industries already under codes or about to enter that state, the NRA is drawing the designs for a new bird to be displayed by all manufacturing code signers.

The new eagle will be more original than the old in that each manufacturer will be given a registration number for his bird. Each such insignia reproduced on labels or displayed elsewhere thus will identify the displayee by number.

Such a method is to be followed as one means of insuring code compliance. The bird and registration number will be withdrawn if violations are proved.

Labor Expert Named U. S. Steel Executive

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The appointment of Arthur H Young as vice president of the United States Steel Corporation in charge of industrial relations was viewed in steel circles today as indicating the new importance of industrial and employe relations in the industry under the NRA regulations.

Since 1924 Young had been director of Industrial Relations Inc., of New York, a non-profit organization which advises corporations in industrial relations.

Newspaper Code Authority Vacated

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The post of NRA administrator for the newspaper code was left vacant today by the resignation of Ralph Pulitzer, formerly publisher of the New York World.

Pulitzer sent his resignation yesterday to Hugh S. Johnson NRA administrator, giving as a reason "opposition to my appointment by the American Newspaper Guild."

NEW YORK CAB DRIVERS STRIKE

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Several thousand taxicab drivers went on strike today as a result of dissatisfaction over disposition of the five-cents-a-ride tax collected under a city law that subsequently was declared illegal.

The tax money, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, is being held in escrow.

The tax was adopted by the Tammany administration under John P. O'Brien late last year in one of several moves to balance the budget. As a result, the starting charge on taxicab meters was jumped to 20 cents from 15 cents. Later the Supreme Court ruled that the tax was illegal but meanwile collections of the tax money had grown to several hundred thousand dollars.

After he became Mayor the first of the year, F. H. LaGuardia proposed that the tax money be turned by the taxicab companies over to the drivers, and promised if that was done the city would abandon its intention to appeal the Supreme Court ruling. No decision has been reached on this proposal.

J. D.'s $6,000,000 Gift Goes Begging

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(Universal.)—A $6,000,000 gift from John D. Rockefeller is going begging. A tract of land worth that much offered by Mr. Rockefeller to the commissioners of Palisades Interstate Park was still unaccepted today, six months after the proffer, because of the inability of the commissioners to raise an additional $6,500,000 to complete the project.

BOARD SPEEDS UNION VOTE AT WEIRTON

Preparations to poll the workers of the Weirton Steel Company at once in conformity with President Roosevelt's order to determine the true sentiment of the Weirton employes on the company union issue were made today by the National Labor Board.

Fred Keightly, an investigator for the board, was here, but denied he had been assigned to the Weirton case. He said, however, than another investigator probably would be here tomorrow or Monday.

ROOSEVELT ORDER

President Roosevelt issued his order late yesterday. It provided for a canvas of workers in all industries where there is a dispute over union representation.

A house-to-house canvass will be made at Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, O., where the Weirton company has plants. A simple question will be asked: Do the employes favor a new election of employe representatives in collective bargaining, or are they satised with the company union representatives elected in December by ballot?

Followers of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers greeted with satisfaction President Roosevelt's decision to learn independently of the steel company the workers' attitude on the company union issue.

UP TO WORKERS

The union leaders said they would abide by the decision of the men, determined outside the mill gates, on whether there shall be a new election.

President Roosevelt gave the National Labor Board blanket power in conducting the poll and, if the workers wish it, a new election.

It seemed probable that the case ultimately would reach the courts if a new election is attempted. The steel company has maintained the Labor Board has no authority to upset the rules of electing by secret ballot as set up by the company union. GIMBELS TELLS THE truth

It has long been a tendency in retailing to ignore the whole truth. Preference has been given half-truths and commercial truths. "Tell the public what they want to know," has been the idea. "What John Public doesn't know won't hurt him." Gimbels does not believe that. What you don't know can hurt you. We're convinced of that.

If you buy a sweater that's not all wool, we think you have every right to know that there's cotton content in the garment. It won't wear as long.

A few days ago a sweater came up to our advertising department tagged "All Wool." It neither looked, felt, nor smelled like pure wool. That sweater was immediately sent to the Industrial By-Products and Research Corporation in Philadelphia. Their reply will be a complete analysis of the garment. Gimbels will know the truth. If we sell or advertise that sweater, you'll know it, too, for

MEN'S SUITS, OVERCOATS 22.50

We bought these suits last fall for mid-winter delivery. We didn't need them at the time, but we were sure good worsted suitings were due for a rise. It seemed a good investment. Now we know it was. Fabrics did rise. So did tailoring costs. For that reason these suits are exceptional bargains. They are desirable as well, because the worsteds are from the better mills and the tailoring is excellent. Single and double-breasted models. New patterns and colors.

These overcoats were bought in mid-December from a maker so anxious to sell he cut his prices deeply. They're correspondingly low priced to you. Raglan, balmo, ulster, box coats, and belted models. All sizes.

WELFARE BOARD FOR COUNTY URGED

County organizations allied with the Public Charities Association are now working on plans for county welfare boards throughout the state, it was announced today by H. A. Waldkoenig, western representative of the association.

A tentative bill has already been drafted which, briefly, proposes to place all public welfare service in the county, including poor relief, mothers' assistance, old age assistance, blind pensions, care of dependent children and management of institutions, under the control of a non-paid executive director and staff selected on the basis of qualification.

Waldkoenig explains that before final details are worked out the association must place the matter before all the county organizations for approval and suggestions.

The county organizations will form committees to study the plan, according to Waldkoenig. After the various county organizations have decided on a plan for consolidation of welfare services, representatives of the state groups will meet in a state convention for the purpose of adopting a final plan.

Waldkoenig, however, says that he does not expect the state convention to be held until fall.

He looks upon the proposed county welfare boards as one of the most significant developments in public welfare in Pennsylvania.

Washington 'Plays' Numbers Too—On Auto Tags

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Washington is playing that numbers game again—but it isn't a "policy" game; it's automobile tags.

Heads turn sharply when a District of Columbia number between 100 and 110 goes by. If it isn't the President it's likely one of the Roosevelts or at least their automobile.

Vice President Garner has an official car with license No. 111.

Gen. John J. Pershing kept 175, the number he has had for years.

"Secretary A. W. Mellon," as the application read, got the number he asked for, 442.

SENATE FAVORS FLOOD CONTROL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Seventeen years of work and the results of almost 300 surveys will be blended into a national flood control program for President Roosevelt to send to Congress.

The request for the program, sketched in rough form at a White House conference, was made formally by the Senate yesterday when it adopted a resolution by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska.

The resolution, by its phrasing, gives Mr. Roosevelt opportunity to send to Congress a message embodying his idea of a chain of public power projects stretching across the country. It likewise affords him an opportunity to address himself to Congress on the subject of waterways.

MURRAY COUSIN ADMITS FEES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Declaring he didn't regard it as improper, Frank Murray, a distant cousin of Gov. William H. Murray, said he had accepted fees to help seek clemency for state convicts.

Chatting freely with newsmen yesterday, Murray, a farmer, said:

"I figured there was going to be some money made that way, and I'd make some, too."

He added he had done nothing he wouldn't do "if anybody else was Governor."

Gov. Murray said:

"If Frank Murray got any clemency for any money I don't know it. I know I've turned him down once or twice on clemency."

Frank Murray's disclosure followed the claims of Mrs. R. L. Daniels, wife of a Cleveland County convict, who exhibited a receipt for $50 which she said represented the "down payment" on a parole still unsigned.

Cleric Found Slain, Robbery Suspected

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The body of Gaylord V. Saunders, 35, former pastor of the Wabash Street Methodist Church at Wabash, Ind., was found today in his automobile on a North Side street here with a bullet wound in the head. Police said there were indications he had been killed by a robber.

Saunders had resigned his pastorate at Wabash within the last week. He had been attending a school for embalmers here and had intended to become an undertaker.

ATES WIFE ASKS $1,561 MONTH

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Living as the estranged wife of a movie comic pending a hearing of her separate maintenance action costs Mrs. Roscoe Ates $1,561 a month, she said in listing her needs in a demand for temporary allowance.

She needs, she said yesterday, $250 monthly for food, $500 for clothing, $100 for entertainment and another $100 for "miscellaneous." Her maid, she said, costs her $40 monthly and her motor car $146.

She said she pays a gardner $10 a month and must spend $200 every 30 days on her household furnishings. Other items she lists were: Gasoline, $30; laundry, $20; taxes on house, $40 (monthly); interest on house, $80, and telephone, $20.

A hearing on the separate maintenance action will be held today, but Ates, stuttering film comedian, is in New York filling a theatrical engagement.

McKees Rocks CCC Youth Dies in Crash

BROOKVILLE, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Two trucks sidewiped near Brookville late last night, killing one Civilian Conservation Camp youth and injuring two.

A broken neck caused the death of William J. Hutzler, 21, McKees Rocks, while John Kunlick, 22, of Pittsburgh, and Joseph Hubert, 25, of East Pittsburgh, were slightly hurt. They were on their way to Brookville from the Clear Creek CCC camp.

Two Luxurious New York Hotels Interest Florida

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Down in the South they are much interested in the trouble in New York's two best and largest hotels.

We mean the Waldorf-Astoria and Welfare Island.

We try to tell the boys we have never been in either one. If you want to hear real politics discussed you should listen to a Miami man argue with a Palm Beach man.

They know all about money, devaluation and recovery. At the finish of the argument, the first man up the tree throws the cocoanuts at the other man.

That aint as bad as the Minnesota farmer arguing with the Massachusetts tourist about debts and commodities. The farmer wound up saying:

"Brother, if I sprinkled bird seed on your head, I'd bet six pigeons would come out."

3 Held for Court In Rum Violations

Mrs. Minnie Ryhn and John Joesch, of Allison Park, and Nicholas Totino, of 235 Lombard street, were held for court in alleged liquor law violations at a hearing before Alderman Ray E. Schneider, North Side, last night. Six others were fined.

Roosevelt Granted Tax Cut on Home

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt has won a $5,000 reduction in the assessed valuation of his town house in East Sixty-fifth street.

Records made public today by the Department of Taxes and Assessments showed the assessment on the property had been reduced from $170,000, the tentative appraisal set last October, to $165,000, the final figure.

Panama President Escapes Assassin

PANAMA CITY, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—The government made several arrests today in a roundup of suspects involved in a plot to assassinate President Arias several days ago.

The plot, which the government disclosed last night, was thwarted by secret police.

MISSING WIFE HUNTED HERE

Relatives and friends of Mrs. Raymond Bostick, 22, former student in a convent school here, were being canvassed today in an attempt to locate the girl, who has been missing since January 20. Her husband, a New York jewelry salesman, said he has not seen his wife since that date.

According to Bostick, he left her in New York City on January 20 after arranging a meeting for the following morning. Although he waited until evening, he said, she failed to appear, and he has heard nothing of her since.

4 TELL BATTLE FOR LIFE ON ICE DRIFT

BAY CITY, Mich., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—A thrilling account of a 28-hour battle with the elements while they huddled on a crumbling ice floe adrift in storm-swept Saginaw Bay was told by four fishermen who walked ashore late yesterday after searchers had almost despaired of their survival.

Refreshed after their first real meal since noon Wednesday the fishermen told how they improvised a shelter behind which they crouched, continually pounding each other, in an effort to avoid freezing to death while the ice floe was swept toward Lake Huron by a 40-mile wind.

BOY FEARED DEATH

The fishermen, Anthony Abare, John Swantek, 32; Charles King, Jr., 17, and his brother, Lawrence, 19, walked ashore at the village of Quanicasse, 10 miles east of Bay City, at 4 p. m. yesterday when the wind finally drove the floe toward land. Lawrence King said:

"We thought we were doomed when it got dark. We didn't know which way to walk as we were not sure of keeping away from open water. So we agreed to stay together and remain where we were.

"A Christmas tree which we found on the ice together with two oil drums and half a sleigh which we had with us probably kept us from freezing to death."

Charles King, Jr., said:

"We danced around through the night trying to keep warm.

"We didn't try to walk any place. We agreed that we would all stick together. Swantek and Abare kept my brother and me from going to sleep, arousing us with slaps and shouts whenever we dozed off."

'ICE BREAKING UP'

Swantek said:

"The floe we were on was breaking up fast during the night. We had a few pieces of firewood which we picked up on the ice, but we didn't use them during the night because we figured we'd need them more later on.

"About 9:30 this morning the wind calmed down some, and by using our sled runners as a bridge we left our floe and managed to reach a bigger one."

The men finally reached a point five miles off Quanicasse, where Swantek said they used their supply of fuel to cook some perch—the first food they had tasted in 24 hours.

The ice was freezing, and by using their sled runners the four finally reached shore.

Twenty-eight Army airplanes had cruised over the bay yesterday in a futile effort to locate the marooned fishermen.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength) and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

OFFICER SLAIN AS BANDITS ROB BANK

NEEDHAM, Mass., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—One policeman was slain, three other men shot and $10,000 taken from the Needham Trust Company today by four bandits, two of them armed with what bank employes described as submachine guns.

Forbes McLeod, policeman, shot through the stomach as he answered the bank's burglar alarm, died shortly afterward in Glover Hospital.

Walter H. Bartholomew, 75, bank vault attendant, also was shot inside the bank.

As the bandits fled, they compelled Arnold McIntosh, treasurer of the bank, and John Riordan, an employe, to stand on the running board of their machine where they would be exposed to death should police pursuit ensue.

Riordan jumped as the car sped through the square and escaped unwounded when the bandits fired at him. McIntosh was thrown off the machine three miles farther on.

Patrolman Frank Haddock was shot as the bandit's car sped toward Needham Heights. In the same district Timothy Coughlin, a fireman, was felled by shots from the robbers as, apparently, he went to Haddock's assistance.

PENNSGROVE, N. J., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Four men stole $130,000 from two bank employes today as they were entering the Pennsgrove National Bank with the money in two mail sacks.

The cash was to be used to meet the demands of the employes of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., which pays its men by check.

The bank gong and fire siren were sounded and within five minutes 50 automobiles carrying residents of the town and vicinity started in search of the robbers.

Snow covered the roads, making travel difficult. No trace of the car could be found.

Injured Workman Dies in Hospital

Struck by a brake lever while working in the Glenwood yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad last Saturday, according to a Coroner's report, John Oslasky, 54, of 2010 Sarah street, died today in Mercy Hospital. His skull was fractured. Oslasky was a car repairman employed by the company, the report said.

Sleeping Chinese, Believed Dead, Awes Mourners

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Eng Sinv, 72-year-old Chinese, was alive today after what appeared to be a resurrection from death in the presence of a group of startled Orientals.

Eng, patient in the Bing Kong Tong Home for Aged, was believed dead.

Companions mourned at the bedside.

While being carried to a morgue car, the "dead" Chinese sat up on the stretcher, yawned and went back to sleep while frightened mourners fled in terror.

Deputy Coroner Nick Culjis took the slumbering Eng back to bed.

BALTIMORE ART GALLERY OPEN

BALTIMORE, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The Walters Art Gallery, opening its doors to the public today for the first time, was described by Francis Henry Taylor, director of the Worcester (Mass.) Art Museum as "a treasure house—the greatest, rounded-out private art collection in the United States and second to none in Europe."

Taylor will head a committee of experts who will study the contents of the massive stone building under the shadow of Washington Monument on Mount Vernon place.

In the Francis Scott Key room is the original manuscript of "The Star-Spangled Banner," written on the back of a letter by Key while aboard a vessel during the bombardment of Fort McHenry in the Baltimore Harbor in the War of 1812. The national anthem has been given a patriotic setting, including the original Gilbert Stuart's famous portrait of George Washington.

$4,256,002 Tax Lien Against 'Bill' Dwyer

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—A $4,256,002 tax lien had been filed in the United States District Court today against William V. (Big Bill) Dwyer, sporting figure and former rum runner.

The government, which fined Dwyer $10,000 and sent him to Atlanta Penitentiary after a trial in 1926, now claims he did not pay complete taxes between 1922 and 1932.

WALL ST. BOMB MAN GUILTY

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Found guilty of third degree assault in connection with the "tear gas bombing" of the New York Stock Exchange last August 4, Eugene S. Daniell, Jr., Harvard graduate and Boston lawyer, today was in the Tombs without bail, awaiting sentence, February 15. Daniell faces a maximum penalty of imprisonment for not more than three years.

A jury in General Sessions which brought in the verdict against Daniell recommended mercy, but Judge Joseph E. Corrigan indicated he would not be bound by the recommendation.

Daniell, who is 29, pleaded not guilty. The explosion of two tear gas grenades in the ventilating of the exchange caused a near panic, sent about 2,000 traders scrambling out of the building and disrupted trading for a day.

High Record Set By Desertion Cases

Desertion and non-support court judges are wondering if the new deal had anything to do with the record for this court being broken in January. A total of 184 new cases was filed, each representing a husband or wife deserted and suing for support.

In January, 1933, only 109 new cases were recorded. The highest previous mark was in 1928, when 179 suits were filed.

JAP-SOVIET WAR TO TRAP U. S., BUTLER SAYS

A war between Japan and Russia over oil and railroads was predicted last night by Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler in an address at the twentieth annual dinner of the Traffic and Transportation Club in the William Penn Hotel.

The ex-Marine added the United States would be in it eventually because, he said:

"We'll insist upon selling supplies to the ones already in it, and, of course, they'll sink the ships carrying supplies to the enemy. Then we'll go in on the side that owes us the most money.

"They'll beat drums and then all the suckers will put guns on their shoulders again and get out to get shot."

That process of entering war has been the general outline of American diplomacy, he told his audience.

Describing the Marines as the greatest bill collecting agency in the world, he said:

"For 35 years I belonged to the greatest bill collecting agency in the world—the United States Marines. Every time Wall street lends some money to South America, and can't collect, they send the Marines down."

Gen. Butler said that one of the most essential defense needs of America was an adequate war plane force.

The change in the country's fundamental viewpoint shown in the encouragement and approval of social legislation was described by Judge Ralph H. Smith as the most important aspect of the NRA.

Congressman Clyde Kelly was toastmaster.

WAR PICTURES RECALL PERILS

The harrowing experiences of war as portrayed by the Sunday Sun-Telegraph war pictures were vividly presented in a radio broadcast by two noted airmen in the Aircaster program at 6:30 p. m. yesterday.

Joining in a plea for preparedness with Al Williams, speed demon, Ralph Lockwood, the air ace who joined the British flying forces in 1915 and experienced many narrow escapes from death, recounted some of his thrills.

An hour and a quarter instruction was all Lockwood received before making a solo flight, he related. The Germans were bombing London and the British needed pilots in a hurry, he explained. He added:

"I think we flying people were better able to get a general idea of what war really meant. It always seems so hard, so cruel . . . that the same bright sun flashing along our wings should be wasted on a ruined countryside."

He commended the Sun-Telegraph pictures as revealing the true meaning of war.

'Murder' Verdict in Child's Fire Death

SCRANTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Frank Bruno, 37, now serving 10 to 20 years in Eastern Penitentiary for arson, today was found guilty of first degree murder in connection with a fire in Dunmore Borough on March 2, 1932, in which Marian Myers, 11, burned to death. The jury recommended the death penalty.

Doctor Sues Bernie Over Dog's Tail

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—For cutting the tail off Ben Bernie's great dane, now dead, Dr. D. R. Herberich, a veterinarian, said in a damage suit filed against the orchestra leader his price was $182.50. But Bernie, the suit said, offered to settle for an even $100. The action was started yesterday.

Morning Musicale

Hotel Schenley

Program:

Concerto ..... Brahms
Allegro non troppo
Vagissima Sembianza ..... Donaudy
The Garland ..... Mendelssohn
Yesterday and Today ..... Gilbert Spross
Le Ruisseau ..... Moussorgski-Duphin
Tzigane ..... Ravel
Serenade ..... Schubert
Where e'er You Walk ..... Handel
Take All of Me ..... Sickles

The Morning Musicale at Hotel Schenley yesterday gave occasion for two young musicians, Mark Meyer, violinist, and Howard Price, tenor.

Mr. Lissfelt

Meyer's music was the most important offering and showed how far technically this young man had progressed. His finger agility is rather amazing at times but he should, judging from his playing yesterday, listen now toward the making of beautiful tone. No matter what raucous clusters of notes Ravel and Moussorksy allow themselves, I believe the player can tone down these ranting to something approaching the beautiful.

Price, I understand, is quite a popular tenor in the radio world, and really possesses a very attractive voice. It resembles John McCormack's in some of his caressing phrases but has more definite character. He signs naturally too, without strain, and for his youth, well enough.

What I heard of his songs made pleasing singing rather than music that one could remember after the concert. Again, with larger repertory and the consequent acquaintance with various schools of song, he should make a name for himself.

Miss Lefridge played accompaniments.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

JAPS BUYING UP SCRAP IRON

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Stimulated by huge purchases by Japan, scrap iron and steel prices yesterday reached a new high.

A progressive price increase extending over several months was attributed by large New York brokers to purchases for Japanese accounts. They said that whereas scrap is rarely stocked up by its users, Japan undoubtedly has been collecting large reserves of it.

Last week the Garsqn Steel and Iron Company purchased 1,700 locomotives and cars from the Norfolk Southern Railroad for a Japanese buyer. The scrap will be melted down and turned over to Japanese ships at Atlantic ports.

Within the last few months Japan has bought a number of old ships, including the once proud British trans-Atlantic liners Baltic and Lapland, for scrapping, and brokers were reported to be interested in buying antiquated United States Shipping Board vessels for Japanese concerns.

SPAIN PARDONS 4 AMERICANS

MADRID, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The sixth section of the Supreme Court today approved a governmental pardon for four Americans serving a jail term in Palma, Mallorca, for assaulting a civil guard.

The Americans are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood, of West Springfield, Mass.; Roger F. Mead, of New York, and Edmund A. Blodgett, of Stamford, Conn.

They were sent to jail last month after a long legal battle in which consecutively a court-martial acquitted them, a military auditor overruled the acquittal and the Supreme Court upheld the military auditor. They were sentenced to six months and a day in jail.

The pardon approval today was the result of the intercession in their behalf by United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers.

Canada Withdrawal From League Urged

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—(Universal.)—Immediate withdrawal of Canada from the League of Nations was urged in the Senate yesterday by Senator A. D. McRae of Vancouver. A European war within the next five years is certain and Canada must not be drawn into the conflict by any European affiliations, he said.

CUBA TO RETURN SEIZED PLANTS

HAVANA, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Immediate return of the plants of the American-owned Cuban Electric Company to the owners was urged upon the government today by a commission formed to arbitrate differences between officials and employes.

The plants were taken over for operation by the government after disorders growing out of a strike.

The commission assured President Carlos Mendieta that the concern's officials were ready to meet the employes' remaining demands.

The workers, it was added, are willing to accept, providing a complete change is made in managers and officials in Cuba, with the naming of new heads and the promotion of many Cuban employes whom the commission considers competent.

Mdivanis Denied Directed Acquittal

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Superior Judge Fletcher Bowron yesterday rejected a defense plea for a directed verdict of acquittal or dismissal of the entire indictment charging grand theft against Serge and David Mdivani. Judge Bowron did, however, dismiss two counts of the indictment.

Thus the two self-styled princes today open their defense on the remaining ten counts, charging a total misapplication of more than $10,000 of their Pacific Shore Oil Company's funds.

DISARMAMENT HITS SNAGS

Associated Press.

Formidable new objections to concrete plans for European disarmament crowded to the front today after France flatly rejected Germany's offer of non-aggression pacts yesterday.

Paris likewise extended a cool reception to British and Italian disarmament plans which recognized Germany's claim to equality in armaments. A French note addressed to Chancellor Hitler accepted none of his recent proposals, but left the door open for future conversations.

League of Nations circles in Geneva, however, saw in the British and Italian memoranda some hope for bridging Franco-German differences.

Berlin's attention was occupied with a reply to a recent protest from Austria concerning Nazi interference. Germany denied point for point, Austrian accusations.

While the German government called the Austrian matter "not one for international treatment," Vienna saw in the German answer no other recourse but to "continue the policy forced upon us by the situation" and to take action in an international sphere.

Children Missing, Broker Faces Arrest

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—An order calling for the arrest of John McGregor Willits, insurance broker, who disappeared a week ago with his two children, was issued yesterday by Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior Court.

The children had been awarded to his wife, Mrs. Margaret Liggett Willits, niece of the drug store family, when she won a divorce recently.

The Sensible Treatment of

A COLD:

Method takes several hours, but it works

To relieve any cold, let your first effort be to clear the head, dry the secretions, and reduce the fever. This will take time, and medicine of more than one kind.

You can get the necessary medicines of your druggist, by asking for Pape's Cold Compound which combines them in a pleasant tablet.

To relieve a "new" cold, take three of these little tablets; chew them up, drink some water.

To relieve a more stubborn cold will require a second treatment, and frequently a second day of this treatment, but it's worth the time. Colds that have been driven out of the system are gone.

Pape's Cold Compound relieves a cold as quickly as anything safe to take.

CAVELL DEATH 'JUSTIFIED,' BRITON SAYS

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The execution of Nurse Edith Cavell by the German army during the World War was justified, in the opinion of A. Duff Cooper, financial secretary to the British War Office.

Duff Cooper told an audience of army officers:

"Miss Cavell was a noble and courageous woman whom the Germans were entitled to execute according to the rules of warfare. But any politician could have told them the execution was going to arm 100,000 men against Germany."

Duff Cooper asked a truce in the traditional conflict between soldiers and politicians.

ASSAILS LLOYD GEORGE

Duff Cooper said David Lloyd George, throughout his term as wartime prime minister, worked against the British commander-in-chief, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in his speech today. Duff Cooper said:

"One of the greatest mistakes made in the last war by the prime minister of the day was that he distrusted the commander-in-chief but had not the courage to dismiss him. Mr. Lloyd George distrusted Field Marshal Haig.

"He thought the latter was unfitted for his command, but he was afraid of public opinion and did not dare to place somebody else in the position."

The speaker said Lloyd George did "everything in his power to undermine his (Haig's) position both with his fellow countrymen and with his allies."

He added:

"That is an unpardonable attitude for a statesman to adopt. That is why the name 'politician' continues to stink in the nostrils of the Army."

Duff Cooper in writing an authorized biography of the late Field Marshal Haig.

PREPARING ANSWER

David Lloyd George, when his attention was called to Duff Cooper's remarks, replied that the matter would be fully dealt with in the next volume of his own memoirs. The former prime minister said he trusted that until then the public would withhold its judgment.

Duff Cooper himself was a captain in the British army, serving from 1914 to 1919. He won the distinguished service order. In 1919 he married Lady Diana Manners.

Edith Louisa Cavell was convicted by a German courtmartial in the summer of 1915 of having assisted 130 persons from Belgium while she was in charge of a Red Cross Hospital at St. Gilles. She was executed by a German firing squad on the morning of October 12, 1915. A peak in the Canadian Rockies is named after her.

'LIPSTICK' BOMB BRINGS $10,000

Because 14-year-old John C. Fehrs, Jr., of Irwin, Pa., mistook an explosive cap for a tube of lipstick, he was awarded $10,000 damages against the City of McKeesport today by a Common Pleas Court jury.

The boy lost two fingers and a thumb when the cap exploded May 17, 1931, after he found it in Renziehausen Park, McKeesport, it was testified. Rose and Mary Martynink, twin sisters, of Gordon street, McKeesport, were with John at the time and told him they thought the cap contained lip rouge, according to the testimony.

It was brought out that the city had been using explosives to blast out stumps in the park.

Actor's Long Hair Sacrifice To Art

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The plight of a movie actor who lets his hair grow for the sake of art was described today by Fredric March on his return from a New York vacation trip.

The first day out on a ship via the Panama Canal, March received a message from his studio that he should let his hair grow as long as possible for a picture in which he is to costar soon with Constance Bennett. March complained:

"All the way to New York and back here the barbers tried to coax me into a haircut. They tried everything from persuasion to force ever time I called for a shave.

"I finally thwarted them by shaving myself."

BLAMES IN-LAW IN DIVORCE

A mother-in-law who insisted on accompanying her and her husband on their vacation and when they went out in the evening was partly responsible for her leaving her husband, Charles W. Puhl, a city policeman, Mrs. Lillian C. Puhl, of Versailles Township, testified today before Judge John P. Egan. Puhl is seeking a divorce on grounds of desertion.

Mrs. Puhl testified that while she was living with her husband and his family at 936 West North avenue, she was left home on two occasions when her husband said there wasn't enough room in his machine for her and the other members of the family.

JUDGES TREK FOR EVIDENCE

CLARION, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The record is closed in the legal battle over the Clarion County judgeship, but it required a 26-mile trip for three special judges to complete the case.

Judges McCracken, Darr and Graff traveled 26 miles to the home of Chester Bellnap, in East Brady Township, yesterday to ask him two questions:

Did he vote in the November election?

Did he vote for either A. A. Geary, Democrat, or Harry M. Rimer, Republican, for judge?

He answered "yes" to both queries. The judges didn't ask for which candidate he voted. Eight attorneys and a court stenographer accompanied the three judges to the Bellnap home. The witness was too ill to go to Clarion.

Rimer, former judge, is contesting Geary's election. Argument will be heard in about 10 days.

"Those listening in from dry states may now tune out this station, for the next program is not intended to offer alcoholic beverages for sale or delivery in any state or community wherein the advertising, sale or use thereof is unlawful."

GLOBE TROTTING

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

We will have (or will have had, depending on when you read this) on the radio the wandering d k that caused the sensation downtown yesterday when it followed pedestrians about.

On the program, the noon broadcast, is Andrew T. Park, District Attorney.

Please don't "kid" Andy by saying that you thought that he was Joe Penner. Please, for my sake.

As far as I'm concerned, Schnitz und Knepp is out. The Schnitz may be all right, but Knepp, those dumplings—oh-h-h your poor tummy. Maybe all cooks don't make them the same way, but the ones I tried—sinkers, I tell you, that's what they were.

Mrs. T. W. Rodgers, Castle Shannon, says that they are swell the way she makes them with a smoked hambone and little lean meat clinging thereto.

Pirate Thriller On Air Today

A true and thrilling tale of modern piracy, "The Silver Siren," is dramatized for radio listeners throughout the tri-state area this afternoon and evening.

Perhaps you recall the front page news sensation—the story of a pirate band that attempted to steal a ship's cargo of silver in order to finance a search for a vast hidden treasure.

Today's drama is based on the sensational incident, and a full account of it appears in next Sunday's American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed with the Sun-Telegraph.

"The Silver Siren" is heard on the following stations:

WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton, O., 2 p. m.; WALR, Zanesville, 5 p. m.; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15 p. m.; WOBU, Charleston, W. Va., 5:15 p. m.; WAIU, Columbus, O., 7:15 p. m.; WADC, Akron, O., 7:45 p. m., and WLBW, Erie, 9 p. m.

Bernard Shaw's 'Canned Chatter' Banned on Air

By AIRCASTER

George Bernard Shaw, scheduled to speak via the National Broadcasting Company from England, February 6—won't.

Headmen of NBC discovered yesterday that what the British Broadcasting Company plotted to do on that date was to foist a mechanical recording of the Irish Patriarch's voice on "U. S. Boobs." So the G. B. Shaw speech is out.

Inkling of the average preferences of the radio audience has been yielded by surveys and fan mail.

"Most programs are designed to edify the average taste. Caustic cracks are constantly made about the average intelligence of listeners.

But up to now, nobody has found the average listener, and it is doubtful if ever he will be tagged.

One wonders who he is, where he is, what kind of a guy he is, how much money he makes—and spends and how big his family, if any, might be.

Finally, what does he like in the way of radio divertisement if not advertisement?

YOU TELL 'EM

Find this man and you rate a fortune. Find him and you have the sponsor's eternal gratitude and the answer to the broadcasters' prayer.

Only by scientific quests, perhaps, can he be located in the flesh, but it would be interesting to learn what kind of a fellow he might be, from descriptions by the customers.

It is possible that Teddy Bergman has found Mr. Average Listener.

The stuttering dialectician recently was a guest on Long Island, and his host, he insists, is Mr. Average.

The host was seated with Bergman and Mrs. Average at breakfast. They were listening to a breakfast food program. The blurb which opened the show was brief and modest.

IN THREE ACTS

"That," commented the host, "that was a plug, but it wasn't overdone." Turning to his wife, he suggested: "You'd better stock up on that food."

"I have a box already," said the wife.

The show went on. Came a whole minute plug.

"Never mind stocking up," said the host.

More music followed, and at the end, the announcer indulged in a three-minute salestalk.

Bergman sat fascinated as his host slowly wagged his head, silently arose from the table, and then with a snarl and a leer, seized the lone box of food and muttering maliciously, chucked it into the garbage chute.

Do you, average addicts, know of any other "average" listeners?

Why FINTEX CLOTHES fit!

IN the great Fintex tailoring plant, hand sewing plays a most important part. For example:

The collar is carefully put on by hand so that it hugs the neck snugly.

The armholes are handfelled to allow the sleeves to hang straight and true.

The vest is cut and sewed to give just the feeling of snugness that smart men demand.

The trousers of every Fintex suit are especially fitted from the waistline to the bottom to prevent the slightest suggestion of variation in the hang of the trousers.

Add to this the fact that every Fintex store boasts its own Master Fitter—a man trained in our own tailoring processes, and you have the secret of the custom-made look that characterizes Fintex Clothes.

No man, regardless of his build, can fail to be fitted in Fintex Clothes. Stop in—we're ready to prove it today.

JOHNSTON ASKS 100 CITY JOBS BE DROPPED

More than 100 jobs have been recommended for elimination in the city Public Works Department by Director Leslie M. Johnston.

His economy suggestions, given to Council yesterday, total $195,813, about one-half in amount of money compared with those of Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, budget advisor to Mayor William N. McNair.

The bureau of water was hit hardest in the reductions, 42 positions being recommended for elimination. Of these, 24 were laborers and others included assistant engineers and clerkships.

OTHER REPORTS

Council meets again this afternoon to receive the budget reports of the Health and Welfare directors. There are indications that night sessions may be started in an effort to get somewhere with the $21,250,000 budget, still $1,750,000 out of balance.

Other jobs which Director Johnston would take out of the budget are 37 employes in the Bureau of City Property, more than a score in the Bureau of Parks and Playgrounds and 14 in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers.

Although not cutting as deeply into the payroll as Mrs. Smith and M. C. Conick, auditor, Johnston hinted at further reductions, if study should indicate them.

A considerable amount of the difference in the recommendations was by reason of the fact that Mrs. Smith's program cannot be put into effect immediately. She had urged some things which, in Johnston's opinion, cannot be done.

COUNCIL REACTION

Council heard recommendations on only the Bureau of Water yesterday, and was non-committal. Councilman William A. Magee said:

"I don't like to see these changes made over night."

Magee suggested a survey of the Bureau of Water by an outside engineer. Later he amplified this idea, suggesting an efficiency engineer to check up on other city departments.

A proposal by Mrs. Smith to form a separate department of the Bureaus of Parks and Recreation has been ruled illegal by City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully. Those activities must be carried on under the Public Works Department.

Many jobs were placed on the elimination list in the Bureaus of Parks and Playgrounds, including the entire division of grounds and buildings. The plan is to reorganize the bureaus in five geographical divisions of the city.

SAVING DWINDLES

A $100,000 saving in the Bureau of Light dwindled to $1,774 in the Johnston report. A street lighting contract with the Duquesne Light Company is so arranged that little saving can be made for the city through reducing power of the lights. The gas lighting contract must be continued long enough to allow replacement of lights.

The city will continue to use its own force to clean the City-County Building, Johnston said, and is also continuing to operate the North Side market instead of leasing it.

To protect the city's investment in bridges and streets, Johnston declared that $145,000 should be added to the budget for repainting and repairs.

An increase of $14,310 in the Bureau of Engineering was suggested by Johnston.

Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith has told Council in a letter that he cannot see where there can be any budget reductions in his department. The report of the Mayor's advisors had urged $215,000 in payroll cuts, including more than 50 jobs in the Bureau of Police.

Director Smith is to appear in Council to discuss the budget later.

Wilkinsburg Fetes Police Chief Harris

Wilkinsburg Police Chief James Harris was honored by county officials and 400 Wilkinsburg residents at a testimonial banquet in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel last night. Toastmaster John McDowell presented the speakers, who were Judge Elder W. Marshall, Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk, Burgess William P. Yocum, of Wilkinsburg; Ben R. Marshall, Pittsburgh assistant police superintendent; Clarence E. Wolford, president of Wilkinsburg Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. G. H. Kirkpatrick, president of Wilkinsburg Council, was chairman.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, the snow is knee deep and still a falling. California here I come. The airplanes are awful fine, but the old trains come in mighty handy. And they are getting their rates down now where lots of folks are riding on the trains.

Will Rogers

In the Senate yesterday was the St. Lawrence River canal bill. It will be the first presidential measures that may meet defeat. It will be mighty close.

Was in the Vice President's office when he was visited by the Russian ambassador and his wife. He seemed an awful nice fellow. I asked him about war with Japan. Said it had been delayed indefinitely on account of bad weather. Yours, WILL.

Junior Patrol

Don't be destructive, fellows! We know some boys who think it is fun to throw stones at a street light until it is broken.

If they see a park bench, they turn it over and maybe break it. In the summer time, they are the kind of fellows who cut off the tops of flowers with sticks.

Often, people plant small trees in front of their homes, hoping that they grow up into beautiful trees that will shade the street and walk, and make the whole neighborhood more beautiful.

Boys and girls don't think about such things as they should. If you break off a small tree, you hear it crack off just once, and a tree that took three or four years to grow, worth many dollars, is gone in an instant. And yet breaking things isn't any fun. Any fellow can have more fun playing basketball.

Last night we saw a boy running down the street—crazy like—too fast. He slipped, and slammed into the corner of a plate glass window. It was a big pane of glass worth $50. He got up and ran away, leaving the window broken.

Think, fellows! Don't forget that the world is a beautiful place in which we live. You should do everything you can to make the world more beautiful.

You remember we asked for some codes. Today we got one from Edward Criswell, of 7720 Tioga street, Pittsburgh. He sends the United States Army code, which is a system of dots and dashes used to telegraph messages over the wires or on the radio. Thanks, Edward.

REID SUCCESSOR NAMED BY PARK

District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced the appointment of William J. O'Donnell as an assistant district attorney today.

O'Donnell, succeeding Meredith Reid, who resigned to enter private practice, was to be sworn into office late today or tomorrow.

O'Donnell, a Pittsburgh newspaperman for the past 12 years, graduated from Duquesne University's Law School and was admitted to the Allegheny County bar in 1930. During the greater part of his newspaper career O'Donnell was a court reporter.

He is married and has one child, a daughter. His home is at 2052 Pioneer avenue.

STORE RAIDERS BLAME RUM

Two musicians who admitted in East End Police Counrt today to raiding a poultry store at 6022 Broad street, blamed their actions on cheap whisky.

One of the pair, John W. Kelly, 26, of 127 Bayard street, a saxophone player in a hotel orchestra, was sitting in an automobile holding a duck and two roosters, radio police testified. J. C. Oehmler, 21, of 6640 Ridgeville street, was inside the store after more ducks, the officers testified.

The two were held over for investigation by Magistrate Charles F. Papale. Police said they found a monkey wrench, screw driver, hammer and saw in the car.

CITY INSURANCE PLUMS TIED TO TAX PAYING

City insurance will be purchased by the new administration from agents promising to bring the city the greatest amount of delinquent taxes, Mayor McNair has revealed.

This new insurance deal, the Mayor indicated, will probably mean that firms showing the greatest delinquency in city taxes will get the bulk of the business—if they are willing to pay up. Firms up to date in their city obligations would stand little show.

The Mayor defended his stand by stating that formerly the distribution of insurance was made partly with a view to rewarding political services. By his plan, he pointed out, the city at least would benefit.

Meanwhile, pending a partial reorganization of the city's insurance structure, some $2,000,000 worth of insurance has been guaranteed under a 90-day binder arrangement, according to Assistant Assessor William B. Foster.

A delay was effected in obtaining the regular policies, Foster said, in belief that corrections in insurance distribution would enable the city to get greater insurance coverage at no increased cost.

The need for corrections was discovered by the committee on insurance, headed by J. Sherman Foster. The committee expects to have the new insurance schedule in shape before the expiration of the binder.

Among faults of the present setup, Foster, an insurance man by profession, cited the undercoverage of Mayview.

COUNTY SEEKS MECHANICAL JOB SAVERS

Thee major county offices may soon be outfitted with mechanical office devices which will reduce the overhead costs and reduce the list of county employes by hundreds.

The Commissioners yesterday approved a set up of the machinery yesterday upon the advice of a survey board comprising George E. Meyers, head of the tax office; A. E. Anke, deputy Treasurer, and Nevin Woodside, deputy Controller.

Authorized also was a minimum price, to be agreed on later, for setting up the machines for a trial system.

Meyers and his associates agreed that in one department alone, the transcribing room, the new machines would reduce the clerks from 70 to 14, while that ratio would apply to other departments. The system was described as based on addressographs. By their use, Chicago sends out 720,000 water bills a month in 10 days.

Chairman C. C. McGovern, of the commissioners, declared that while in approving it he might be accused of cutting people out of work, the times and the necessity of modernizing the county methods made such machinery imperative. He added:

"Our methods haven't improved much in 140 years. We don't use the quill any more, but we're not far from it."

Pinchot Planning Visit to Florida

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot, recuperating in a New York sanitorium, will make a flying visit to Harrisburg next week or the week following and then go to Florida to complete his recovery from an attack of shingles, it was learned today.

Insull Informer Fined One Dollar

GARY, Ind. Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Having paid a fine of only $1 and costs, Howard Duncan, former official of the Northern Indiana Public Service Company, today began a two-year period of probation after pleading guilty to embezzling $132,000 of company funds.

The Lake County grand jury had recommended leniency for Duncan when his testimony brought the indictments of Samuel Insull, Jr., and six other officials of the utility firm on charges of embezzlement and grand larceny.

RAILCONDUCTOR LEAVES $40,000

A will written on the back of a railroad conductor's report blank two months before he died was filed for probate today.

The penciled notation bequeathed the $40,000 estate of Elmer Webster Noile, of Carnegie, a Pennsylvania Railroad conductor, who died at the railroad station here January 18. The will was dated November 12, 1933.

A brother, Nathan Noile, received $11,250; a sister, Mary E. Dyche, two-sixths of the estate, and a niece, two nephews and a half-sister, Emma E. Price, one-sixth each.

The will of Fred Knieling, of Forty-second street, left $17,500 to his wife for life. The estate goes to their seven children following her death.

INSULL SHUNS U. S. OFFICIALS

ATHENS, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull remained in his closely guarded apartment today and twice refused to see American officials who sought to inform him that his passport had been reinstated.

The officials said they would make no further efforts to visit the former Chicagoan, sought in the United States on charges in connection with the failure of his utilities enterprises.

Despite the fact that the 74-year-old fugitive denied himself to the American officials, however, the fact remained today that his passport is good and he may be required to use it if the Greek government desires to deport him.

Before the matter of his much-discussed expulsion finally is settled, he will be given another physical examination to determine whether he is able to travel.

In connection with discussions of his possible next destination should he be forced or decide voluntarily to leave, it was reported today that an American private yacht was lying off Piraeus harbor.

BYRD UNLOADS SUPPLY SHIP

BAY OF WHALES, Antarctica (via Mackay Radio), Feb. 2.—(AP.)—After weathering storms and the relentless and dangerous disintegration of ice, the flagship of the second Byrd Antarctic expedition and its supply ship were hove to today as the men worked feverishly to discharge the remaining winter stores.

Inspired by the fear that crumbling ice might again threaten the ships and supplies the crews worked almost ceaselessly to unload the goods and transport them to a temporary cache on the bay ice six miles from Little America.

The Bear of Oakland, the supply ship, was berthed alongside the flagship after equalling a record run from Dunedin, N. Z., to the Bay of Whales. She brought 90 tons of stores for the expedition, including lumber for five shacks, scientific gear and food.

Legion to Battle Foes of Veterans

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Feb. 2.—(INS.)—While the Legion is a non-political assembly, the Pennsylvania department nevertheless will work to keep men opposed to legislation beneficial to war veterans out of public office.

State Commander Otto Messner, addressing a meeting of Legionnaires from 19 posts throughout Clearfield and Centre counties, outlined that as the position of the state division in regard to the coming campaign in Pennsylvania politics.

VETS IN RUSH FOR STATE BONUS AID

Thousands of veterans were in the vanguard of the rush for state bonus applications today. In the four downtown headquarters of veterans and co-operating agencies, approximately 6,000 applications were filled out during the morning hours.

Attaches of the American Red Cross in the Welfare Building reported the largest number, estimated at 3,000.

To facilitate the procedure, the Allegheny Committee, American Legion, will set up a branch office in the downtown office of the Sun-Telegraph, Fifth avenue and Market street, tomorrow. Legion officers will be on duty from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., daily.

The veterans are being urged to make their applications through the organizations of which they are members or where they are known, due to the necessity for proper indentification and the detailed information necessary on the forms. Every American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post has established service desks with workers offering assistance and affidavit without charge. All are open evenings.

RECORD REQUIRED

Detailed information of the veteran's service record is required in making application for the bonus which is expected to be paid beginning about April 1. The application requires the veteran's legal residence at entry into service as well as present residence. It must be specified whether service was enlistment, commission or draft, and from what city and date. In specifying the names and addresses of dependents, the veteran must include his wife's or mother's maiden name.

The applicant must list service in organizations, at stations or on vessels with specific dates for each service. Likewise, grades or rating with dates of appointments or promotions are required.

Other details necessary are engagements; wounds or other injuries received and the dates; time of service overseas with dates; date of honorable discharge and place.

AFFIDAVIT NEEDED

An important requirement is the necessity of the authorized officer who renders the affidavit to identify the applicant and attest to his or her mental competency. If the veteran applies to an agency where he is unacquainted, it is advisable that the applicant be accompanied by some person who can properly identify him to the officer.

Where a veteran's eligibility is questioned, the application is ordered filled out and sent to Harrisburg for an authoritive decision. The bonus will be paid to veterans or their dependents who had at least 60 days of service, were legal residents of the state at time of entry into service in the following wars: Spanish-American, China Relief Expedition, Philippine Islands or Guam and World War.

$10 PER MONTH

The bonus will be computed on the basis of $10 for every month and major fraction thereof of active service. No allowance is provided for inactive duty, veterans who received more than regular pay and allowance of their grade, or who received a bonus from any other state.

No veterans will be entitled to receive more than $200. The same amount will be compensation for eligible dependents of veterans who died in active military service. Dependents are considered in the following order: Surviving unremarried widow; surviving minor child or children; surviving mother or father.

The state bonus law specifically stipulates there will be no fee charged for this service in cities of first, second and third classes.

HEIRESS SUES, CHARGES 'DOPE'

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—A marriage annulment suit was filed here yesterday by Merry Fahrney Eiszner, heiress to the Fahrney patent medicine fortune. She said that because of "certain liquids" given her beforehand she did not realize she was being wed to Frank Van Sands Eiszner at Aurora, Ill., last November 10.

After filing of her suit, Mrs. Eiszner would not say whether she has any idea of marrying the count. Her lawyer, however, quoted her as saying:

"I think I'll go to Paris. The count will be there."

CAPONE HAILED AS 'PACIFIER'

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Testimony picturing Al Capone, gangland czar, as the pacifier who brought an end to a carnival of violence in the cleaning and dyeing industry today was before a jury hearing the racket conspiracy trial of 18 defendants.

Morris Becker, master cleaner and dyer, in the trial before Chief Justice Philip Finnegan, testified:

"Our shops had been bombed 40 times, and the union had bled us for $3,000 to call off a strike.

"Police, the State's Attorney and the United States Attorney would do nothing, so we called on a man that would protect us —Al Capone.

"He did the job well, for he liked me, and we never paid him a cent for what he did."

This was in 1927, Becker testified. Capone, assisted by Murray Humphreys, put a sudden stop he said, to the bombings, strikes and the window smashing.

EX-BROKER FREE IN WIFE DEATH

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—A charge of murder against Cloyd V. Koontz, 45, former stock broker, was dismissed yesterday after Koontz was given a hearing before Magistrate George H. Folwell in Homicide Court, Brooklyn.

Koontz was arrested on January 22, after the man notified police that two weeks previous he found his wife dead of illuminating gas poisoning in their home and that his mind then was a blank until he arrived in Cleveland some time later, when he remembered finding his wife and returned to Brooklyn.

An autopsy showed that the wife, Mrs. Rose Elizabeth Koontz, died of gas poisoning. Police said that a note found in the apartment had been written by Mrs. Koontz and that it expressed the fear that she was becoming blind.

On the motion of the District Attorney, the murder charge against Koontz was dismissed and he was discharged.

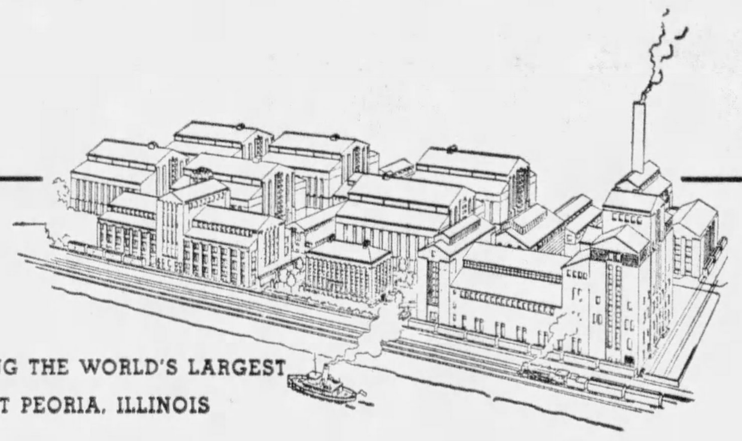
ANNOUNCE THEIR POLICY

IN THE PRESENT SITUATION . .



NOW BUILDING THE WORLD'S LARGEST DISTILLERY AT PEORIA, ILLINOIS

● In view of the confusion following repeal, we believe the people of this country will appreciate a frank statement of the policy of Hiram Walker & Sons with reference to blended whisky.

Everyone knows that there is only a small quantity of properly matured whisky in the United States; so that good blended whiskies must be provided to meet the public's desire for liquor at moderate prices.

Naturally, liquor buyers want quality at modest prices; and they want to be assured of both by a responsible and reputable producer.

For some 75 years, the name of Hiram Walker has stood for the highest quality in whisky and other distilled liquors. Today it is so accepted and recognized the world over.

Hiram Walker is blending whisky with the same high regard for quality and purity which has been our fundamental policy since the beginning of the business.

The straight whisky used in our blending is all over four years old and is imported from extensive stocks aged in wood in our Canadian plants. The blending is done at our new American plant at Peoria, Ill. The whisky is pure and palatable.

When you buy Hiram Walker blended whisky, you can rest assured of quality, purity and value at a fair price.

If you prefer a straight whisky, you can obtain it by purchasing the world-famous "Canadian Club", guaranteed to be over five years old.

"Canadian Club" is aged in wood, bottled in bond in the Dominion of Canada, under government supervision and shipped across the international boundary in the bottles which you buy. The age of each is certified by the stamp of the Canadian Government affixed to each bottle.

Our importations will continue until such time as the new Hiram Walker plant at Peoria, Ill.—"the largest distillery in the world"—can have made and aged whiskies which will be bonded, supervised and stamped by the Government of the United States.

Such is the Hiram Walker policy—established because we believe that the public is entitled to the highest quality whiskies.

Saves Penny Fees, Leaves Estate Of $250,000

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Emily Smith, a solitary old woman who lived in one of the lowliest districts of Paddington on the upper reaches of the Thames River, left a will which revealed today an estate of more than $250,000.

It all started from pennies. She was the daughter of a veteran of the Crimea who was in charge of the famous garden maze at Hampton Court Palace, with the privilege of charging for admission.

The charge was a penny, and persons from London and the world over thronged the palace every summer for the thrill of trying to find their way out of half a mile of strange labyrinthian passages formed by hedgerows planted in the days of Charles I.

The last 10 years the government has taken over the maze—and likewise the pennies.

Last February she wrote a few lines home on department store stationery, promising to write again when she had a permanent address, but since that time her mother has had no word from her. What her daughter's present occupation is Mrs. M. W. Howard does not know, but she does mention that her daughter was formerly employed in social service work in Cincinnati, O.

'THE WAR AT HOME:' STIRRING DAYS IN FAMILIAR SCENES

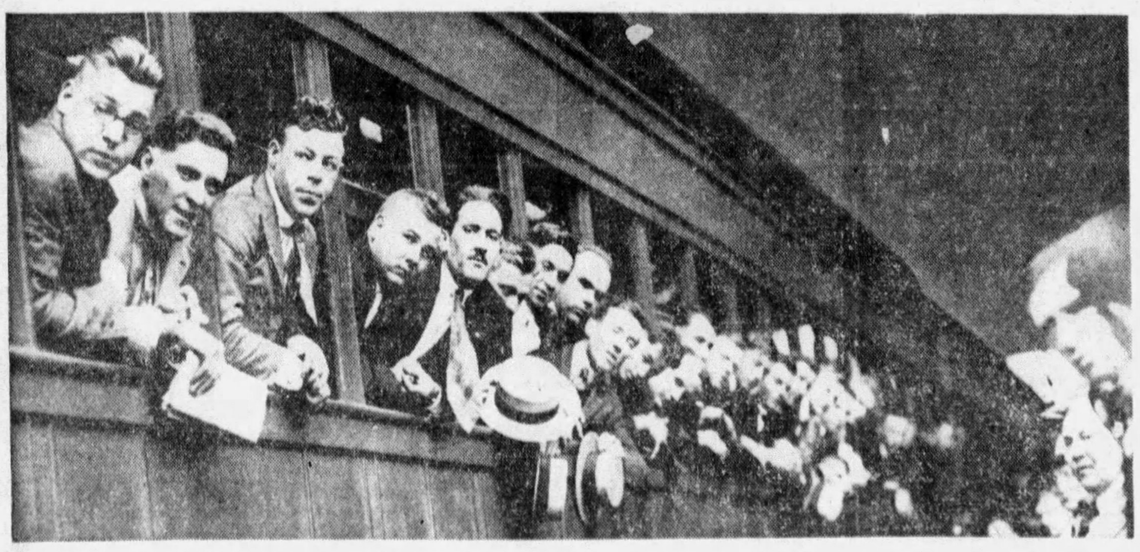
The members of Pennsylvania's "Old Eighteenth," National Guardsmen, entraining at Shadyside for early World War guard duty on Western Pennsylvania bridgeheads.

"The Girls They Left Behind Them:" Tears shed openly in Pittsburgh as the manpower was mobilized to do battle unto death on foreign soil. Preparedness NOW might go far to erase such heartache as this from the national scene a few years hence. This picture is from Raymond L. Baird's collection.

Doing the work of men, these girls—the work of men following their country's colors—in Swissvale in roaring '18.

A familiar war-time scene in Pittsburgh—appeals for volunteers, appeals for Liberty Loans, War Stamps. The woman at the right Christine Miller Clemson, society woman.

One of thousands of happy reunions—that of a mother, pictured with her kinfolk, who got back her "boy" as soldiers were ceremonially mustered out at Forbes Field.



Pittsburgh men from all walks of life in one of the recruit trains that left the Pennsylvania Station with increasing regularity—all to satisfy the demands of War. Hasty training—then foreign trenches and, for many, death and destruction.

A fond farewell—almost twenty years ago now—as Pittsburgh sent its quota of soldiers to the great war that taught through its horrors of death this lesson: Preparedness. This picture is from Frank Bingaman's collection of photographs.

Pictures of Wartime Scenes in Pittsburgh, Reviving Sorrowful Memories, Teach the Need of Strong Defenses

The grief and anguish of war, pictured in the series of uncensored photographs of the World War now being published in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, are brought a little closer home in the pictures we are showing today of wartime scenes in Pittsburgh.

This is the first installment of a series of photographs of "The War at Home," in which we shall remind the people of this community of the sorrows that the struggle brought them.

There will be pictures of the boys going away, while weeping mothers and sweethearts and grim-faced fathers stood by, their hearts torn with anxiety.

There will be pictures of the boys returning, but with many of their number missing—dead or wounded bearing witness that there was ample justification for the anxiety.

There will be pictures showing how the normal peaceful, happy life of the community was jarred and dislocated by the war's insatiable demand for material to be shot away, wealth to be wantonly destroyed.

How happy we all were when the terrible strain was over! How we rejoiced at the signing of the Armistice!

The Sun-Telegraph is deliberately recalling that terrible strain to the memory of Pittsburghers that the lesson of the war may not be forgotten.

That lesson was that the nations suffer least from war which are prepared for it.

Look at these pictures; refresh your memory as to the terrible mental strain that all suffered, even though they had no dear ones at the front; and resolve to use your vote and influence to put the nation into a state of preparedness, that we may not again be challenged to armed combat.

Monday Set for Naming Registration Board

By MARK SHIELDS

Appointment of the new Pittsburgh Registration Commission of two members, to administer the permanent registration law, is expected on Monday. Meanwhile there is no certainty as to the personnel and will not be until Gov. Pinchot determines what he will do about the Democratic member.

Mr. Shields

Democratic County Chairman David L. Lawrence and Joseph F. Guffey are making a determined drive for Mrs. J. Wood Clark, one of the Democratic members of the old commission, abolished when the new law became operative.

Mr. Lawrence says he has no second choice, and will be satisfied with no one but Mrs. Clark.

Mr. Pinchot is not disposed to look with enthusiasm on the suggestion. He may ultimately concede the place to the Lawrence faction, but his friends are advising him otherwise. They contend there are other Democrats who would not be so rabidly anti-Pinchot as would any one backed by Guffey.

It is known that the Governor was exceedingly wroth at the attack by Mr. Guffey two weeks ago over the conduct of CWA work in Pennsylvania, Mr. Guffey alleging that it was being devoted to the erection of a Pinchot political machine. Mr. Pinchot, it is reported from New York, has since said that, from now on he wishes to talk to Mr. Guffey on no subject at all.

The Pinchotites, confident that their man will be the Republican candidate for the Senate, see no reason why he should put in the hands of Guffey, who may be his Democratic opponent, the weapon of the Registration Commission.

Davis Coy in Talking On Gubernatorial Aims

Senator James J. Davis, spoken of as a possible candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, visited Pittsburgh yesterday, transacted some private busines and had time to look over the political situation. To a direct question as to whether he intended to run for Governor, the Senator said:

"I still have five years to serve in the Senate."

He added that he intended to take an active part in the gubernatorial fight in behalf of some candidate, and would support a man who most nearly represented the best interests of all, and not a special faction.

A good many Democrats believe that the tentative slate framed at a meeting of organization leaders in Philadelphia is not its final complexion as it will go to the voters in the primary. Those not in the Guffey-Lawrence circle are unable to understand the acquiescence of National Committeeman Sedgwick Kistler.

Kistler has been no more than a figurehead, Guffey representing the party at Washington. Kistler, it is known, has been disgusted and to an extent humiliated, but he has clung to his post, even though he threatened more than a year ago to resign if there occurred just such a situation as has existed since the Roosevelt administration took office.

"Gold Standard" Still Holds for Politicians

In the mak.-up of the ticket Mr. Kistler seems to have received nothing but the naming of Thomas A. Logue, of Philadelphia, as candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs. This is like a fellow starting out to be captain of the team and winding up as a fourth string quarterback.

The gubernatorial and senatorial nominations, the patronage pay-offs, remain with Mr. Guffey.

George H. Earle III, the gubernatorial selection, is a banker and sugar refiner. Perhaps one thing playing a part in his selection was that upon being appointed minister to Austria he attacked the Hitler Nazis and warned against anti-Semitic activities.

Additionally, Mr. Earle is understood to have contributed $25,000 to the Roosevelt campaign, indicating he has plenty of what it takes—or is taken when you have a bank roll and get into politics.

Possibly the state organization hopes that Mr. Earle will supply the angel wings which M. L. Benedum folded after the inauguration of Mayor William N. McNair. It takes money as well as candidates to run a campaign.

Two Judges May Team In Democratic Primary

Democratic supporters of Judge E. C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, would like to see a primary ticket in which their man would seek the Democratic nomination for Governor, with Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Greensburg, the candidate for the United States Senate.

However, Judge Copeland's backers have been pushing him as the candidate for Governor, figuring that as the top and most influential place on the ticket.

Judge Bonniwell, while in Pittsburgh—he plans to remain until Tuesday — probably will have a talk with the Westmoreland County jurist. It is understood they held some parleys in the East before Judge Bonniwell came over the mountains.

Incidentally, Judge Bonniwell was a guest last night at the home of Mayor McNair, a social incident which may not be received with enthusiasm by Mr. Lawrence, active in the election of McNair, and extremely antagonistic to Judge Bonniwell. The episode confirms Mayor McNair's statements that he does not intend to mix in the primary.

TAX CUT DEMANDED BY JUDGE RALPH H. SMITH

STRESSES NEED FOR MODERN GOVERNMENT

Today's article in the series the Sun-Telegraph is publishing in its campaign to reduce governmental costs through elimination of waste and duplication in governmental agencies, is given over entirely to proposals advanced by Common Pleas Court Judge Ralph H. Smith.)

By JUDGE RALPH H. SMITH

The government must continue to be an instrumentality of service to the people, whose agency and creation it is. To remain a proper agency of service and foundation for the general welfare, the government must, however, be changed or brought to meet an ever changing civilization.

Our present governmental structure sprang naturally from the political philosophy, social life and economic forms of Colonial America.

Essentially agrarian in their background, the colonists relied upon the soil and the sweat of their brows for economic sustenance. They had a heritage of distrust of any government removed a great distance from the governed, and a hatred of centralized control as a necessary evidence of autocratic rule. That self reliance gave rise to the doctrine that any man could hold the highest public office. All of these ideas were part of a political philosophy.

The social life of the colonies was likewise rudimentary. The family and the small town were the central units around which life revolved.

There was not the social intercourse between the various parts of the country that we now understand. Roads were impassable for many months each year; telegraph, telephone and radio had not yet been dreamed of; the locomotive and the automobile were many years removed from practical affairs.

In those days a visit in Philadelphia of a leader in public thought or action from a neighboring colony was an event of great public importance because the stranger brought news of an outside world.

INDIVIDUAL ERA

Economically it was a period of individual business and commercial effort. Partnerships there were, but the corporate form of organization had not yet become the popular agency for consolidation of business efforts. Economically the average man felt he had a chance.

With the spirit of the frontiersman, he coupled his doctrine of home rule and eligibility for office with an economic doctrine that competition was the life of trade and that government should not interfere in business.

The results of these conditions and philosophy soon made themselves clearly felt in the structural form of government adopted, characterized, as it was, by the constitutional limitation on the powers of the federal and state governments generally; by the insistence upon the adoption of the first 10 amendments popularly referred to as "Bill of Rights," specifically protecting the average man from any governmental intrusion in certain activities, and the erection of numerous local municipal subdivisions in which each man had an opportunity to closely observe the operation of his government at home.

FORM UNCHANGED

Times have changed, but the form and structure of government have not. We are still using stage coach methods in an airplane age.

THE RESULT IS A PONDEROUS UNWIELDY GOVERNMENTAL ORGANIZATION THAT HAS OUTLIVED MUCH OF ITS USEFULNESS because no longer adapted to modern economic, social and political conditions.

There is not the same essential justification for the application of the home rule doctrine to the smallest municipal subdivision in an age when, by reason of high speed transportation, radio, telegraph and telephone communication, and the wide dissemination of information through the newspapers, we live in what is practically a neighborhood world.

TAXATION LOAD GROWS

As a result of the application of old doctrines to new conditions, the modern taxpayer finds himself staggering under a tremendous load of taxes made necessary by a public payroll, on which one out of every 25 families has a representative, by the unnecessary duplication of governmental agencies illustrated by the fact that in ALLEGHENY COUNTY ALONE THERE ARE MORE THAN 245 LEGALLY CONSTITUTED TAX LEVYING BODIES, to say nothing of the army of tax collectors and other public officers working upon a fee basis.

The governmental structure is weakening under the tremendous load of accumulated fixed charges representing bonded indebtedness with its accompanying sinking fund, charges and interest. Immediate relief is necessary.

REFORMS NEEDED

Many suggestions have been offered that merit careful consideration. Certain it is that any final plan adopted to be effective must at least involve a careful consideration of the following elements:

1—Increased efficiency and economy in the operation of necessary and essential governmental services.

Much of this efficiency and economy can be accomplished by the adoption of modern methods to the business of the government and by requiring in government the same high efficiency that is required in an ordinary business enterprise.

2—Consolidation of governmental agencies and the elimination of unnecessary duplication.

There are many services rendered alike in which great economies could be secured and efficiencies accomplished by consolidation. Among many such consolidations attention is directed to the following:

a. School Boards and School Districts.

There are a number of rural school districts scattered throughout Pennsylvania serving a small population and having an insufficient number of students to make it either sound economy or good efficiency to maintain a separate school. Consolidations of this kind would result in greater efficiency, more economic operation, a higher standard of scholarship and a greater uniformity and essential educational practice.

b. In Allegheny County, both the city and county, operating through the poor district, maintain welfare agencies and institutions supplementing the work of state along these lines. A consolidation of such essential services would undoubtedly effect economies and result in a more efficient operation and make possible a better and more comprehensive plan for discharging the communities' obligation toward the under privileged feeble-minded, insane and indigent poor.

c. There can be no sound argument advanced for the permanent value of the maintenance in one county of a separate recorder of deeds' office and a register of deed's office. They should be combined and a modern system installed.

d. The city and county assessors' bureaus should be consolidated in one department so that there might not longer be the great differential on assessments of identical property between the two municipal subdivisions.

e. Tax collecting agencies should be consolidated. It is an archaic system which makes it possible in a city or borough for more than two or three people each representing some legally established tax levying body to get his percentage from the collection of a particular tax from the same citizen who should be afforded an opportunity to pay all of his taxes at one time conveniently.

f. The original necessity for establishing many of the second-class townships no longer exists and if it be not found advisable to abolish all second-class townships it certainly would be desirable to eliminate by far the great majority of them.

3—Equalization of Assessments.

There must be a scientific attempt made to establish a system for the equalization of assessments on a unit plan basis, such as has been adopted in modified form by the County Commissioners in the Workmaster Plan. This plan makes possible a greater equalization of assessments and reduces to a minimum the juggling of assessments for political advantages.

4—Equalization of the Tax Burdens.

By far the greater cost of government is presently borne by the owner of real estate. This burden is particularly a hardship to the small home owner who has had to bear a greater disproportionate share of the cost of government. A method suggested for a more equitable distribution of the tax burden have been:

a. The general adoption of a manufacturer's sales tax which has an enormous revenue producing possibility and has in addition the advantage of being most widely distributed.

b. A readjustment of a sliding scale for income tax so that those most able to pay carry their proportionate share of the burden.

5—Abolition of Fee Offices.

By far the more sound method of paying for service rendered to the public is upon a stated salary, rather than upon a commission basis. It is becoming increasingly evident every day that a proper salary will attract men of competence and integrity to public service. The payment of salary would make impossible the spectacle to which the public was recently subjected in Pennsylvania of seeing a public official pocket a commission of more than $40,000 for the simple service of delivering a check in payment of an inheritance tax from his office to that of the County Treasurer. Recent disclosures in Allegheny County have clearly indicated the tremendous yield in commission of the delinquent tax collector and the Register of Wills, each of whom received an annual compensation greatly in excess of the chief executive of any state in the union and not infrequently greater than the salary paid the President of the United States.

6—Abolition of Tax-Exempt Securities.

It should not be possible for any man acting individually or through corporate organizations to sequester a large portion of his capital wealth in tax-exempt securities which give to him a guaranteed income and economic security backed by the credit of the municipality issuing the bonds without any corresponding responsibility or liability for the maintenance of the government whose protection he enjoys.

7—Financing Public Improvements by Short Term obligations or Current Taxes.

A stop should be put to the practice of financing public improvements by long term tax exempt bonds which require the maintenance of a sinking fund payment of interest and the carrying of a fixed charge long after the life of the public improvement for which the obligation was originally issued. Our children should not be compelled to pay under long term bonds for roads and other public improvements which we have built and destroyed by use before they reach maturity and assume their share of the burden.

8—Redistribution of Wealth.

There can be no ultimate solution to these problems so long as less than 10 per cent of the population controls more than 80 per cent of the productive wealth. It should be a solemn obligation of government to devise methods by which there should be a more equitable distribution of the material benefits which could not have been accumulated without the very protection, stability and active co-operation of the government.

The adoption of these or similar measures would result in a reduction of non-productive payroll or reduction of the overhead cost of government to a minimum and the elimination of waste and duplication of governmental services.

VIVIAN MATTERN, 16, AND HER TWIN SISTERS, BETTY AND JANE, 8, RECOUNTING A FIRE

Miss Mattern, South High School pupil, with the twin sisters she roused and was pushing through a window to a roof when her mother reached them in their burning home, 1414 Westfield street, helped all to the street. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

FIVE ARRESTED IN ARSON PLOT

An odor of gasoline, which permeated the neighborhood, police say, led to the discovery of a plot to burn a house at 1113 Bell avenue, North Braddock, early today, and arrest of five persons on suspicion.

Chief of Police Walter Pennington, of North Braddock, said that Patrolman Paul Barron, investigating reports of neighbors that they smelled fumes coming from the dwelling, entered the place and found the kitchen soaked with gasoline.

A box of gunpowder from which two fuses led into the back yard was in the center of the floor, he reported.

TROLLEY GAIN GIVES CARMEN 6-DAY WEEK

Because of a decided increase in street car traffic in the last month, trainmen are going back to the six-day working week schedule, it was announced today by Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president and general manager of the Pittsburgh Railway Company.

Fitzgerald said January traffic showed an increase of from four to five per cent over the same period of last year.

This increase, he said, is also responsible for the fact that several two-men cars are now in operation on the various lines. There are not sufficient one-man cars to care for the increase in passengers.

Fitzgerald explained the agreement with trainmen calls for a six-day working week, but in recent months the company and trainmen agreed to a five-day week to give work to extra men. The agreement expires April 30.

THREE MADMEN STILL AT LARGE

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Three of four insane convicts, who escaped from the United States Department of Justice medical center here, were still at large today.

City homes and cabins and farm houses in this Ozarks country were barred against possible entrance of the three, one a life termer.

George John Standish, one of the quartet which used a hacksaw blade and a volleyball net to gain freedom, was recaptured by a hospital guard soon after last night's break.

Standish was serving 15 years for grand larceny from Washington, D. C. He was 32. Others who fled were:

Norvin Roard, 41, serving life term for murder, former World War soldier, sentenced December 2, 1918, by an Army courtmartial.

Albert Devan, 34, serving two years for counterfeiting.

Joseph G. Watts, 35, serving 10 years for escape and robbery from Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

STATE REPORTS JOB GAIN

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Labor and Industry Department statistics today showed a decrease of 101,616 in the number of unemployed during the month ending December 15.

Pennsylvania still has 791,721 persons without jobs, according to the report.

In a statement accompanying the report, Miss Charlotte E. Carr, Secretary of Labor and Industry, said:

"It makes clear the need for continuance and extension of CWA work in Pennsylvania. It also gives evidence that provisions of the NRA must be strictly enforced if the unemployment total is to be decreased."

Included in the 101,616 who went back to work were 75,301 persons employed on CWA projects.

Auto Bureau Gets Marriage License Application

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Marriage licenses are not in the Motor Vehicle Bureau's line, so there may be a slight delay in the wedding of Miss Evelyn Motsko, of Excelsior, and Harry Bogush, of Shamokin.

Their application for a license to wed reached the bureau today and was immediately forwarded to the Northumberland County marriage license clerk's office.

If the Motor Vehicle Bureau surmise correctly, the Northumberland clerk has somebody's application for an operator's license, which should have gone into the envelope that brought the marriage license application here.

RADIO RUM 'AD' WARNING GIVEN

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. — A sharp warning to radio broadcasting stations in the matter of advertising liquor on the air was delivered today by the Federal Radio Commission.

Broadcasters and advertisers were reminded that the commission retains the right to determine whether a station is "serving the public interest" and asked "intelligent co-operation" where liquor advertising is concerned.

U. S. TO PROBE PLANE COSTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The House Naval Committee today designated a subcommittee of 14 to make "a searching and careful investigation" to determine whether private contractors have been making excessive profits in building airplanes for the Navy.

Chairman Delaney (Dem.), New York, called the subcommittee to meet Monday for its first open hearings, and asked to appear "all who have any data as to profiteering at the expense of the government."

Eventually, the subcommittee decided at its initial meeting today, income tax returns of companies which have provided naval airplane since the war may be studied.

HOUSE UPHOLDS COPRA TAX

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The House Ways and Means Committee today refused by a vote of 14 to 11 to reconsider the Shallenberger proposal for a five cents a pound tax on cocoanut and sesame oil.

By this action it was definitely indicated the committee would recommend its enactment to the House when it submits the projected 200 million dollar general revenue bill.

The committee retained the proposal in the measure over the protest of the United States Chamber of Commerce, soap manufacturers and west coast refiners of cocoanut and sesame oils.

SCOTCH, 4 WINES ADD TO STATE STORES' STOCK

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—Addition of Johnnie Walker red label Scotch whisky—to sell for $4.45 a bottle—and four other brands of imported liquors to the state stores' stocks' was announced today by the Liquor Control Board.

The other brands listed are Cinzano Italian vermouth, $1.85; Gonzales and Byass Duamond Jubilee Port Wine, $2.45; G & B Admiral sherry wine, $3.55, and Florio Marsala Italian wines at $2.

The board issued a statement saying it welcomed constructive criticism of the state stores system and promising to investigate all complaints. The statement said:

"Undoubtedly, in the rush of getting the store system into operation, many things have been done that ought not to have been done and many things have been left undone. The system is now operating at top speed under tremendous pressure and there are still many rough spots remaining to be smoothed out.

"The board realizes that it cannot please every citizen in the not please every citien in the commonwealth, but it is making an honest effort to please as many as it can."

LIQUOR PRICES UNDER PROBE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—An investigation of the liquor business has been started by the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice.

Department spokesmen today said many complaints had been received charging that liquor prices are too high and that collusion between distillers was the cause.

The Federal Alcohol Control Administration recently has stated it thought the liquor business was a highly competitive field; that prices already had been reduced, and that more reductions were in sight.

Liquor Employes Need Not Be Voters

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Although employes of the State Liquor Control Board must be qualified electors of the county in which they work, they need not be registered voters.

Deputy Attorney General Harris C. Arnold so informed the board yesterday, pointing out that while the liquor control act requires that all employes must be qualified electors, the Legislature "has definitely separated registration from the term 'qualified elector.'"

Ignatius Tredistsch Lincoln Becomes a Buddhist Abbot

By Edwin C. Hill

IT'S a far cry and a long jump—some 10,000 miles—from Brooklyn and the gray pile of stone called the Raymond Street Jail to a cell in another gray pile of stone in the interior of China—the Tse Shan Monastery. One of this world's strongest characters has made this astonishing transition. The Ignatius Trebitsch Lincoln, who was a war-spy prisoner in Raymond street 15 years ago, is today the Abbot Chao Kung, in the religious house of the Buddhist faith.

Lincoln is but one of the many hundreds of white men who have embraced this old faith and its rules; severe rules, meant to humble the body and liberate the spirit. The Buddhist monks dress only in rags, sewed together with their own hands, a yellow cloak thrown over the rags. They eat only one meal a day, of the simplest food, and before midday. They possess nothing in the world except the rags they wear and the begging bowl with which they collect their food.

For a part of the year they live in the forest, with no other shelter than the shadow of a tree. There they must sit on their carpet, and even during sleep it is forbidden to lie down. They must abstain from dances, theaters, songs and music, personal adornments and perfume, luxurious beds, gold and silver. The good things of this world are not for the monks of Gautama Buddha.

And now Trebitsch Lincoln, the Abbott Chao Kung, has organized a band of 12 European converts to Buddha and will go with them to Europe to spread the gospel of the 227 precepts.

Strange Claims Of a Savant

SOME very curious news from London raises the blunt question: Is it possible that a distinguished scientist, a doctor of medicine and celebrated psychiatrist, a Master of Arts and a Fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, would deliberately print a series of fantastic falsehoods within the covers of a book?

Is it possible, on the other hand, that the statements which Dr Alexander Cannon makes regarding Tibetan magic, can be true?

The point comes up because the British periodical "Light" states that the London County Council called upon Dr. Cannon to resign his post as the head of a noted institution, but, after further inquiry, withdrew the demand.

It was Dr. Cannon who in his new book, "The Invisible Influence," went on a journey to the Grand Lama of Tibet and witnessed many things beyond the ken of human experience and belief. He saw a tree withered by a pointed finger, and used his camera to record the fact.

Nearing the monastery where the Grand Lama dwells, Dr. Cannon and his guides came to a gulf 50 feet wide, impassable. A messenger from the Grand Lama waited for them on the other side of the gulf. He told them what to do—Dr. Cannon and a friend. It was a matter, it seems, of being able to suspend the laws of nature, to lighten the weight of the body by holding the breath, by pure mental effort. In a few moments the doctor and his friend were on the other side of the gulf, but their guides and their baggage remained behind.

Found Lama Enveloped in Aura

HE was received in full audience by the Grand Lama. A bluish aura, three inches thick, surrounded the whole person of the Buddhist saint.

A coffin containing a dead man was brought in and Dr. Cannon was allowed to examine as he pleased. He concluded that the man had been dead for more than 24 hours. At the command of the Grand Lama the dead man opened his eyes, raised himself and walked to the Grand Lama, assisted by two monks. He bowed and walked back to the coffin, apparently becoming lifeless again.

No book, in many years, has stirred up as much controversy. Maj. Yeats-Brown, celebrated for his book, "The Bengal Lancer," and a veteran of many years' experienced in India, had this to say in the London Sunday Express:

"I cannot explain the phenomena produced by Tibetan magicians. I do not know how they can overcome physical fatigue so that they can run more than one hundred miles without stopping. Nor how they can conquer gravitation so that they have been seen to rise in the air, with no support between them and the leopard skin on which they had been sitting crosslegged. Nor how they can swallow deadly doses of poison without injury. Nor how they can pass at will into a trance which closely resembles death, with heart and lungs at a standstill. These are all well-attested facts, vouched for by credible witnesses. I have seen three of these mysteries with my own eyes," says Maj. Yeats-Brown.

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

A bride of today, black-haired Suzanne Trimble, daughter of the Harcourt Newell Trimbles, of Beechwood boulevard, chose an all-rose pointe veil to cascade over her lustrous ivory satin gown for her marriage at 4:30 o'clock in the Trimble home to Robert Henry Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Snyder, of South Orange, N. J.

The veil is arranged about the face with a coronet of the rose point lace and orange blossoms. Her gown of ivory satin is in the princess style with a long court train. The bodice has long, tight-fitting sleeves, and a high, straight neckline. Her flowers are calla lillies.

Her only attendant, Mrs. Harry O. Brahm, is to wear a sunset pink chiffon gown, having ruffles over the shoulders and ruffles from the hip-line of the skirt to form a train in back. Her horsehair and net hat is of matching shade, and she is carrying spring flowers.

Clayton Snyder is his son's best man.

Wedding Decorations Green and White

For the wedding the home is decorated in green ferns and white flowers, and the ceremony is to be performed in the spacious living room, decorated with feathery cibotium ferns and urns of white flowers. The prie dieu is placed before the fern-decked mantle. Officiating is the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten, rector of Calvary Episcopal Church.

The bride's mother is to wear sun tan lace, and the bridegroom's mother blackberry crepe. Both will have corsages of orchids.

A reception and dinner in the Trimble home are to follow the ceremony. Tomorrow night Mr. Snyder and his bride will sail for the West Indies, and upon their return to the States will be at home in East Seventy-second street, New York.

Biography Claims Attention of Epoch Club

Biography claimed the attention of Epoch Club members at their meeting yesterday morning when Mrs. Burt T. Anderson, of Wilkins avenue, was hostess. Mrs. A. T. Morgan reviewed R. E. Finley's "The Lady of Godeys;" Mrs. Nathaniel G. Symonds had "Stepping Westward," by Laura Elizabeth Richards, and Mrs. Frank H. Rea did Alice Roosevelt Longworth's "Crowded Hours."

Mrs. Morgan explained that "The Lady of Godeye" was none other than the editor of the famous old Godey's Ladies' Book, Sara Josepha Buell Hale, who inaugurated calisthenics at Vassar, founded public playgrounds and was responsible for setting a permanent day for Thanksgiving. Mrs. Symonds, one of the club's new members, brought out the fact that Laura Elizabeth Howe Richards was a member of the famous Howe family of Boston and daughter of the author of "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Mrs. Norman W. Storer read a letter from Franklin Delano Roosevelt's secretary in reply to one of commendation for the President's fine leadership. The women of the country can eliminate war through proper organization, the letter stated.

The bride wore a gown of blue crepe with a white beaded yoke and her corsage was of gardenias, tea roses and lilies of the valley. HOW RUTH ADDED AN EXTRA DAY TO THE WEEK

(AN ACTUAL EXPERIENCE FROM REAL LIFE)

Washing for Ten Took Two Days —until she tried Oxydol

READ MRS. NEARY'S LETTER

Mrs. David Neary
Torrington, Conn.

"Washing used to take all day Monday to do, and all day Tuesday to get over. But—by doing all the heavy work in washing for a family of ten, by making my clothes beautifully clean without effort, by making them so much easier to rinse and iron—Oxydol has given me back two brand-new days a week!"

READ Mrs. Neary's letter and you clearly see that this new laundry soap discovery has changed all her past ideas about fast washing and white clothes.

Why don't YOU try it? No matter what soap is your present favorite, try this latest scientific discovery.

OXYDOL is made by the same people who make famous Ivory. It's the latest, improved laundry soap invention of Procter & Gamble experts. And does these things no other soap can do or has ever done.

Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine, thus saves hours of labor.

Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades WHITER, by Tintometer test, than other soaps. Whiter in ONE washing than ANY other soap can get them in TWO to FOUR washings!

Yet it cannot fade or injure either color or fabric. Special elements are so blended in it as to protect colors against fading. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. And it's so kind to hands that you're amazed at its power to clean clothes!

It works without back-breaking rubbing. For it works by dissolving dirt. OXYDOL SOAKS dirt out in 15 minutes. So you never have to scrub and boil clothes clean.

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water

The new, improved OXYDOL will make thick "soft water suds" in any water, hard or soft. Without added "softener" or washing preparations. This is why:

It is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold.

Water in this district, for example, has been tested for "hardness" by expert chemists. And the OXYDOL you get here already contains just the right amount of softener to fit it.

You can see the results in the suds. OXYDOL multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Which means at least twice as much "soap action" as from old-style soaps.

We knew it had to be better to win women from older ways. So we made it better, and now we urge you to try the new, improved OXYDOL in your own home. We promise you'll save hours of labor. You'll get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter, without scrubbing or boiling.

You'll have no more fading colors; no "soap streaks" after ironing; no soap-bitten, red hands. And OXYDOL is economical. By actual test, a regular 25c package will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap or 2 to 3 times as much flakes!

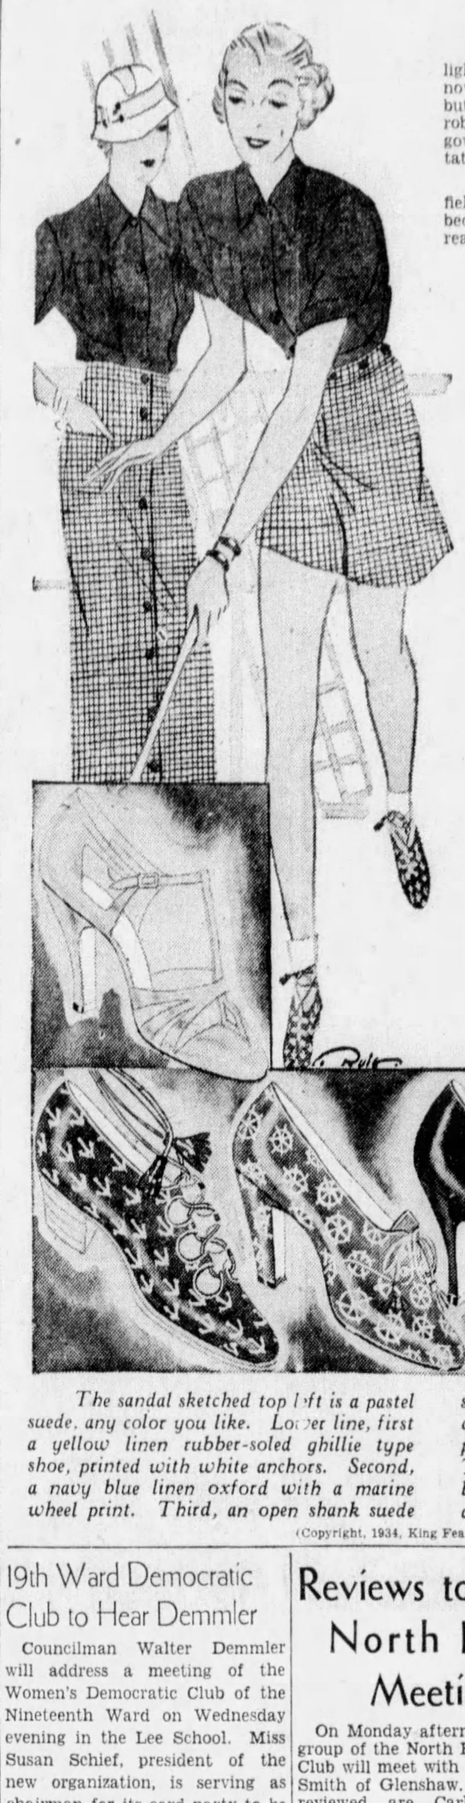
NEW FOOT NOTES FOR SPRING

By PRUNELLA WOOD



LIGHT FOOT WEAR (light in color and light in weight) is the stampede in shoes just now. Galoshes we may have on a handy shelf, but we are adding pastel suedes to our wardrobes, wearing them up here with spring hostess gowns and evening frocks, and with crepe spectator frocks and evening gowns if we go South.

Linen seems to be a lot of news in the shoe field just now, along with suede. (Suede is news because this charming material for some occult reason used to be sacred to winter shoes.) Linen is being put into oxfords, pumps, sandals, and flat rubber-soled sports shoes. It is to be had in the pastel rainbow, in such hardy accent colors as seal brown and navy blue, and in checked, striped, or printed designs.

Linen lines linen shoes, too, insuring a firm, soft, cool model that can be kept clean with a minimum of effort and wear.

It can be said truthfully, and with some rejoicing, that the sandal which was pushed out of the spot a bit by high cut shoes a year ago is back again with renewed frenzy. Barefoot models are just as rife as once they were with a great todo over pedicures involving bright nail enamels much to the fore on the Gulf Stream sector.

Those parti-colored shoes of suede with open toes are great numbers around which to build one of these fancy nail effects, and they do say that the blondes go for black enamel, which will set off a shoe of many Mexican shades, with green enamel a honey when that is the high shade of the particular shoe affected.

Shoes to wear with shorts when their wearer is indulging in fairly violent games have adopted the sure ankle-supporting swank of the ghillie type of shoe. When you must wear a flat-heeled shoe, this is one of the more becoming models.

Things I Never Knew 'Til Now

(Dope for dopes)

That radio station WACO is in Waco, Texas. (Where did you expect it to be—in Cincinnati?)

That San Francisco's Chinatown is the largest Chinese city outside of China, and Los Angeles is the largest Mexican city in the world. (The S. F. Chamber of Commerce will verify, but L. A.'s refuses.)

That on the San Francisco cable cars—the conductor warns all passengers when the car approaches a curve. (Whee!)

That the American public (chump to you and you and you) pays 13 billion dollars annually for crime. (It ain't worth it.)

That statistics prove that more people read the comic strips than the front page. (The same statistics also reveal, however, that between one and two million of the general pop. are feeble minded.)

That there is a sign in a local dancehall which reads this way: "Proper Dancing Every Night Except Sunday."

That women spend 85 per cent of the family income. (As if you didn't know that one!)

That in Java, a bride, on the eve of her wedding, burns all her dolls and trinkets and playthings. (What! No fun, at all?)

That if an Eskimo woman has twins—it is "conclusive evidence" that there were two pappys. So one tot "automatically" disappears.

That "stays"—the old-fashioned handle for corsets—were once an indispensable part of the male wardrobe. (Oh, slush!)

That the World War pensions may be paid up by 2038—so they are mumbling about another war, anyhow. (Hmmff.)

That the garage doors of George Krazy Kat Herriman's coast home are decorated with the faces of his family.

That it is impossible to convince a Latin-American or a Spaniard that C. Columbus was an Italian. To them he was a Spanisher named Cristobal Colon, born in Bilbao.

That the enticing sweet smell of newly-made candy coming out of sweets kitchens along the street is not accidental. (Look for the ventilating fans that force the fumes out, sometime.)

That the most expensive item in the equipping of a barber shop is the bill for mirrors. (Instead of good razors.)

That department stores charge each department regular rentals for window space, with the fees often running into thousands weekly.

That in Norway, doctors who fail to write prescriptions plainly are subject to three months in prison. (Oh, for a law like that here!)

That the iron in the blood of the average human being (not you, Bernie) would make exactly two carpet tacks.

That in New York hospitals there is a total of 7,093 bassinets. In Nevada there are just 49. Reno is in Nevada, catch on?)

That pure water is not colorless. It's slightly blue.

That the number of marriages per year today is about the same as in 1912. In the same period the number of divorces doubled.

That among those exempt from jury duty in N. Y. C. are dentists, embalmers, firemen, street cleaners, newspaper editors, artists and reporters. But the Pres. of the U. S. if a resident of N. Y. County isn't!

That according to Mark Twain—afternoon tea is an affront to luncheon—and an insult to dinner.

That in Hungary, movie houses, vaudeville houses, etc., are forbidden by law to call themselves "theaters." That title is revered and used in that country by the so-called "legitimate" houses.

That Cardinal Richelieu once advised sugar daddies who wrote to sweethearts this way: "Give me six lines written by the most honest man in the world, and I'll find enough in them to hang him!"

That according to barbers the hardest type of people to shave are reporters. Because they're usually fidgety. (Ever see a columnist?)

That you are not allowed to build anything except a Spanish type house in San Clemente, Cal. (It's a law.)

That the most illiterate town in America (why mention names?) is in Mass.—with an illiterate percentage of 10.2 per cent.

That Irving Berlin has written more than 800 popular songs. (That the two hardest words to rhyme are orange and nostril.)

That Arizona is considered by "penmen" to be the easiest of the States in which to pass phoney checks.

That among other nonsensicals in New York are two election districts in Central Park! (What, for the monks in the zoo?)

That in Lewiston, Pa., the girls, they say, gather in groups in front of drug stores and flirt with the lads. (That oughta get me an editorial from the Lewiston, Pa., whisker combers.)

MOVIE VIEWS : Opinions on New Pictures And Chat About Amusements : SCREEN NEWS

Styles, Humor On Stanley Screen

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

With a hey nonny nonny and eclat, the Stanley last night gave the women a fore glimpse of "Fashions of 1934," both as a title for an amusing picture and as an actual exposition of the matter supposedly so close the heart of femininity, the latest—or so we assume—in gowns and other finery. And what about the men? says Mr. You. Okay by them, too, says we with much assurance. Something for both sides of the house, and nothing could be fairer than that.

The premiere, for such it was as far as Pennsylvania is concerned, was attended by gala details, such as a lobby broadcast by prominent women and men, and the showing of stunning (the only adjective about gowns a mere man can command) dresses and wraps in a fashion parade of professional models on the stage.

"Fashions of 1934" is a comedy and you will be much intrigued by the manner in which a genuinely humorous plot is tied up with amazing displays of stun—no, no that won't do—with amazing displays of ravishingly beautiful apparel for women. As a comedy it is well acted by William Powell, Bette Davis, Frank McHugh, Hugh Herbert, Verree Teasdale and Reginald Owen—acted in such a manner as to supply almost constant laughs. As a style spectacle, it rings in some new variations in the matter of armies of marching girls in elaborate decorative sequences.

Mr. Powell is a style-stealer in this film, and Miss Davis and Mr. McHugh are his assistants. In Paris they forge the designs of leading couturiers for sale to American copiers. They also meet an ostrich rancher with plumes to sell, and Powell engages to make feathers fashionable again. He obtains the backing of a foremost women's tailor, ditches him when he learns that the backer is out to "do" him, then sets himself up as a rival style originator. Then the blow-off! The forgeries are discovered—and it looks like the bastile for our friends. But they are far too clever, and manage to outwit the accuser.

The romance, for there is one, is between Mr. Powell and Miss Davis.

Comedy Stars Tracy In Fulton

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Lee Tracy is giving the Fulton customers a taste of his old-time dynamic pep in "Advice to the Lovelorn," comedy drama that opened yesterday in the Sixth street house for a showing of three days only.

Tracy plays a reporter who is given charge of a newspaper column that has been conducted by "Miss Lonelyhearts," when she quits the job. You may be sure that Lee doesn't like the assignment, and he writes the first column under his direction in a manner that he believes will result in his discharge. Instead it increases circulation. Eventually it brings him "side money" for permission to use his nom de plume on various articles. Further along it brings him "big money" when he incorporates "beauty hints" for a racketeering merchant.

There is a tragic element in the picture, too, and a moment of danger when he turns against the racketeer and denounces him in his column, for which he is "put on the spot," being saved when officers arrest the man—not for his infamies, but for evading his income tax.

One of the amusing moments is the recipt of a letter by "Miss Lonelyhearts" from Tracy's own sweetheart, after she has quit him, asking for advice. The answer promotes an early marriage.

Sally Blane plays the sweetheart role. Sterling Holloway, as "Miss Lonelyheart's" office boy-secretary, adviser and bodyguard, is good for plenty of laughs.

Several good short subjects including Hearst Metrotone News and a scenic film in color, complete an entertaining program.

Week in a Night Club

MONDAY: "Now listen, you guys. I'm the boss of this joint—and what I say, goes. We're gonna open the 'Bird's Nest' on Wednesday night strictly as a high-class place, see? No tossin' the customers around and no paddin' the checks. Strictly class, see?

"We got everthin' with us. Before you know it, the 'Bird's Nest' is gonna be the talk of the town.

"Look at our location. Best in town, ain't it? You betcha. We got Glickstoer in the kitchen, an' if he don't know food, who does? He's even got a Chinese chef in there, an' who can make better chop suey than a Chinee? We oughta make a fortune offen the kitchen.

"An' how's about the show? Can you beat it for the price? Look at the line-up we got: Buddy Biff and his Idaho Indians for dancin'. Little Margie Cohen, that sweet singer of hot songs. Hoffnagle and Winona, the best tossin' act in the country.

"Then we got Eddie Scrunch to act as master of ceremonies, and he's the funniest ad lib guy in town. And Carl Burp, the radio rascal. I got Ralph Wonders' personal word that Burp is gonna be a sensation on the air some day. And to top it all off, we got them twelve dancin' broads that don't hardly wear nothin'.

"So how can we miss? A great show, fine food, the best kinds of Scotch and gin, a great orchestra—and a lulu of a location.

"We'll start off with a bang on Wednesday night—and we'll never let up.". . .

TUESDAY: "Everythin' ready now but the chairs. Them lousy bus boys is all the same. I told them to paint them chairs last week. So when did they paint them? This mornin'! If they ain't dry by tomorrow night therfe'll be a coupla dead bus boys around here.

"But outside of that, everythin' is perfect. I'm tellin' you, boys, that the 'Bird's Nest' is gonna be the town's playground after the openin' tomorrow night. And do you wanna know somethin' about tomorrow night? We're sold out, see? That's what I said. Sold out!

"An' we ain't gonna have only Broadway guys, either. No, sir. You know that mug I hired yesterday to be sort of head waiter? Edmundo, I think he calls himself. Well, he used to be at the Ritz, and he's askin' plenty of swells to drop in.

WEDNESDAY: "I wanna thank you all, my friends, for the applause you has handed me tonight.

"First of all, I want you all to know that the 'Bird's Nest' is your hangout. I suppose you can all see that the joint is jammed tonight, and that's the way it's always gonna be. I want to apologize to all them people who couldn't get in tonight—but that's the way it goes.

"We got the best of everythin' here. You just seen the show, and it sure was a lulu, wasn't it? (Applesauce.) You betcha. And now you're gonna dance to the music of Buddy Biff and his Idaho Indians. We was gonna get Whiteman here, but we got Buddy Biff because he's thinner. (Laughter and applause.)

"Once again, always remember that the 'Bird's Nest' is your night club. Tell your friends about New York's newest night club sensation, and drop in on us all you can.

"Now, before I sit down I wanna introduce a few celebrities in the house this evenin'. Right in front of me is sittin' Joe Limpenberg, your favorite delicatessen man. Stand up, Joe, and take a bow.

"Over there in the corner is that old favorite, Paddy Mulligan, ex-flyweight champeen of the amateurs. Give Paddy a nice big hand. And now I want you to meet that celebrated writer of hot tunes, Lem Schmoos. Lem is the writer of—of—well, everybody knows Lem.

"Boy, we sure have plenty of hot celebrities tonight. Over there on my right is——" etc., etc., etc. . . .

THURSDAY: "What did I tell you guys, eh? Was that a hot openin' last night, or was it hot? I told you we had the best location in town, and I sure knew what I was talkin' about.

"What's that? The crowd ain't so big tonight? Well, what do you think happens after an openin'? It's gotta drop off some, don't it?

"Don't you worry about nothin', fellers. If you heard the comments around town today like I did, you'd know we was in the bag.

FRIDAY: "You know what I think, fellers? I think our show ain't so hot. That's what a coupla guys was tellin' me this afternoon, an' maybe they're right. We got the best location in town, so we know it's not that. It must be the show.

"What's that? We only got four customers in the joint? Well, ain't that what I'm sayin'? I didn't wanna put that lousy band in here in the first place. Now it looks like I was right again.

"We gotta change that show quick, fellers, if we're gonna put the 'Bird's Nest' across." . . .

SATURDAY: "Hello, Frank. How're tricks? What's that? Naw. I stepped outa that 'Bird's Nest' proposition tonight. Sure. We closed the whole joint up.

"What was the trouble? Well, it's just what I told them other guys all the time. You don't figure to do no business in such a lousy location!" . . .

Birthday Surprise Plotted By Miss Bennett

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—He doesn't suspect it yet, but the Marquis de la Falaise is due for a surprise on the morning of February 11.

He'll get up expecting to spend his birthday on the high seas, far from Constance Bennett and from his friends in Hollywood. The most he will hope for is a birthday greeting or two by radio.

But Connie has planned better than that.

Just before the Hoover sailed from Los Angeles harbor, carrying Hank on a movie expedition to Indo-China, the star had a mysterious conference with the captain of the vessel.

She left a package in his care to be delivered to the marquis the first thing on the morning of the eleventh.

Inside, there is a phonograph record reproducing Connie's voice as she sings "Boulevard of Broken Dreams" for her new Twentieth Century picture, and a platinum locket containing four pictures of the star.

New York fans can prepare for a real thrill. Clark Gable is headed for the East on his first trip since he became a star. Time and again, Clark made plans to revisit Broadway, but always a picture came up. Now he has the studio's okay, and his reservations are made. It will be his first glimpse of Times Square since he flew to Los Angeles to take the part of Killer Mears in the coast production of "The Last Mile."

The return of John Farrow with a permanent quota number means that all his troubles with the immigration department are over and, if you can believe the gossips, that his wedding to Maureen O'Sullivan will take place in the near future—probably before she leaves on her vacation trip to Ireland.

John chose Mexicali as the point of re-entry into the United States. Maureen made two trips to see him during his stay, and all the Mexican officials gave him a big sending off party on the evening before his return to Hollywood.

"Tarzan and His Mate," Maureen's film, will be finished in about three weeks. Most of Hollywood expects the wedding to take place then.

Different Kinds of Bread Have Own Food Value

Bread Is Beneficial Whether Graham, Rye, Whole Wheat or Plain White Variety, and Is Combined to Good Advantage With Cheese, Meat, Eggs, Fish or Milk

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.
United States Senator From New York.

Bread is rightly called the "staff of life." It is probably the food that is eaten by the greatest number of people of the world. It is made in great variety, depending upon taste and locality. It may be eaten at every meal and between meals.

The different kinds of bread have different fdod values in the diet and their caloric values vary. For example, white bread has an energy value of 1,200 calories per pound. Graham bread 1,195 calories per pound, while whole wheat bread has a fuel value of 1,130 calories per pound.

One type of bread may have a greater vitamin content than another. One may contain a larger amount of mineral salts. Each type of bread contributes something of importance to the diet. It depends upon individual taste as to what kind you eat.

For a while, detrimental rumors were spread about the use of white bread in the diet. These were proven false and I am glad to say that white bread is once more returning to favor.

Do not be a fad follower. If white bread agrees with you and you enjoy it, by all means include it in the daily diet. If whole wheat is your favorite choice and you digest it easily, include it in your menu. But do not eat a certain bread merely because someone told you it was healthful. The taste and appeal of food are as important as its health-giving properties.

COMBINES WELL

Bread in itself is not a perfect food. It is not high in protein content. Therefore, cheese, meat, eggs or fish are excellent foods to eat with it. Milk and bread make one of the most wholesome and nourishing combinations of food. The milk supplies minerals found lacking in bread. When butter or gravy is eaten with bread the fat content of the meal is increased. Bread combines well with all foods and helps to give that satisfied feeling after eating.

Because of the wide choice of breads, this food need never become monotonous. Whole wheat bread is made from whole wheat grain flour. Its protein and vitamin content is believed to be higher than that of white bread, but to some it is more difficult to digest. It is often used with fresh fruits and vegetables as an aid in overcoming constipation.

OTHER KINDS

White bread is made from wheat. The high gliadin content of that grain makes a light and fluffy bread. In addition, its white color and fine flavor make it a popular food. Bread is made with yeast, baking powder or by "salt-rising" process.

Rye bread is made from rye. It may also be made from a mixture of rye and wheat. Caraway seeds are sometimes added to the mixture for flavor. Rye bread is dark in color and of a fine grain.

Pumpernickle is made from rye. It is prepared from a sour dough made by fermentation. It is a black bread of great popularity in Europe. It is considered a delicacy by many and is delicious when served with cheese.

GLAND DOCTORS FREED IN TRIAL

By SEYMOUR BERKSON
Universal Service.

ROME, Feb. 2.—Criminal charges against three prominent Italian surgeons for performing a human gland transplantation operation were dismissed by the Appeals Court of Rome yesterday, after even Dr. Serge Voronoff, father of transplantation theory, termed the operation "too advanced."

Dr. Gabrielle Jannelli, Dr. Giuseppe Ferrina and Dr. Gaetano Manfredo, of Naples, admitted they had removed part of a gland from a student and transferred it to Vittorio Lapegna. The operation was successful and Lapegna, now in Brazil, has since become a father.

The student, Paolo Roberto Salvadori, 24, of Naples, volunteered for the operation, and examining medical inspectors have pronounced him unharmed and in perfect physical condition. Salvadori received 10,000 lire (about $1,000), which he used to continue his studies.

DAINTY DISHES FOR HOME, BY PRUDENCE

teaspoon peppermint extract, ½ cup halves of walnut meats.

Slowly add the condensed milk to the confectioners' sugar, blending thoroughly. Add the peppermint extract and continue mixing until smooth and creamy. Form the fondant into balls one inch in diameter. Then press half a walnut meat on each side of each ball. Makes 18 walnut mints. Delicious served as an after-dinner mint.

By substituting an equal amount of vanilla extract for the peppermint extract, this fondant makes delicious stuffing for dates. Submitted by Mrs. William J. Brown, Dunlevy, Pa.

LIVER TIMBALES—¾ pound liver, 4 tablespoons butter, ½ cup bread crumbs, 1⅓ cups milk, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon chopped onion, 4 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Cook liver slowly in small amount of boiling water for 10 minutes. Drain and save liquid for sauce. Put liver through meat grinder. Melt butter in saucepan, add bread crumbs and milk and cook slowly for 5 minutes. Add liver, parsley, onion, slightly beaten eggs, salt and pepper. Turn into greased round or square shell pans and set in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 30 minutes, or until firm. Fill center with sauce made as follows:

Peel and slice ¼ pound mushrooms and saute in 2 tablespoons butter for 3 minutes. Remove mushrooms, add 2 tablespoons flour and stir until smooth. Then add 1 cup brown stock (water in which liver was boiled), gradually. Cook until thick, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Add salt, pepper and mushrooms. Fill the timbales with this mixture and garnish with parsley and slices of crisp bacon.

(If canned mushrooms are used, ¾ cup, chopped, will be required.)

Club size pans may also be used in this recipe. Submitted by Mrs. Emma Kress, North Braddock.

RUTH IN ASYLUM NURSING INSANE

International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 2.—Winnie Ruth Judd, who killed her two room mates, assertedly dismembered one of the bodies and shipped them as baggage to Los Angeles, no longer is the hysterical woman who sat in her death cell at the Arizona Penitentiary while her attorneys waged a battle to save her from the gallows.

Today—decreed by a jury to be insane—she leads a quiet, uneventful life in the State Hospital for the Insane here.

As the days pass in quiet array she has become more calm. But there still are flashes of the fiery temper that she showed during her many appearances in court, according to Dr. James R. Moore, superintendent of the state hospital.

To cast from her mind thoughts of the night when she murdered Agnes Ann Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, Mrs. Judd spends her time aiding the nurses in the care of the helplessly insane.

Evangelist to Speak At Services Sunday

The Rev. A. C. Palmer, evangelist and social worker, will speak at the Volunteers of America Chapel, North Side, on Sunday evening, February 4. The services will be in charge of Capt. Elizabeth Hoffman, who will also direct the musical program.

FEWER DIVORCES

:-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-:

By MARION BRUNOT

Hard Times Instrumental In Holding Happiness

The mills of the gods grind slowly. But not so slowly the divorce courts.

Yet statistics say they are slackening. The depression has had a hand in that.

After all, if a poor fellow can't afford alimony, well, he can't. And that is that! Without being wizards in figures, we all admit it is cheaper for him to have his wife in his own apartment, and acting as cook, laundress and general factotum, than it is for him to let her leave him and set up quarters of her own elsewhere. And at his expense.

Even so, if the only reason for a man cleaving unto his wife, as the Bible calls it, is a material one the more is the pity of it.

The sort of people who are always going around hoping for the best, are insisting there is a bigger, better reason in this abating of divorce. Some out and out moralists go even further and quote Scriptures, saying "what God hath joined together," and so on.

But practical reasoners, and they are the ones we depend upon, are declaring that at last men and women have adjusted themselves, one to the other.

We are all aware there has been a period of hitch-hiking in matrimony.

Women, somewhere in the dawn of this century, made themselves over. This had come about, after having fatigued themselves by trudging along a path infested with bugaboos and handicapped by prejudices.

OPPOSED DRUNKENNESS

A woman by the name of Frances E. Willard had given them no end of help. Frances was a kindly woman who was smart enough to see the danger of the corner saloon long before anybody else thought much about it. And she managed to impress this upon her sisters by having them wear white ribbons on their bosoms and massing them solidly against the husband who reeled home to his family.

In time, too much bottle became a reasonable excuse for divorce.

There also were the Anthonies and the Stantons and the Adamses and the Sangers, all women who were not afraid to have a hand in the remaking of their own sex.

And more wives separated from their husbands.

Then the Great War came, and women were made economically free.

Short dresses, up to the knees. Speakeasies frequented by women. Little glassed-in runabouts driven by feminine hands. Travel. Bridge. And why not? Women were opening their own pay envelopes with the office scissors. They no longer had a hairpin. Their heads were bobbed.

CLOSEUP OF LIFE

But these things are all history. And women have had time to do much thinking. We know the one great thing that came to us from the heap of all these happenings, is that we have been given a closeup of life as it is, and no longer do we look through a glass darkly.

But most of us also have come to the conclusion we cannot get along without love and companionship and home and children.

And to be as it should be, all these things should be in one place, together.

We have also learned, no matter what we individually think or what anybody else thinks, that it will always be up to the woman to do any domestic adjustment which is done quietly.

Men have other things to do. At least they are sure they have.

But how about it? What has been your experience?

Fay King States That Those Who Spend Save—And Tells How

By FAY KING

Although we may berate extravagance we must admit that spendthrifts do much to promote prosperity.

If we were all penny-pinchers the best of times would be dull. The necessities of life are few. It is what we all spend for those extras we do not actually need that sends money into circulation.

Those sums, great or small, "squandered" on "foolishness," are like pebbles dropped into still pools. The ripples are far reaching and benefit many.

We all like luxuries though they may be of different sorts.

Because some must give up their greater extravagance, others must give up their smaller extravagance.

Those who spend save—save many in positions that depend upon spenders. So do not begrudge yourself that little extravagance you can afford!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

A Cataract Is Easily Removed

I am frequently asked whether cataract of the eyes is a curable disease. It may be checked in some types, but only if correct treatment is given at the proper time.

The actual cause of this affliction has never been discovered. Many theories and explanations are offered, but as yet none has been confirmed. It is probable that the disease is the result of certain changes within the body which result in deposits of opaque material in the crystalline lens of the eye. This leads to increasing cloudiness which gradually dims the vision and may ultimately result in blindness.

Dr. Copeland

Cataract is sometimes the result of some organic disease, such as diabetes or arteriosclerosis. It is often associated with infections of the nose, sinuses, teeth and other vital structures in the head. When the disorder is traced to a constitutional disease, cure can only be hoped for when the necessary treatment for the organic disorder is inaugurated.

Though cataract is usually encountered in elderly individuals, it is not uncommon to find it in young persons. As a rule, it is a slow and progressive ailment. It may involve one eyes or both eyes.

A person who is told he has a cataract may refuse medical care because he believes the condition is hopeless. Another dreads an operation and neglects the disorder until the best time for operation has passed. Do not be misled by the many conflicting and unfounded statements concerning cataract.

If operation is advised there is no need for alarm. In the hands of a competent surgeon it is indeed a simple procedure and the results are more than gratifying. In advanced cataract there is no treatment except operation.

If both eyes are involved, which is usually the case, it is best to have one eye operated upon at a time. This is the safest procedure, eliminating the danger of a double infection.

Impaired vision, multiple vision, and other disturbances of sight, demand immediate medical attention. It may not be cataract at all and early recognition of the real trouble means prompt and sure cure.

Because of the blessed effects of skilled surgery, the cataract is removed. I can say in truth that of all serious troubles we can have, cataract is most satisfactory because it can be gotten rid of painlessly and quickly.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. D. R. Q.—Do appendicitis pains come on the right side? 2: What foods cause it?

A.—Yes, always on right side. 2: No special food. It is caused by infection.

A Reader. Q.—Would nasal polypus cause arthritis or rheumatism?

A.—No, although an inflammation in a nasal sinus of which a polypus may be the symptom might be accompanied by pus which sometimes causes the ailments you mention.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Agrees to All Conditions Madge Imposes

I had struck the right chord, the only possible one. I saw that, in the sudden change that came into Avis Arlen's face as I spoke of her green and silver gown. She is the type of woman who, even in the first shock of bereavement, worries about whether her mourning is becoming.

"You are clever as well as cruel," she said, with a feline smile that held in it the very essence of enmity. I saw clearly that, in so far as this girl's shallow nature could hold any emotion, she hated me almost as much as she hated Mary, and that if in the future any opportunity for doing either of us harm should come to her, she would not hesitate to seize it. Indeed, I was not so sure she would stop at seizing opportunities for mischief. My experience with her had taught me that she was perfectly capable of creating them.

"That is the one explanation that will satisfy Uncle Phil," she went on. "He knows how—fastidious—I am"— her tone consigned all other women of her acquaintance to a hinterland of sartorial bad taste—"and that I simply couldn't wear a gown so unbecoming to me as that one of Mrs. Brixton's choosing. Of course, I cannot blame her. She was looking out for her own daughter, naturally, but—I had no mother with me to look out for me."

DEFENDS MRS. BRIXTON

"You must not blame Mrs. Brixton, Avis," I said sharply, not because I thought it necessary to defend. Helena Brixton from this particular exhibition of feminine spite, but because I was anxious to draw Avis' mind as far as possible from the painful experience of the last half hour. "I was the one who planned the colors and the material of those gowns, and the only thought I had in mind was the harmony of color in the wedding procession. Frankly, there was no consideration of either Carolyn or you."

"How fortunate for Carol that the color is one she can wear nicely," Avis said smoothly. "But I am sure Uncle Phil will understand when I tell him that I could not wear the bridesmaid's gown planned for me."

"Yes, I am sure he will," I told her, secretly resolving that Lillian should see Philip Veritas[illegible] one[illegible] told, and explain to him, not the truth—in the matter I meant to keep faith with the girl as long as she kept faith with me—but the necessity we were under of keeping the color harmony of the wedding procession intact. I knew that his artistic soul could not help sympathizing, not only with the refusal of Avis to give up her green and silver gown, but with our insistence upon keeping it out of the procession.

"Then you will say nothing to anybody?" she said, and with satisfaction I noted that her eyes were drooping slightly, and her tone was a bit drowsy. Patently the powerful sedative Katherine had given her was taking effect.

"Not as long as you keep silent," I answered, then added kindly, "Now try to go to sleep, Avis."

SUMMONS LILLIAN

She started up, her eyes suddenly wide with terror.

"You're not going to lock me in as Noel said?" she pleaded again, as she had when she first came upstairs.

"No I give you my word on that, as long as you do not attempt to leave the room. Mrs. Underwood is coming in to sit with you until I come back, so you do not need to be afraid of anything, and the door will not be locked."

She sank back on her pillows as if exhausted.

"Thank you," she said sleepily, and after standing perfectly still for a long minute, I went softly into the hall and touched Lillian on the shoulder. She sprang to her feet instantly, and with a grin fitted an imaginary knapsack to her shoulders.

"Ready to take up the white woman's burden," she murmured. "What are my duties?"

"I don't think you'll have any," I returned in the same tones, inaudible to anyone save her. "Katherine gave her a sedative, and I think she's almost asleep."

"If it's like the one Katrina occasionally hands out to me, she won't wake in time for the wedding," she retorted.

"We'll worry about that tomorrow," I said, smiling. "Come on back to the room with me now, and then I must get back to Noel and Mary."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Engagement Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I have an invitation to a party in a nearby city, which is to be in honor of an engaged couple. I have met the young lady only once, but see the young man daily at business. Must I take a gift? If so, what would you suggest? I don't know whether it is to be a shower. I was hopeful that a wedding gift would be the only expenditure that would be necessary. The wedding will take place in late spring.

2—Does the young lady or her escort suggest the after-theater supper? K.

1—Under the circumstances . . . since you have met the young lady only once, and since it was not made definite that the party is to be a shower . . . I do not think that you will be expected to take a gift. And since the wedding is to be so soon, I'd suggest that you concentrate on the wedding gift.

2—The young lady's escort suggests the after-theater supper. It is he who is the host, and therefore it is he who suggests the hospitality-invitation.

Green Ink

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have heard several people say that it is very bad form to write to anyone in green ink. I have been unable to find any information on this subject and would appreciate any that you might be able to give me. Personally, I like green ink, and would use it, but hesitate to on account of this. MAY.

You'll be in the best taste if you use either black ink or very dark blue ink. Green ink, purple ink, red ink, suggest a bizarre taste . . . and that is something that we had better avoid. I hope that you will "hesitate" so long about using green ink that you will never use it!

TELL IT TO ELSIE :-: By ELSIE ROBINSON

Use Common Sense With Loyalty

Does it pay to be "True Blue?"

Does it pay to forget all your own interests and pleasures, even your own self-respect, and stick by a man through hard times and his own abuse, even after all his other friends have deserted him?

And do you get sweet kisses and medals if you do so?

Ask Blanche. She knows!

Dear Miss Robinson:

I have always read your column, but never thought I would write to you. Now I am asking for advice, for other girls—fools, I should say—like me, as well as for myself.

What do you think of a boy like this? I went with him steady for two years, bestowing upon him true love and much devotion, always forgiving him for all the hurts he ever caused me. Well, now lately we had a date, and he wrote me a letter the last minute saying that he couldn't see me, but made another date to meet me the next week.

I got dressed as usual and, sick as I was with a heavy cold, I waited for him for over an hour. He didn't show up, nor has he bothered since to make any explanation. Nothing ever happened to cause him to do this, except that I went out with someone else. You see I knew that he went out with other girls, although he denied it, even when he knew I didn't object. All I ever asked of him was that he tell me the truth.

HAS LOST TRUST

Now after so much abuse, which would take too long to tell about, I no longer love him, though I still like him better than other boys. Don't you think I am at least entitled to a few words of explanation from him, in repayment for the two years I stood by him when even his own friends forsook him? I was the only one who really cared about him when he didn't have a job and couldn't take me anywhere. I believe I loved him all the more when he didn't have a cent to his name.

My parents always liked him, and now I feel ashamed in their eyes, for they don't know what to think of his silence that is so cruel. I say I don't love him any more, yet maybe I do, because somehow it didn't seem like Christmas without him.

It's unbearable, but I WON'T write to him. It isn't MY fault. I have been nothing but sweet to him, always. Somehow all this makes my ideas crumple into a heap of ashes. I don't trust anyone any more. There is nothing I can do, is there? Does it pay to be a True Bluer?

BLANCHE.

Does it pay to be a True Bluer?

It does, Blanche—if you mingle spunk and sense with loyalty, and pick your favorites with discretion, which you obviously didn't.

STOP WORRYING

Just "being loyal" won't buy you anything but grief, unless you're loyal to something that merits loyalty. And you'll never get any thanks from anybody, anywhere, anyhow, if you allow your self-respect to be kicked in the mud. Cheapen yourself, and you'll be treated cheaply—in spite of your sobs about ingratitude. And that's as it should be, youngster.

For we should first of all be "True Blue" to ourselves—to our own pride and sense of decency—to the lives God has given us to protect and cherish.

We've no more right to waste and soil those lives "for love" than we have to spoil them by any other vicious habit—booze or dope, lying, stealing. And if we do, we usually get just what we asked for. You can't play with mud and keep your manicure, youngster.

And now, is there "anything you can do"? There is!

You can snap out of it. You can stop worrying about "explanations" and thank your lucky stars that this tramp has taken himself out of your life.

And you can get yourself a new set of ideals. Your old ideals deserved to "crumple" because they weren't real ideals at all. They were only a bunch of silly, sentimental hooey.

A girl with real ideals demands decency and fair treatment from a man before she bestows her "true love" on him.

Contract Bridge :- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Leading Against a Notrump Slam

The question of the correct choice of a lead against a Small Slam contract is one of great difficulty. Often it appears that almost any lead made may present the Declarer with a trick. This is especially true if the leader's hand contains even minor tenaces. On the other hand, other leads may be made through broken strength in the partner's hand and thus present the Declarer with a trick.

The hand below, which was played in a recent State Championship event, is an example of where one of two leads presents the contract to the Declarer, whereas an alternative choice of a lead of either of the other suits defeats the contract. In other words, a waiting policy by the leader pays rich dividends.

The hand was:

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ A J 9 ♡ K J 6 5 ◇ Q 10 5 ♣ A Q 10
♠ 8 5 3 2 ♡ 4 2 ◇ 9 6 3 ♣ 9 8 4 2	North West East South	♠ 7 6 4 ♡ A 10 9 3 ◇ 7 2 ♣ K J 7 5
	♠ K Q 10 ♡ Q 8 7 ◇ A K J 8 4 ♣ 6 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
4 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding does not require any particular comment. North rightly prefers to open with his shaded heart suit rather than notrump as his hand is too strong to pass. South, in turn, responds with a Forcing Takeout on slightly less than 3½ honor-tricks because he holds adequate trump support for his partner's bid. When, after North raises the diamonds to four, South responds with four hearts, showing a fit in the first-mentioned suit, North, with two Aces and the King of a bid suit, feels that a Slam try is not too ambitious. Perhaps South's bid of six notrump over four notrump, denying as it did two Aces and showing possession of values not already shown, was rather strong.

In any event, East was forced to make the lead. The North and South bidding should guide him to a correct determination. The club lead, in all probability, must be up to a tenace in the North or South hand, or both, while a heart lead is up to strength in the Declarer's hand, which has been supported by the Dummy. However, East knows that the hearts are not solid, whereas the diamonds have been bid and supported, making it probable that West holds no strength in that suit. As a matter of fact, either a diamond lead or a spade lead is equally effective in defeating the contract as North can find no means of avoiding the loss of two tricks.

TOMORROW'S HAND

If North and South defensively bid five clubs, should they be permitted to play the hand at that contract?

West, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

	♠ 9 ♡ A J 10 8 6 5 ◇ 8 ♣ K 10 7 6 5
♠ A Q 10 7 6 5 ♡ 7 ◇ A J ♣ 9 4 3 2	North West East South	♠ K J 4 3 2 ♡ Q 9 4 3 ◇ 7 6 5 2 ♣ —
	♠ 8 ♡ K 2 ◇ K Q 10 9 4 3 ♣ A Q J 8

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Household Hints

Nails will drive into plaster easier if you put them into hot water or hot paraffin for a few minutes. This will keep the plaster from crumbling.

Place a piece of chamois over mark in the rug, that has been made by furniture, for three hours. When the chamois is removed the marks will have vanished.

Soak combs in a teaspoon of ammonia to a quart of water. Allow them to stay for 10 minutes. The solution will make the combs shine.

Rugs can be kept bright if you will wash them once every few weeks with a cloth dampened in ammonia water. Two tablespoons of ammonia to bucket of water.

MENU QUERIES ANSWERED BY PRUDENCE

Prudence Penny, to clear the minds of her readers, has decided to make this question-answering day. By phone, mail, and in person, have come various queries concerning the Sun-Telegraph recipe contest, so here are the replies directed to housewives in general.

Women competing in the contest are eligible for as many prizes as their recipes merit. There is absolutely no restriction on the number of prizes one person may win.

Miss Penny has no preference as to types of recipes submitted. She welcomes all sorts.

Awards for prize-winning recipes are mailed to the winner within a week of the time the recipes are published.

Where separate sheets are used, the sender's name and address should be written on each sheet, preferably at the top.

There is no stated time for the duration of the contest, although from the interest displayed (several hundred letters are received daily) it will continue indefinitely.

No recipes will be returned, as this would entail unnecessary work for Prudence Penny.

Any reader, whether man, woman or child, may enter the competition. Prizes have been awarded to the old and young of both sexes.

If you have any more questions you would like answered, remember Prudence Penny is always ready to help you. Send in your queries and recipes, alike, to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. A first prize of $5 and 10 prizes of $1 are awarded daily.

One-half cup butter.
One and one-half cup flour (sifted).

Beat the egg and add sugar. Mix in the butter until all is thoroughly blended. Add flour and mix thoroughly. Chill. Roll very thin and cut into circles, large enough to spread on backs of fluted tart forms. Bake until delicately browned (about 12 minutes) at 375 degrees Farenheit.

Remove from fire just before it reaches a boil (about 1½ minutes of cooking). Allow mixture to cool slightly then beat in the soft butter with a rotary beater. Beat until smooth and very thick. Add almond extract and chill.

Method—When tart shells are cool, place a teaspoonful of butter custard in bottom of each, fill with large perfect strawberries (about six to each tart) and brush cooled melted jelly quickly over the berries to completely cover them and give a glaze. Two cups brown sugar.
One-half cup milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
One tablespoon flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
Two teaspoons vanilla.
Pinch of salt.
Approximate cost per pound, 10 cents.

Mix dry ingredients; add milk and butter. Cook until a soft ball forms in cold water. Remove from fire and add vanilla. Beat until thickness of cream, pour in buttered shallow pan. This recipe makes a delicious icing for cake or cookies, if after removing from fire the mixture is beaten until it will lightly hold its shape and then spread on the cake.

RELATIVES WIN IN WILL SUIT

Numerous relatives of the late Annie J. Dible, of Tarentum, won their first victory in the legal battle over her $8,188 estate when the Supreme Court in Philadelphia reversed the Orphans Court decision here refusing a grant to have a jury determine the legality of her will, it was learned today.

The decedent willed $2,500 each to her attorney, Emerson Hazlett, and her nurse, Louise Sefton, in whose home she died of a paralytic stroke, and the residue of the estate to charity.

The contest filed by relatives in Orphans Court a month after her death alleged that undue influence was exercised by the two beneficiaries who had received $2,500 each.

Rich Man's Will Calls Wife 'Undeserving'

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The late Samuel P. Scott, of Hillsboro, O., cut his widow off with a mere $75,000 because she was "undeserving of my generosity," and left the residue of his estate to Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, because a faculty member cured his hay fever, it was disclosed today.

Scott, author of law books and of a history of France, died several years ago.

ALONG with the salt and pepper put Heinz Ketchup on the table. The salt and pepper will be taken for granted. The Ketchup will be welcomed and enjoyed. (More people, the world over, use and love Heinz Ketchup than any other sauce that's made!)

Put it on the table regularly. Because, like salt and pepper, different people like it with different foods. Examples: The Chinese pour it on rice. In India they relish it with curried meats. And we know a man in Delaware who stirs it into his clam chowder . . . you never can tell.

Now the reasons most everybody just loves our Ketchup are two:

First. We are thoroughgoing about our tomatoes. We cross-breed prize seeds to get tomatoes still more luscious, still more wholesome. We rear the plants in our own greenhouses, then transplant them to fields, where we vigilantly oversee the care of the ripening tomatoes.

Second. We are thoroughgoing about our spices. We journey round the world for the rarest spices and make sure, first hand, that they are pure and fine.

These things make Heinz Ketchup so good, so delicious, so thrilling to taste that all around the world people love it best. Put it on the table. You can be pretty sure it will be reached for, poured and enjoyed.

SANSOM ELECTED PRESIDENT OF GREENSKEEPERS

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Pennant Breeds Holdouts • Break in Long Career
Senators Leading Majors | Another Floor Complaint
Only Four Regulars Sign | Giant Tackle for Army

The thrill that a baseball club owner gets out of a pennant victory in the fall often is turned into a headache the following spring when he tries to get his champions under contract for another season. They are pennant winners and expect to be rated above the field in salary matters. Under such conditions, it's hard enough to sign them in the best of times, and Clark Griffith has discovered that it's a great deal tougher to get their signatures in a year when pay cuts are in order. The Giant owners are having no trouble, because they didn't make any cuts, the explanation of the latter seemingly liberal policy being that the salaries of the New York players were slashed a year ago and could hardly, in fairness, be reduced further after the winning of the world championship.

Clark Griffith

But Griffith set about to shrink his payroll by cutting most of the big-money boys and offering only what the players intimate were microscopic increases to such men as Earl Whitehill, Jack Russell, Bob Boken and one or two others. The result is that the boss of the Senators has in the neighborhood of 20 belligerent holdouts on his hands, possibly more than any other club in either of the major leagues.

ONLY FOUR REGULARS UNDER CONTRACT

According to reports from Washington, Griffith's financial policy for 1934 is so far from being in accord with the ideas of his athletes that of all the men on the roster only four regulars have signed to date. They are Manager and Shortstop Joe Cronin, Pitcher Monte Weaver, Third Baseman Ossie Bluege and Outfielder Fred Schulte.

Two-thirds of the outfield, Heinie Manush and Jack Stone; half of the infield, First Baseman Joe Kuhel and Second Baseman Buddy Myer, and seven-eighths of the pitching and catching specialists apparently are still suffering writer's cramp from the world series articles that were ghosted for them, or strained their eyes to such an extent trying to locate Carl Hubbell's screw ball that they can't see the figures in Griffith's contracts. At any rate, they haven't signed, and the persuasive powers of the Old Fox are likely to be taxed by the situation as never before.

WITHDRAWAL INTERRUPTS LONG CAREER

One of the longest and most colorful careers in baseball is interrupted by the decision of Jimmy Burke to give up his job as Yankee coach and sit out the 1934 season in the hope that a long rest will repair his creaky legs and enable him to return to the diamond wars in 1935. Jimmy has been in the game more than 35 years as player, manager and coach, and has served on many clubs and in many leagues in the course of his extensive travels.

Jimmy Burke

Burke was a Pirate once, and figured in the first trade ever made by Fred Clarke as manager of the Pittsburgh club. Injuries to Tommy Leach left the Bucs in a bad way for a third baseman late in 1901, the year of Pittsburgh's first pennant victory. After Honus Wagner and even Catcher George Yeager had been used at the sack, Terry (Cottontop) Turner was brought in from Punxsutawney. Turner was dropped after a two-game trial, only to develop at Cleveland later into one of the star infielders of the country. Judd Smith, from Brooklyn, was tried next and released after five games, and then Burke, who had been with the Chicago White Sox at the beginning of the war between the National and American Leagues, was taken on and played in 14 games before the end of the season. In 1902, Jimmy divided the infield utility duties with Wid Conroy, while Kitty Bransfield, Claude Ritchey, Wagner and Leach were regulars, and before the 1903 race Manager Clarke made his first trade by swapping Burke to the St. Louis Nationals for Otto Krueger.

MORE INJUSTICE SEEN IN FLOOR RULES

Though the old basketball trick of pushing the ball holder out of bounds has been spiked by the interpretation which authorizes the officials to award the ball out of bounds to the player who was forced over the boundary, instead of giving it to an opponent, as formerly, court veterans complain again of another rule on the ground that it penalizes a good defensive play.

They cite, for example, a situation in which a player makes a long pass down the court, intended for a teammate waiting under or near the basket, but an opponent partly intercepts the ball and it caroms off his hands and goes out of bounds. The official blows his whistle and hands the ball back to the passing side, thereby actually punishing the other team for what the vets contend was a good defensive play that possibly averted a score. They insist that the defensive five should get at least an even break by the calling of a jump ball.

The point has been raised before unsuccessfully, the authorities taking the stand that the rule is as fair for one team as the other. The old-timers dispute this, holding that there is no other game in which a player or team is punished for a similar good defensive play that prevents a possible score. They think giving the passing side possession of the ball is an unjust penalty on the opponents, pointing out that in the court sport possession of the ball is three-quarters of the game.

ARMY TO GET FOOTBALL'S BIGGEST TACKLE

If there are no hitches or slips in the meantime, when Army comes here to play Pitt on November 9, 1935, you'll see the biggest tackle in football. Jack Torrance, giant athlete of Louisiana State University, at Baton Rouge, has received a West Point appointment, and if he passes the Academy entrance tests and weathers the plebe year, he will be found towering in the Army line season after next. As a rule, linemen don't get their names in the headlines, but as far as publicity is concerned Torrance should be an exception because of his mammoth dimensions.

Jack Torrance

This human mountain, developed in football at Louisiana State by Capt. Biff Jones, former Army coach, is not yet 20 years old, but stands 6 feet 5 inches in height and weighs 276 pounds. Despite his gross tonnage, he looks lean and wolfish in his football togs, a trimly proportioned giant, bulking as large as Primo Carnera, but more agile on his feet. Behemoths usually have slow reflexes, but Torrance is a natural athlete, who has put the 16-pound shot better than 52 feet, hurls the discus in near-Olympic form and plays such a lively cent[er] the basketball court that no rival has yet out[jumped] hi[m] Armstrong, tackle in 1931-32, ranks as Army's bi[g] an up to date, but Torrance will make that 230-pounder look like a midget.

PRIMO CARNERA (LEFT) AND MAX BAER AT MIAMI . . . . . HA, HA, HA! . . . . . NOW I'LL TELL ONE

Oh, this is a great business, this heavyweight championship boxing business. Everybody takes it so seriously. Here, for instance, we find those two birds everybody wants to see punching away at each other next summer, Champion Primo Carnera and Max Baer, the big song and dance man, fraternizing at Miami and in the most jovial of spirits, while Loughran, the fellow who is fighting Carnera for the title there February 22, is doing a lot of strenuous bicycling in preparation for the event, knowing full well

BOULIANE ADDS TO JACKETS' POWER

By CARL W. SHATTO

The return to top form of Leo (Tricky) Bouliane, one of the game's best forwards, came just in time to enable the Yellow Jackets to retain their hold on first place in the North American Professional Lacrosse Association race by defeating the Chicago Blue Ribbons, 17 to 15, at Motor Square Garden last night.

Handicapped by a severe leg injury, Bouliane was of little use to the Jackets throughout December and during much of January, but he almost stole the show last night by slamming home six goals and assisting on several others as the locals downed a foe they had been able to subdue only after two extra periods on the occasion of their last meeting.

3,000 SEE BATTLE

The battle marked the Jackets' first home appearance since January 16, but the fans apparently had not forgotten the sensational struggle of that night, also with the Ribbons, for more than 3,000 lusty rooters turned out to witness the revival of the feud, which, after such a long layoff, almost amounted to a revival of the sport here.

The Jackets provided most of the fireworks in the first and second periods of last night's skirmish by tallying six goals in the opening stanza and adding seven more in the second period to lead, 13 to 4, at the half. The Ribbons rallied to hold the locals even at 4-4 in the third period, and then gave the fans and the home representatives a scare by piling in seven goals while holding Suds Sutherland's stalwarts scoreless in the final period. The fans had visions of another overtime battle as the invaders put on their sensational spurt, but Goalie Bruce Cordick marshaled his defense forces in time to prevent a deadlock.

LAFRANCE STARS

Bouliane was ably assisted in putting teeth in the Pittsburgh attack by Harry LaFrance, who tallied four times, and Albert Vincent and Claude Jennings, who were credited with three goals each. Bain was the big gun for the visitors. He shared high individual honors with Bouliane, with six goals.

The Buffalo Indians are to meet the Jackets in their next home game, at the Garden Monday night. The lineup:

QUAILL NAMED TO BOARD AS MEET ENDS

By TOM BIRKS

William J. Sansom, greenskeeper of the Toronto Golf Club, Long Branch, Ontario, Canada, was elected president of the National Association of Greenskeepers at the eight annual convention of the body closed at the William Penn Hotel today. The new president steps up from the vice president's chair.

Sansom succeeds John MacGregor, of Wheaton, Ill., who served for the last two years and was not a candidate to succeed himself.

Fred A. Burkhardt, greenskeeper at the Westwood Country Club, Cleveland, secretary-treasurer since the inception of the organization, was elevated to the vice president's chair.

The new secretary is A. L. Brandon, of the St. Charles Country Club, St. Charles, Ill., and the board of directors elected are L. J. Feser, Wazyata, Minn. E. A. Dearie, Mt. Prospect, Ill.; John Anderson, West Orange, N. J.; J. A. Gormley, Cohoes, N. Y. Robert Scott, Baltimore, and John Quaill, Pittsburgh.

John Morley, of the Youngstown Country Club, Youngstown, O., was re-elected president emeritus.

TORONTO SELECTED

Toronto, Canada, was awarded the 1935 convention.

The delegates spent a busy day yesterday, many lectures were heard and business was completed. The annual banquet climaxed the busy day. Gaston Depew, chairman of the greens and public links section of the U. S. G. A., was the honor guest. He delivered a great speech.

During the afternoon, Depew, accompanied by William S. Haddock, chairman of the national public links championship committee, and J. D. O'Neill, local commissioner for public links, went to South Park and inspected the layout that will be the venue for the championship next July. While only a few holes were covered, the official representative of the national body was very well satisfied with the course.

Depew's speech at the banquet killed any hopes that the greenskeepers might have had regarding the continuation of the experimental stations at Chicago and Arlington, Va. The United States Golf Association, like all other organizations, is cutting expenses to the bone, and it must continue to cut if it is to exist, the executive stated. For the first time in its history the U. S. G. A. is ready to accept outside financial help. If enough of this is forthcoming from the clubs, then it may be possible to carry on the greens work that has already consumed $165,000.

The U. S. G. A. hopes that the curtailment will be only temporary.

YON TOASTMASTER

Charles Yon, former president of the West Penn Golf Association, was the toastmaster, and introduced the following speakers:

J. D. O'Neill, Charley Manning, vice president of the Tri-State Golfers' Association; John MacGregor, president of the Greenskeepers' Association; Judge R. M. Gibson, of Federal Court and member of the Oakmont Country Club; John Morley, of Youngstown; William S. Haddock and Fred Burkhardt.

The lecturers yesterday were Dr. E. E. Evaul, New Brunswick, N. J.; John Anderson, Chestmont Club, West Orange, N. J.; Prof. L. B. Smith, Penn State; Oscar B. Fitts, Chevy Chase, Md., and J. S. Schenck, of Pittsburgh.

Skladany Dinner Speakers Named

A list of distinguished speakers will take care of the verbal pyrotechnics at the testimonial dinner to be tendered Joe (Muggsy) Sklarany, Pitt's all-America end, Sunday evening, February 11, at the Fort Pitt Hotel. The affair is being staged by affiliated Slovak clubs of the district.

Dr. Joseph Dudas, of Monessen, a former Pitt student, will serve as toastmaster, and will have in his lineup of speakers Judge John P. Egan, Coach Jock Sutherland, of Pitt; Mayor William N. McNair; Mayor Joseph Franek, of Farrell, Pa.; John Sabol, of Cleveland, secretary of the First Catholic Slovak Union; Dr. H. C. Carlson, Pitt's basketball coach; Dr. W. D. McClelland, state athletic commissioner; George Tomascik, president of the National Slovak Society; David L. Lawrence, Coaches Joe Bach, of Duquesne, and Howard Harpster, of Carnegie Tech, and George Kosik, of Perth Amboy, N. J.

The owners, called into session by Widener, replied by protesting vigorously against the "high-handed methods of the Florida Racing Association." DUKES MEET W. VA. BOXERS, PITT SWIMMERS FACE O. S. U.

MOORE TO BOX HAMILTON IN FEATURE

Duquesne University's boxers and Pitt's varsity swimmers open a week-end of fairly intensive collegiate action as they perform before home audiences tonight.

Johnny Napoleon

The Dukes' leather flingers engage West Virginia's champion Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Conference punchers in a Duquesne gymnasium and the Pitt splashers take on Ohio State's seals in the Trees gymnasium pool.

Johnny Napoleon, one of Penn State's most famous boxers, makes his local debut as a varsity coach as the Dukes and Mountaineers clash. The Dukes have fought one match previous, losing a 4-to-3 decision to Wash-Jeff. They'll have to be at the very peak if they are to do as well against the clever Mountaineers.

MOORE FACES TEST

In what promises to be the feature engagement of the evening, Freddie Moore, captain of the Red and Blue squad, Conference 145-pound champion, meets the hard-hitting Towers Hamilton. The 115-pound class bout also promises action as Pete Puglia, of West Virginia, trades wallops with Duquesne's Eddie Carr.

A heavyweight bout, outcome of which will not figure in the scoring, will bring together a brace of footballers in Vic Vidoni, of the Dukes, and Angelo Onder, of West Virginia. The lineup of bouts follow:

115 pounds—Carr, Dukes, vs. Puglia, West Virginia.
125 pounds—Pfansmith, Dukes, vs. Espado, West Virginia.
135 pounds—Vernaccini, Dukes, vs. Capt. Neely, West Virginia.
145 pounds—Capt. Moore, Dukes, vs. Hamilton, West Virginia.
155 pounds—Roseto, Dukes, vs. Gallo, West Virginia.
135 pounds—Nee, Dukes, vs. Vorhees, West Virginia.
175 pounds—Chapala, Dukes, vs. Zaleski, West Virginia.
Heavyweight—Vic Vidoni, Dukes, vs. Onder, West Virginia.

A tentative lineup to be used by the Panthers in their water meet with Ohio State has been set by Coach Pat Corr and is the same as the one that handed Carnegie Tech a defeat in the season's inaugural last week.

Gornick Injured, Off Yarosz Card

Marty Gornick, Whitaker welterweight, is off the Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith card at Motor Square Garden one week from next Monday night. He was to meet Dominic Mancini, who also is out, due to a couple of injured ribs.

Gornick tripped on a rubber ball a few days ago and injured his nose in falling to such an extent that he will have to take time out to give the proboscis a chance to mend.

A substitute bout will be arranged.

Max Elling, of the Hill, and Andy Maskey, of Canton, O., have been signed for a third 10-round bout at McKeesport next Monday night. Mose Butch boxes Frankie Wolfram, of Winnepeg, and Nat Fitfin, of the Hill, meets Harry Bauman, of New York, in the two other features, and Johnny Birek, local lightweight, meets Jack McFarland, of Canton, O., in the six-round preliminary. Bauman arrived from New York today and will work out in the McKeesport gymnasium tonight.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' of Carnera

EDITORIAL FOREWORD

Now the author comes to the noisiest scandal in modern boxing annals—the uproar over the Bombo Chevalier towel-tossing episode in April, 1930—a fight, by the way, which Mr. See insists, was strictly on the level.

CHAPTER XVI

TOWEL-TOSSING SCANDAL
By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Champion Heavyweight Boxing Champion

But let us go back to serious things, including the Chevalier fight at Oakland, which provoked interminable controversies, gave rise to the most scathing criticisms, and ended with an unprecedented scandal, a double disqualification, a suspension of purses, all of which did Primo incalculable harm.

Tentative offers were made to Leon Chevalier, but all my propositions, however interesting, met with a categorical refusal.

Primo Carnera

"He has never laid down for anyone," came the answer. "If Carnera beats him, he must do so on his own merit."

Every overture was futile, the offer of even thousands of dollars did not "get" the Negro heavyweight for me.

"I have fought Godfrey," he told me, "your Carnera gives me no fear."

But, of course, the fight had to be fought. Chevalier was the best local heavyweight, the newspapers had given the match intensive publicity, and it was hardly possible to back out.

PRIMO LACKS PUNCH

After long hesitation, because I had the presentiment that I was committing an error, I decided to risk the fight.

Carnera was extraordinarily confident. His progress was remarkable. Each day his style perfected itself, his science improved, his defense became more perfect. He was training diligently.

Already his left was almost faultless, but his right—muscle-bound by the severe strong-arm exercises of his youth—was not so good for punching purposes. His blows were pushing; he jostled but he did not shake his adversary. It must be acknowledged that Carnera already boxed very well in 1930, but he did not have much of a punch then. For evidence of that, I often questioned his opponents with the purpose of learning their impressions of Primo. They were unanimous:

"He is hard to hit," they told me, "his left is accurate, fast, telling; but his right has no snap—no K. O. force. He's a bit muscle-bound, too, but he can box and step for such a big fellow."

All of which sizes up Carnera in those days. . . .

MISGIVINGS REALIZED

In training for Chevalier, Primo's form pleased me. He dominated his sparring partners with genuine ease. It did not seem possible to me that he would be beaten, except by accident.

As it was, an "accident" happened—not in the form of defeat, but in that of a great scandal. My misgivings did not deceive me.

The bout took place in the open air at the Oakland baseball park. While the first preliminary was being fought, several disquieting drops of rain began to fall. A downpour would have been a financial disaster for the promoter, because it would have required the entire refunding of the big gate receipts.

So the promoter, pale with worry, burst into our dressing room with:

"The main fight goes on now. Please hurry up . . ."

I remember that our dressing room was situated more than a hundred yards at least from the ring in the center of the grounds, and that Primo was still bandaging his hands while hurrying toward the roped square. As the principals were being introduced to the big crowd, the rain fell. And that was a handicap.

From the start the floor of the ring became slippery. Hampered by his great weight on the wet canvas, Primo had to abandon footwork, but, at that, he slipped frequently. He even fell down for a fraction of a second after one slip.

"I can't keep my feet," he said to me upon returning to his corner.

CHEVALIER CARRIES ON

Chevalier fought with the energy of despair. A victory over the giant would have carried him to pugilistic clouds in a single stride. And so this was probably the hardest fight thus far for my gigantic Italian.

Nevertheless, Carnera began to dominate the Negro clearly. Chevalier fought with rage, but began to weaken. At the end of the fifth round, Bombo went down from a solid right hook to the solar plexus. He picked himself up, shaken, and the gong rang.

In the sixth, Primo dominated still more clearly; the rain had stopped, it was no longer so slippery, and victory could hardly escape him. Once more, Chevalier was floored with a hard right. He stayed down for several seconds to recover his breath and then got up courageously.

At the exact moment someone from his corner threw a towel into the middle of the ring—a sign of surrender.

I affirm that Carnera and I were the first to be astonished by the thrown towel. It is indisputable that Chevalier, although clearly beaten in the last two rounds, was still able to defend himself. I am certain that he had no more chance to win—I even have the conviction that he could not have finished the 10 rounds—but I admit that the towel gesture, the surrender, was premature.

Now I believe that the reader will surely do me this justice and concede that, in the course of this narrative, I have not concealed the truth. If the Chevalier fight were not on the level, I would have no reason for refusing to stamp it as a "fix" or a "fake."

When the towel thrown from Chevalier's corner fell to the center of the ring, I repeat, Primo and I thought it was a mistake.

As for myself, I was waiting to see the referee kick it away and order the fighters to continue. He did not do so and the two men stopped. Primo returned to his corner and I climbed up the steps of the ladder, remaining carefully outside the ropes, to avoid having my man disqualified in case the referee, on second thought, should order a resumption of hostilities. I said to Primo:

"Wait, I do not understand what has happened." I even remember having added: "Breathe deeply, get back your wind. . . ."

Chevalier's manager did not protest and Bombo himself showed no sign of revolt. The seconds entered the ring; the referee, approaching Carnera in the midst of the wild tumult, raised his arm as a sign of victory. Nothing—save the booing, perhaps—could indicate that a tremendous scandal was about to burst.

I remember that Primo, his seconds and I covered the space which separated the ring from our dressing room in the midst of an indescribable uproar. It was a free-for-all amongst the crowd. We had encircled Primo in case of trouble. The hooting and abuse were triffic.

PURSE HELD UP

I also remember that Primo and I discussed the fight in our dressing room. He declared:

"You mustn't be sore, Mr. See . . . I would have won easily if the mat had not been so slippery; during the first three rounds I could not keep on my feet. I had been so stupid as to put on new shoes. But you have seen, from the beginning of the fourth round, I had him in hand. . . . However, I know very well that my right needs a lot of improving. . . ."

At this moment a reporter entered our dressing room, announcing:

"You know that there is trouble. The commission has just met and has decided to proceed with an inquiry and to hold up your purse!"

We did not have any uneasiness regarding the most searching inquiry. The contest had been sincere. But if our purse was to be confiscated, one must admit that it would be rather discouraging to engage in genuine fights.

BOUT BRANDED FAKE

The next day, the most stupendous scandal which I have known in a career of 30 years broke loose over all America. Newspapers denounced Carnera & Co. in his fiery fashion:

A DISGRACEFUL FAKE—HOW BOXING IS ASSASSINATED — YESTERDAY'S FIGHT WAS THE MOST SHOCKING AND THE MOST IMPUDENT SET UP THAT WE HAVE SEEN IN 10 YEARS—DRASTIC MEASURES ARE NECESSARY— etc., etc.

Telegraphic news services spread those reports that not only had the match been a fake which a 10-year-old child could have recognized, but also that Carnera seemed to have received one of those beatings which mark practically the finish of a boxer's career.

'THE DOGS BARK'

Primo felt hurt, incensed and disgusted because of that unfair fury. Both he and I knew that fight was sincere and we also knew (later events have proved this) that it was anything but a beating.

It was then to console Carnera and "kid" my boxing expert (friends and) foes that I adopted this ancient Arabic motto, so biting (to some experts) in its significance:

"The dogs bark, the caravan passes."

How many jealous or mistaken people have hooted and howled at the Carnera caravan as it passed along the route (of my original idea) toward the one goal: The world championship!

The caravan has passed, the end is attained, the barking is still heard but—for the time, at least—it sounds like a distant growl!

On the following morning I learned that a special meeting of the San Francisco Boxing Commission would be held to judge us. I therefore was expecting to be called, but to my great surprise, I did not receive any summons. I went, nevertheless, to the Commission offices because the promoter had told me that same morning that our purse was confiscated, and I wished to know why. I presented myself to the Commission, which was alreayd in session. Its president received me at the door of the council room.

DENIED HEARING

"But I have not summoned you," he said.

"That is true," I answered, "but have you not convened to judge us?"

"Certainly."

"In that case, Mr. President, isn't it usual to hear the persons who are being tried? Have you nothing to ask me?"

"No."

"Very well, Mr. President, I have some questions to ask you, and I beg you to receive me."

So I entered almost by force into the council room where the Commission, some newspapermen and many witnesses were assembled.

"Gentlemen," I said, "I am at your disposal if you wish to question me."

"We are not going to . . ." came the reply.

SEE ASKS QUESTIONS

"All right, I am going to ask you some questions and I beg you to have the kindness to answer them: To begin with, have you an accusation to bring against Carnera?"

"No," the President answered after consulting his colleagues.

"Have you an accusation to bring against me?"

"No."

"Then why has our purse been seized?"

"You will be paid," replied the president after considerable hesitation.

"Very well," I replied, "that is all I wanted to know."

The next day I learned through the newspapers that Carnera and I had been suspended forever in California and that a demand had been made that this penalty should be extended throughout the rest of the United States.

Yet, eight days later, under threat of suit, our whole purse was paid to us.

I let the reader judge concerning that method of procedure: if we were guilty, the first duty of the commission was to confiscate the purse. Their authorization to the promoter to settle with us implied that the fight had been genuine. Thus, our suspension was arbitrary and thoroughly unjust.

Other states followed California's lead and suspended us, but even that did not stop the Carnera caravan. In the five months which followed, in spite of being disqualified on all sides, Primo fought in packed houses not less than nine times!

CANN RESIGNS N. Y. U. POST

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—For the second time in three years but for totally dissimilar reasons, New York University was forced to look about for a new head football coach today.

Howard G. (Jake) Cann, appointed to the post in January, 1932, as successor to dynamic John F. (Chick) Meehan when N. Y. U. decided to de-emphasize the game, resigned suddenly last night after being subjected to heavy undergraduate fire for months. He retains his post, however, as basketball coach and assistant professor and director of physical training.

Indications pointed strongly today to Arthur H. (Archie) Roberts, of Holyoke, Mass., as new head coach.

WILLIGS DOWN OILERS; HYATT BRILLIANT

By JESS CARVER

The Willigs won the ball game, but the return of Chipper Charley Hyatt to the scene of his first basketball triumphs was both an artistic and financial success.

A greater player than even his most ardent admirers dreamed, Chipper Charley performed in dazzling fashion last night as he led his Tulsa Diamond-X Oilers, national A. A. U. champions, against the embattled Willigs, formerly of the Allegheny County League and conceded to be the best basketball outfit this sector has glimpsed since the days of the famous Morrys. The Willigs, handicapped by the absence from the lineup of two stars, Fred Brand, center, and Timmy Lawry, forward, stayed in there with their more famous opponents for 40 minutes of rousing action and by a brilliant scoring splurge in the last two minutes of play, stood a crowd of 2,500 fans on their collective ears with a 34-to-31 victory.

HYATT BRILLIANT

Hyatt played a brilliant all-round game, led both teams in scoring and even went so far as to give the crowd, which was ready to put the razz on at the least excuse, a real one when he pulled a boner of the first magnitude. He forgot to report to the referee when he re-entered the game in the second half and his mental lapse added a point to the Willigs' total.

The game was stowed away by a set of former Schenley High School stars, which fact very loudly was called to the attention of all and sundry by the irrepressible Jackie Powell at the conclusion of the struggle. Fred Crum's field goal from close under the hoop put the Willigs ahead at 32 to 31 after they'd overcome an early second-half lead piled up by the Oilers and then Mauno Siljander, playing his first game for the Willigs since his graduation from Westminster, threw one that had nothing on it but a prayer. It was a good prayer, however, and the ball game was on the old ice. The teams were tied at 15-15 at half time.

SMITH GUARDS HYATT

To Don Smith, former Pitt star, was turned over the task of guarding Hyatt, and what a swell job Smitty turned in. When he personally was taking care of the star, Charley had his hands full. Once or twice, Smith was forced to shift to another man, and on those occasions, Charley came through. As it was, he bagged five field goals and as many fouls for a 15-point total. Crum led the attack for the Willigs with six baskets.

It was the opinion of the majority of critics following the contest that while the Oilers are a real ball club, that they'd be a lost one with Hyatt out of there.

Between halves, Mrs. DeWitt Hyatt, Charley's mother, was presented a huge box of flowers. The inclosed card bore no name and read:

"To the mother of the world's greatest."

In a preliminary game, the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Bobcats were defeated by the Schenley Heights Falcons, 24 to 15. The lineups:

SPORT VIGNETTES

And still some more about those two Joe Stecher-Yousoff Hussane wrestling matches in Exposition Hall, almost a decade and a half ago . . . First we had the battles revived by the appearance here recently of Milo Steinhorn, a former partner of Hussane, the Turk, who now is a hotelkeeper near Constantinople . . . Then we had the version of Bill Peet, referee of the first meeting . . . Now, from Charley Reinecke, referee of the return bout, comes a letter from faroff Los Angeles.

Reinecke writes: "I recently read in your Vignettes a story about the Stecher-Hussane matches of years ago. I was a spectator at the first show and was the referee of the second bout . . . Stecher was a far superior wrestler and the outcome was a foregone conclusion. . . . I notice that Peet writes you from Honolulu that he thought the works were in in the first bout and that's why he stopped it and declared Stecher the winner. There was no question about the second bout at any stage.

"You probably will recall that Jim Londos, the present champion, was in a preliminary of one of those shows, against Butch (Mort) Henderson, the erstwhile Masked Marvel, and he wrestled. . . . The matmen did not perform then as they do now. . . . I note in your paper that wrestling is having a revival in Pittsburgh, and I want to say that Pittsburgh gets more real wrestling than the fans do out here, but they draw better here. . . . I have to laugh at the idea of a man like Jim Browning standing up and letting an opponent jump up in the air and drop-kick him. . . . It is like having a football player set himself for a catch and then put his hands behind him and let the ball hit him on the head. . . . Raw? I'll say it's raw.

"I have been out here (my address is 142 South LaBrea street, Los Angeles) for more than a year . . . I had a very serious automobile accident . . . Was thrown out of the car and had the machine land on top of me, and I still feel the effects."

Reinecke, a former wrestler himself and later coach of the Pitt wrestling squad and referee of matches, enclosed a lot of clippings on wrestling from the California newspapers to illustrate what a hippodrome the sport is out there . . . Joe Savoldi and Browning recently wrestled in Los Angeles and Browning won the first fall with an airplane scissors in 27 minutes, and Savoldi took the second with a drop-kick to the chin . . . At 11:15, the bout was stopped under a "curfew" law, and then the fans went into action, rioting and almost wrecking the arena . . . The wrestlers finally had to be brought back to finish the match, which Browning won at 12:20 a. m. . . . Nothing was said in advance of the bout to the effect that it was to be limited in time.

Johnny Datto has left for Los Angeles to do some boxing in the Middle West and eventually expects to arrive back in Pittsburgh . . . Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, now is a referee in California and they say he is a good one, making a snappy appearance in the ring . . . Joe Marcus, who was around here for a time, now is back in his old home town, Portland, Ore.—HARRY KECK.

SCHOOL FIVES RESUME PLAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

Inactive in so far as league warfare is concerned since last Friday, members of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League usher in the second half of their championship sectional races this afternoon and evening with a full program of games.

Of the 19 sections enrolled in the W. P. I. A. L., only one will not see action tonight, the members of Section V enjoying another day of rest. All other divisions offer full programs of contests.

The City League members, however, will remain idle, no championship games being listed for disposal. Allegheny High, a member of Section II, will invade Steubenville to meet the scholastic passers of that city.

Two games are scheduled in the Catholic High School League, while in the Junior W. P. I. A. L., contests are listed in three of the four sections. Section III will be the only group in this league that will remain idle.

The officials of the Junior W. P. I. A. L. have completed arrangements to present trophies to all four winners in the sectional races as well as a championship trophy to the winner in the eliminations.

Rankin High School, coached by Jock Rosenberg, is going to bear watching in the second half of the race for the Section VIII championship. Rankin suffered only one setback in the first half of the race, bowing to Scott High, of North Braddock, which is still undefeated. Scott, however, lost five veterans at the close of the first half and may find the going down the home stretch extremely rough.

Pete Bostwick, internationally-known horseman, today branded as false reports he would give up steeplechase riding.

Testimony that he acquired the narcotic habit in an effort to keep down his weight so he could continue riding race horses was given in Federal Court at Cincinnati by Charles E. Cullen, 38, a former jockey, of Hamilton, Ont.

Cliff Bolton, utility catcher and pinch hitter for the Washington Senators, today returned his 1934 contract unsigned.

COX TAKES LEAD IN 'CALIENTE OPEN PLAY

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn public links professional, with 139, was leading the Agua Caliente open golf tournament today as the field passed the half-way mark. He added a 70 yesterday to a first round 69.

Dogging the footsteps of Cox were Willie Hunter, third high money winner of 1933, from Culver City, Cal., and Paul Runyan, the slight-of-stature pro defending the title. The slender White Plains (N. Y.) youth shot a 72 on the second 18 for his 141 score, while Hunter shaved a stroke off par for a 70 to match with his 71 on the opening day.

Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., who led the opening day parade with a course record of 67, had putter trouble and dropped to a 77 on the second round.

Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y., a junior sensation only a few years ago, galloped around the course in 68, for a two-round total of 145. Denny Shute, British open champion, also had a 36-hole count of 145, thanks to a fine 70 yesterday.

Julius Ackerbloom, of Little Rock, Ark., joined the circle of players able to break 70 by turning in a score of 69 and a two-day compilation of 146.

Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, who trailed Wood by only six shots for the first 18 holes, fell down yesterday and took a 77 for a two-day score of 150.

DOLLAR ACTION STEMS STOCK ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—The new and smaller gold dollar acted temperamental in foreign exchange dealings today and stocks were inclined to stem their advancing enthusiasm.

Notwithstanding sizable purchases of gold abroad by New York banks and the supporting two billion dollar equalization fund of the Treasury, the British pound dropped about 6 cents in terms of the United States unit and other leading European currencies were similarly heavy.

Grains and other commodities offered little aid to equities, but cotton was about steady. Bonds, paying meager attention to stocks, again moved ahead vigorously.

Some of the metal shares were in demand for advances of 1 to 2 points. A few specialties found new followings. Most of the alcohol group sagged 1 to 2. Merchandising issues were firm. The utilities showed improving tendencies. Various oils also did better. The aircrafts were in supply. The steels eased and most of the so-called leaders held to a narrow groove. Profit-taking in the first hour caused the ticker tape to lag behind floor transactions, but the pace slowed appreciably later.

Selling in some of the alcohols followed word from Washington that the Department of Justice had begun an investigation of complaints of an alleged liquor trust. The Federal Trade Commission, it was also reported, had also started gathering material for a proposed inquiry into distiller operations.

Trade and industrial news of an optimistic character continued plentiful. Dun & Bradstreet found that retail business in many sections during the week had reached the largest totals for any January since 1929. Based on the strength of consumer demand, it was said, retailers have set their buying budgets from 15 to 40 per cent ahead of last year's.

Inquiries for locomotives from several of the larger rail systems were reported, as was the order of nearly 3,000 cars from one of the carriers.

An increase in carloadings of 1,136 for the week ended January 17, was not quite up to the seasonal trend. At the same time the total of 561,566 cars was 86,264 ahead of the like 1933 week.

WHEAT TAKES NEW TUMBLE

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Fresh downturns in wheat prices early today resulted from lack of aggressive buying. A material new fall of British exchange rates had some bearish influence.

Opening ½ to 1¼ lower, wheat afterwards rallied somewhat. Corn started at ⅛ to ¼ decline, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

For the time being, wheat market rallies not only failed to reach yesterday's close, but were not well maintained. July delivery of wheat, representing the 1934 new crop as distinguished from wheat already in bins was subjected to persistent selling on the part of commission houses. Corn and oats eased with wheat, although notice was taken that the current hog and corn price ratio had become the best in several months.

Provisions sympathized with setbacks of cereals, and almost ignored a sharp upturn of hog values.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Youngstown Steel Schedules Expand

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Steel production in the Youngstown district rose from 40 to about 45 per cent of capacity with the lighting of several additional open hearth furnaces by Republic Steel Corporation.

New Money Basis Well Received

By B. C. FORBES

AMERICANS and the rest of the world calmly accepted the lowering of the gold value of the dollar from 100 cents to 59 cents.

Events had amply prepared everybody for this historic step.

The immediate response on the security markets was favorable. Stocks and lower-priced bonds advanced briskly when the gong sounded at the opening of the New York Stock Exchange at 10 a. m. yesterday. Commodity exchanges reflected modest cheerfulness.

Mr. Forbes

A new responsibility devolves upon powerful banking and industrial leaders. They have been declaring very persistently that they felt constrained to hold back more or less until they knew just what our money was to be worth, and that the satisfactory removal of this uncertainty would induce them to go ahead with increased confidence.

It is now up to influential financial and business interests to make good, to resume something approaching traditional American enterprise and courage.

It is to be hoped profoundly that from now on more aggressiveness, more progress, more enterprise will be exercised by those who control banking purse-strings and by those who fill pay envelopes.

In my huumble opinion, the dollar is little likely to sink internationally below the newly-prescribed level of 59.06 cents. Rather is the two-billion-dollar "stabilization fund" likely to be drawn upon to keep the international value of the dollar down.

We are a creditor nation on a large scale, we continue to sell to other people more than we buy from them, we have by far the largest stock of gold in the world, we are the most productive nation on the face of the earth, we have developed the science of industrial management beyond any point ever reached by other lands, we have inspiringly vast natural wealth, we lead the world in inventive genius, our workers are unmatched in skill and productiveness, we are threatened by no social revolution, our corporate securities appeal to investors in every civilized land.

Therefore, it is entirely logical, if not inevitable, that, in the now counted upon absence of flagrant dilution of our currency by printing-press money, the world will set a high value upon the American dollar.

To dissipate any large part of the two-and-a-half-billion-dollar "windfall" coming to the government through the lowering of the gold content of the dollar, in fighting the world if it persists in appraising the dollar appreciably above the 59 cents level, would seem to be a questionable policy.

In view of our rapidly swelling public debt, and in view also of the fact that it may become necessary to draw upon this fund rather heavily to support the market for U. S. government bonds, it would be well to husband this fund very prudently—as John D. Rockefeller impressed upon two autoists visiting his home in the day of open automobiles, when they protested against accepting his proffer of paper vests for their home-going journey, "a surplus never hurts."

What Washington must vigilanty guard against is following any course calculated needlessly to aggravate our impending staggering government deficit.

TRADE REVIVAL EXTENDED

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Improvement in retail sales was an outstanding feature of trade and business trends in January, which revealed "a definite revival in all branches." Dun and Bradstreet said in their weekly trade review today.

In many sections, said the agency, retail business reached the largest totals for any January since 1929, with volume "distributed more evenly to all departments, instead of being confined to those where clearance events were in progress." The review continued:

"The semi-stabilization of the dollar has allayed unrest on that score, and will allow business to proceed with more surety. The retail gains of the previous week not only were extended, but a steadier broadening spread benefits to a greater diversity of merchandise. Wholesale markets are now getting into full swing."

New York Reserve Bank Rate Reduced

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The New York Federal Reserve Bank yesterday reduced the rediscount rate to 1½ per cent from the 2 per cent rate which had been in effect since October 20 last.

The new 1½ per cent rate—which is the rate at which member banks may borrow from the reserve—is the lowest since 1931, and is the lowest for any of the worlds' leading central banks. The Bank of England's discount rate is 2 per cent, and the Bank of France, 2½.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 2.—The market was due unchanged, opened unchanged to ¼d lower, but at 1:20 p. m. was ⅛ to ⅜d higher.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Paige glanced at the two plainclothesmen and shrank away. He understood that Anderson could be merciless when he so desired.

"Very well," he answered at last. "I'll tell you but I hope you'll tell Mrs. Deane that you wormed it out of me and that I didn't want to do it. If you really want to know the truth, there was a time when she was known as 'Cat's-Eye Annie.' Guess the London police can give you the facts. Anyway she was accused of the murder of an old woman for whom she was a maid. She was tried on the charge and came mighty close to being convicted. Police said it was homicidal lust—or something like that. But they couldn't prove any motive and so she got off.

"She was once Sunny's nurse, and my wife had always loved her. Her own mother was dead, and old Deane had really been a second mother to her. So she went after her and brought her home to live with her as a maid. Maybe old Deane was bad once—but she hasn't been since then. She loved my wife devotedly and would gladly have given her own life for hers."

"Why didn't you want to tell us about her?" asked Anderson.

"Well, she knew that she didn't do it and she knew that you would believe that she did. After the other case, even if she was acquitted, nothing could have saved her. I was sorry for the poor old soul."

A Similar Death

"Why were you willing to do it, Paige?" persisted Anderson. "Surely you knew the importance of this. The woman may be crazy and have murdered your wife in a fit of insanity. How was her other mistress killed?"

Paige stared miserably at the Venetian panels on the office door.

"Strangled!" he gulped at last.

"And yet you never told us!" exclaimed Anderson. "Come, tell us why not?"

"Because she knew that Sunny and I had quarreled terribly on the two days before she was killed—Saturday and Sunday. She heard me threaten to take the jewel and she knew that I was in the devil of a hole about money. I promised that I wouldn't tell on her if she wouldn't mention any of those things to the police. And she knew——"

"Yes?" prompted the inspector.

"She knew that I had had some girls out there while Sunny was away." Paige hung his head in shamed dejection.

"Anything else?"

"No—that's the whole truth, so help me God!"

"That's all for tonight then," said Anderson rising. "Jones, you accompany Mr. Paige back to his hotel. Reynolds, you may wait here while I write out a warrant for Mrs. Deane's arrest. Bring her in as soon as you can locate her and let me know at once. We will hold her for investigation and as a material witness."

Woman Arrested

Anderson seated himself at his desk again and rapidly penned a few lines. Then he turned to us. His face was lined with weariness and worry.

"It's beyond me," he said. "A husband who steals from his wife—a frenzied lover crazed with jealousy—and a maid with a homicidal lust. God help us! It's not a question of who could have killed poor little Sunny Paige—but of which one did it!"

Mrs. Deane was arrested that same night. No formal charges were placed against her, but the story leaked out that this was none other than the famous "Cat's-Eye Annie" whose sensational case in England 10 years earlier had been one of the greatest criminal trials ever held.

The newspapers dived into their archives and dug up the story, and the cables between Baltimore and London were hot with the demand for information from Inspector Drew, of Scotland Yard.

There wasn't so much to the story, I thought. Mrs. Weathersby, a prominent English society woman, had been found strangled to death, lying on the floor of her bedroom. Anna Deane, a perfectly respectable elderly woman, had been in her employ as a maid, and suspicion had been fastened on her when all other angles had been eliminated. Due to a slight defect in one eye, some enterprising reporter had coined the phrase "Cat's-Eye Annie."

The prosecution had made a valiant effort to prove that the servant had disliked her mistress and that a quarrel had preceded the murder. This contention falling through, however, it had been forced to fall back on the charge that the maid had been motivated by "homicidal lust"—which the defense, supported by medical testimony, had no trouble in disproving.

The Crown's case had failed, largely for lack of any direct testimony, and Cat's-Eye Annie, a lonely and forsaken old woman, had been given her freedom.

Under Observation

One significant thing, however, was that Inspector Drew had been convinced of her guilt and had issued a public statement to that effect.

How horrible, I thought, to have been twice mixed up in sordid crimes like these, especially if one were innocent! Where could she go after this? Who would want her?

For my own part, I didn't believe that Mrs. Deane, unless she were indeed crazy, had had any part in the Paige murder. Medical testimony would very likely set us right on that, as Anderson had already requested Dr. John R. Casey, the court psychiatrist, to make an examination the first thing the next morning.

Dr. Casey made his report in person—at a moment, luckily, when I chanced to be talking to the inspector.

He strolled into Anderson's office, and his fine old face, like a delicate cameo of carved ivory, held just a trace of sadness.

"I can't find anything wrong," he told us. "The woman at this moment is actually about half-crazy with worry and grief, but I can't find a thing resembling 'homicidal mania.' I'm keeping her under close observation and perhaps something may develop which may make me change my mind. But at this moment I have to give her a clean bill of health."

Alibi Checked

"Any chance you are wrong?" asked Anderson.

"Certainly," replied Dr. Casey easily. "Insanity is largely a matter of opinion, unless a person is a raving maniac. There is such a thing as intermittent insanity—what you newspaper people call a 'brain-storm.' Mrs. Deane might have committed this crime in a spasm of that nature and actually not recall it. I doubt that as much as 10 years could have elapsed between such spells, however.

"I'm going to suggest that you call in another alienist, Inspector. I suggest Dr. Harmon, of Hopkins, because he's generally on the opposite side of the fence from me. He's the likeliest man I can think of to give you a contrary opinion. I'll call him and arrange it, if you like."

"I'd appreciate it," answered Anderson.

"I thought that Mrs. Deane had an iron-clad alibi," I murmured.

"Yes and no," said the inspector. "Under ordinary circumstances it would pass, but now I am not so sure. I have my men out now checking up on it."

"Somewhere else at the time of the murder?" asked Dr. Casey with interest.

"Yes. It seems that she has a friend over at Towson—that's about three miles from the Paige estate. There are some little children there and Mrs. Deane offered to spend the night and take care of them while their parents went into Baltimore to the movies.

"She reached Mrs. Murphy's house around seven-thirty, and remained with the children until around ten-thirty. The oldest boy, a child about 13, is positive on that point and we can't shake him. Says she read to them and played games with them.

Doctors Agree

"When the Murphys returned home about 1 o'clock, Mrs. Deane was in bed sound asleep. She roused when they came in and spoke to them, so that's certainly a fact.

"The question now is: where was she from ten-thirty until one? The kid might have been mistaken about the hour, you know. And Mrs. Deane, who in spite of her age is a strong, vigorous woman, may have had time to walk from Towson to the Paige place and back again. Two hours and a half for six miles isn't so bad."

"But it was between eleven-thirty and midnight when Mrs. Cleveland left," I pointed out, "and Mrs. Paige was alive then. That would give Mrs. Deane only an hour and a half at the most to have committed the murder and to have walked back those three miles to Towson."

"That's the way it looks," agreed Anderson. "If Dr. Harmon's diagnosis agrees with that of Dr. Casey, I can't see that we have much against her—though, of course, I'm going to keep her in custody."

And Dr. Harmon's opinion, as a matter of fact, did agree with that of the court psychiatrist. He made his report that same day in the shape of a written statement, in which he declared in no uncertain terms that he was unable to discover any traces whatsoever of homicidal mania and that he believed the subject's present unfortunate mental condition was due entirely to the strain which she was undergoing.

And I, for one, was glad of it. I must confess to a certain feeling of weakness for Cat's-Eye Annie. Maybe it was plain ordinary sympathy.

Perhaps it was the intriguing lure of her name.

Synopsis

Murder was suspected when Sonia Paige, wife of socially prominent Randolph Paige, was found hanging to a chandelier in her home. Paige and Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, fail to give the police any clues. Kirk Judson, a shady private detective, is engaged by Paige when police begin their investigation. Robert Cleveland, prominent attorney, says that he was in love with Mrs. Paige and told her so when he visited her home with Mrs. Phelps, a neighbor, on the night of the murder. Paige admits to the police that he took a jewel owned by his wife to get money to cover stock market losses.

Now Go On

Vulture, Harbinger of Death, Constantly Hovers Over Devil's Island

10,000 Condemned To Live Life of Hopelessness

(This is the third chapter of Adventurer Sinclair's revealing story of the world-famous "Devil's Island," French prison).

By GORDON SINCLAIR
Chapter III

CAYENNE, French Guiana.—Over the whole of French Guiana the dark vulture of death broods and breeds. In the park, on the roof-tops, over the market square.

The capital city, Cayenne—where there is no Cayenne pepper—has a black mayor and council and, aside from convicts and officials, there are only 30 white men, women or children in the entire place.

The country is patrolled by black soldiers from Senegal. Black police sporting big black revolvers stalk the town. Black men run the bank and dark-skinned women try to flirt with you.

Of 20,000 people in the entire colony about half are convicts or ex-convicts condemned to a life of hopelessness through some evil deed.

It was the utter contempt of officials and the brooding scrutiny of the vultures that sent my spirits into a tailspin as the big airplane that had brought me from Florida roared off from Brazil and left me on a shark-surrounded barge out in a muddy river.

There was a motorboat there filled with white men. All but one were ex-convicts and I might as well break the thread of this yarn here to explain when a convict is not a convict.

What Is an Ex-Convict?

Any man in France or any French colony who gets five or more years in jail is banished to Devil's Island. There is a spot in the Atlantic called Devil's Island, but it's a dinky bit of jungle smaller than a turnip field and holding, just now, only six prisoners. But the whole of the colony, mainland and islands alike, is known to the world as Devil's Island.

When the prisoner has finished his five years at hard labor he must—if he lives, spend another five in the colony shifting for himself, trying as best he can to keep body and soul together. If his term is six years then he spends six scratching for his own living. This goes on up to eight years. If his term is eight years or longer he is forever condemned to this penal colony. Never again can he leave the place; never can he have a visitor come to see him. He is not supposed to even speak with strangers. But if he can find one he gets a job. If not, he starves and nobody cares.

The men who ran me to the mainland were all lifers in this sweaty fever and dysentery-infested swampland where the average lives only five years.

They have had 87 governors in 80 years, each one of which came out for a two-year term.

The one free man among them approached me.

"So, you come to see the beauties of French Guiana—so?"

"Are there any beauties?"

"You make the joke—yes? You are salesman perhaps? Or auditor, yes?"

I told him:

"Newspaperman. I've come to find out about the most famous prison in the world."

The man's mouth fell open. His face positively sagged. He went white as he whispered:

"But no. You must not. I warn you my friend. They will find out. You will be put among the condemned. So many things have been written. Terrible things. All lies. We have had one big black eye after another. They will discover you. Everyone here knows everyone else . . ."

I interrupted:

"They won't have to discover me. I will call at once on the governor. Why not?"

He backed away in terror, whining:

"You have come to an evil place. It is filled with Riff cutthroats from Sahara, murderers from Paris, pirates from the China coast. Perverts are here and men who drink blood . . ."

I smiled. I didn't feel like smiling but I smiled anyway. Nothing more was spoken.

Customs House Humor

One of the condemned men took my kit to the custom house and then they all vanished. A man in a white suit and a black revolver tossed my things on the counter.

Tippy the typewriter was at once seized and locked up. My passport was taken from me. Papers and clothes were strung about a dirty table.

Two men ordered me to put them back in the case.

Then, at high noon only an hour from the equator I was told to carry the bag up a hill.

An inspector up there was too busy. He said carry it down the hill again and see another man. So I did while dozens of great dark vultures cluttered up the road. The bag weighed 41 pounds and I was sweating from every pore.

The hill was a sort of reddish black. I went up. I came back. I went up again. All told I carried that bag in and out of six offices and next day did the same with the typewriter. Both were passed, but the passport was sent on to the governor.

The White Man's Burden

Free of red tape at last I swung up a narrow vile-smelling street backing on a canal. Two white men there were cleaning an out-house. I shuddered. Can any job be lower? But I'm here to report, not to grow sentimental and these were dishonored sons of France. France, the land of snappy styles, seductive perfumes, gorgeous salons, culture, refinement, science . . . But I couldn't help thinking that these emaciated sons of the tricolor were once chubby little boys laughing around a Christmas tree.

I pushed on. The tide had just ebbed from the canals and a hundred vultures were clawing and hissing over the carcass of a dead shark. The street led into a market place. Grotesque looking mammies in crimson, purple and golden-colored pirate costumes were buying eels, wild ducks and green oranges. On the fringe of the crowd, pathetically anxious to pick up a cent or two for carrying bundles, were more exiles. Regardless of age they all looked defeated, debauched and all but dead. Surely France has drained all the vengeance she needs from these men's veins. Surely somewhere, someday a word of kindness will fall their way.

But all they wanted now was a job. A job carrying bundles for a half cent. Just a half cent. That will keep life going another half minute anyhow. But there were a thousand men waiting.

Avenue of Liberty

I came up through more red streets to the Avenue of Liberty. Liberty! Boy, what a cruel joke. Five hotels had sprung up near there where there were none two years ago. I picked one by the eenie meenie minie moe route and went in to mumble my feeble French. The head man, an amiable fellow with apple red cheeks, showed me to a high board room which had two gaudy mirrors. There was a tap there and it dripped a reddish stream. Rust no doubt but it looked like blood.

I opened the windows, took five grains of quinine and went to bed. On tin roofs opposite a dozen vultures roosted. America and Germany have the eagle for defiance, Britain has the lion for courage, Canada, the beaver for industry, Devil's Island has the vulture, for what? Death perhaps. But death is too easy. It comes to us all. But the vulture means something worse . . . I've seen them pick men's eyes out . . . when I woke up there were 19 vultures. I felt awfully homesick.

One of the Original Signers

Bill, the telegrapher for the Universal News, brought in a petition just yesterday. The idea of the parchment entreaty was to legalize betting machines.

We didn't sign. The human bookies take it away fast enough now. And everybody knows a machine can do the work of a hundred men a thousand times quicker.

We're opposed to petitions anyway. We only signed one and signed it but once. It seems that it was brought over by an English messenger boy named Buttons.

The year was around 1898. At that time we were a schoolboy in Philadelphia. With a beard.

Thinking it over we can't quite hook Buttons up the front or the back with this deal. What business did he have bringing over a protest against the alleged English cruelty among the Boers?

But that's what it was. And two hundred thousand Philadelphia school midgets signed the accusing document protesting against the English lancers jabbing boat hooks into the aggressive Boers who were then knocking the stuffings out of the poor old lancers.

A million non-voting and non-participating names were enscribed on that scroll which weighed enough to stop the stars in their courses and the startled ibex in its tracks.

It did no good. In the papers we read that the lancing and the boat hooking were getting twice as bad and much more enthusiastic as skilled labor warmed to its work.

Twenty years later in another town a man dropped into the old New York Evening World and tried to sell us life insurance.

He was a former Boer soldier who had grabbed our name off the 1898 petition. From then on we decided that mass petitions were sucker lists.

Therefore, we didn't sign the protest for legalization of machine betting.

Twenty years from now we will be a pushover for insurance agents.

America's Greatest Patriots Warned of the Dangers of Unpreparedness

LET US lift up our eyes unto the hills from whence cometh our help.

In times of danger, of distracted counsels, of conflicting preoccupations, when our energies are wearied by exertions which abnormal conditions put upon them, it is well for us to emulate the wisdom of the Psalmist—and lift up our eyes to the great men of the past—men of patriotism and foresight—to those human summits in which our history is so rich.

Their words are preserved to us. Let us pore over them, take them to heart and keep them in mind as a call to duty—the vital, nay the primary, duty resting upon us of maintaining our country in a state of RATIONAL—and that means ADEQUATE—preparedness and defense.

The horrors of war—so graphically portrayed in the uncensored war photographs now appearing in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph—war's carnage and waste and its peril to our survival as a nation have at all times been clearly envisaged by the nation's founders and the great Americans who came after them.

THEY were lovers of peace, but they did not propose to brook injury. They were ready to meet force with force if necessary.

These were the words of Washington in his first message to Congress:

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

"The safety of the United States, under divine protection, ought to rest on the basis of systematic and solid arrangements, exposed as little as possible to the hazard of fortuitous circumstances."

In a subsequent message to Congress, the warning is repeated:

"I cannot recommend to your notice measures for the fulfillment of our duties to the rest of the world without again pressing upon you the necessity of placing ourselves in a condition of complete defense and of exacting from them the fulfillment of their duties towards us. The United States ought not to indulge a persuasion that, contrary to the order of human events, they will forever keep at a distance those painful appeals to arms with which the history of every other nation abounds. There is a rank due to the United States among nations which will be withheld, if not absolutely lost, by the reputation of weakness. If we desire to avoid insult we must be able to repel it; if we desire to secure peace it must be known that we are at all times ready for war."

IN A later message, Washington returned to the subject, saying:

"Will it not then be advisable to begin without delay to provide and lay up materials for the building and equipping of ships of war, and to proceed in the work by degrees in proportion as our resources shall render it practicable without inconvenience, so that a future war in Europe may not find our commerce in the same unprotected state in which it was found during the present?"

A picture that needs no caption to tell its story of heartache and suffering, the price of War, that came when the hopes of these women were interred in the graves of fathers, husbands, sons. Heartache such as this exceeds even the suffering of the soldier who dies heroically "in action." But where is the Glory in War? Where is the Recompense? What difference whether these women (noncombatants, War jeers) be on the side of friend or foe?

This photograph, supplied by International News Photograph Service, is another of the type from the UNCENSORED World War pictures from the collection of famous Floyd Gibbons—five more FULL PAGES of which the Sun-Telegraph will publish Sunday. Follow the daily Sun-Telegraph EVERY DAY (see Page One, this section) for another war picture series: "The War at Home."

John Adams, when President, discussing our relations with France, used these words:

"But in demonstrating by our conduct that we do not fear war in the necessary protection of our rights and honor, we should give no room to infer that we abandon the desire for peace. An efficient preparation for war can alone secure peace. We ought, without loss of time, to lay the foundations for that increase of our Navy to a size sufficient to guard our coasts and protect our trade."

THOMAS JEFFERSON spoke to the same effect:

"If war be forced upon us," said he, "in spite of our long and vain appeals to the justice of nations, rapid and vigorous movement at the outset will go far toward securing us in its course and issue, and toward throwing its burdens on those who render necessary the resort from reason to force."

A modern soldier and patriot, the late Gen. Leonard Wood, expressed the philosophy of preparedness in a sentence which might well serve as a national slogan.

"IT IS BETTER," said he, "TO BE READY FOR WAR AND NOT HAVE IT THAN TO HAVE WAR AND NOT BE READY FOR IT!"

And he reminds us that war is with us today, as it was with us yesterday, and has been a part of man's lot through all the years since history began.

"Peace leagues struggle to prevent it," said he, "and great alliances attempt to abate it."

But it will disappear, he reminds us, only when absolutely unselfish justice marks international relations; when trade is equitably shared among competing peoples; and when competition, greed, selfishness, race interest, prejudices and religious intolerance pass away.

These are stirring thoughts of great men! We must cherish them! We must act upon them!

THEY ARE A CHART OF NATIONAL SAFETY!

In next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph another five-page installment of UNCENSORED World War pictures will be published.

These pictures should bring home to every American who sees them the imperative necessity for heeding the advice and the warnings of our great leaders of the past.

We must do as they would have us do—keep foreign wars out of America, and keep America out of foreign wars.

A Woman as Executive

Mrs. Edgar J. Kaufmann Is Elected President Of Montefiore Hospital

Women are steadily coming to the front in business and in the management of large enterprises.

The Chamber of Commerce took recognition of this a few days ago by admitting women to membership in violation of all custom and tradition.

And now we have another breaking of precedent in the election of Mrs. Edgar J. Kaufmann as president of the Montefiore Hospital.

The care of the sick is woman's work, of course, but a great deal more is involved in the presidency of a large hospital. There are financial problems to be solved, questions of administration to be answered. Heretofore the opinion has generally been that it took a successful business or professional man of large affairs to fill such a position satisfactorily.

Mrs. Kaufmann, we have no doubt, will perform the duties of the office as competently as any man. She has proved by her charitable activities—by her work, for example, as president of the Emma Farm Association, a child welfare organization, that she is a born executive.

Jail for Racketeers

Judge Patterson Sets a Good Example by Sentencing Lottery Operators to Prison

Hurrah for Judge Frank P. Patterson!

He has refused to treat racketeering as a pardonable peccadillo.

Ignoring a plea for parole, he has sentenced eight operators of a "numbers" lottery to serve jail terms of from 30 days to four months.

Such a lesson was badly needed by these gentry, who have been accustomed to operate without molestation, or on payment of a fine, which they no doubt regarded as more or less of a license fee.

Imprisonment is somewhat of a novelty as a punishment for racketeering, but a novelty that was sorely needed. We hope the other judges will follow Judge Patterson's example, and that the Police Court magistrates will hold racketeers for the grand jury hereafter, as the law requires.

No less impressive than Judge Patterson's sentence was his stern warning that the vending of political power in connection with racketeering will not be tolerated.

It was a needed word, well spoken.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Thoughts while strolling: Do those fellows have to reply "And you?" when you ask how they are? Earl Carroll's recessional note in hair. Charles G. Norris and Lawrence Tibbett look alike. Whatever became of Welsbach mantles? No one surpasses O. Henry for the surprise ending.

Not so many platinum blondes. Nobody can look so frilly as Cissie Loftus. Or so rapt as Julia Hoyt. If there's a more beautiful brunette than Mrs. Fred Peabody I haven't seen her. Jules Glaenzer's collars are getting tighter. Those stairsteps against the sky on Central Park South.

One word description of Montague Love—chesty. Now they say a dog's cold nose is not indicative of health. How self-effacing the former Mrs. Jimmy Walker has become. Wonder if Albert Wiggins has trouble sleeping. Those motorists who lift a hood as though they expected to find a wild-cat.

With a shepherdess crook, Antoinette Perry could be a figure from Watteau. Wasn't Mrs. Nicholas Longworth first to discard the corset?

One of my favorite people—McClelland Barclay. Theodor, the head waiter, is the only person I ever saw who looked swell in a morning coat with ledger-ruled trousers. Everybody else suggests a floor walker. There I go. Just a fuss-cat, argle-bargling over minutiae!

The long-waited Ritz bar has arrived with an entrance on Madison avenue and almost a replica of that of the equally famous Paris Ritz. There is the satin-paneled and windowless ladies' room with men's bar opposite and the same freedom of welcoming dogs is maintained. Even the old Place Vendome exiles now in New York are frequent droppers-in. Frank, so long directeur of the Paris establishment, has been delayed by an old enemy, gout, but will arrive before spring, tra la!

I hear the celebrated rue Cambon sausages along with the well known potato chips are featured in the Ritz cocktail rooms and the most popular tipple is called The Tropical, an iced and highly potent blending of cointreau and anisette. Incidentally the most popular all around cocktails of the moment everywhere is the sturdy Side Car. It was invented by Tippy Gray, world wanderer.

A book dealer relates the story of Dorothy Parker inquiring for a single volume combining works of Keats and Shelley. The young clerk, recognizing Miss Parker, replied they had none in stock but he had one at home. She asked if he might sell it. And right off he pulled this one: "I'm willing to Shelley it but not for Keats." Fun in a book shop!

The critical concensus is decidedly that Henry Hull, portraying a low dreg of southern poor white, has given the outstanding performance of the season. He is cast as a shifty figure out of tobacco road of the Hook Worm Belt, a drawling question mark against even pole-cat decencies. No stage vignette of human degradation has ever offered such a rip tide of stark realism.

It's a tribute to Mr. Hull's masterly performance that meeting him in a restaurant, all glossy in evening clothes after his performance, my bow was reserved. So soon out of character, I still regarded him with faint loathing.

There was a similar, although coquettish illusion, that Billie Burke created in her golden days at the Empire. The late Alan Dale wrote in a Sunday critique that in meeting Miss Burke for the first time in her hotel suite he somehow expected her to hop up on the arm of his chair.

A dawn romanticist sends this post-carded description of a New York sun-rise: "It is now faintly light. In the east a lavender flush low in the sky and the sun in smoldering short-lived pinkness. The church crosses are in golden glint. Street lights fade out. The metropolis has tossed off its night cloak. Far away are the rumble of wheels and the creak of pulleys. Along the curbs prowling cats are putting a morning shine to their faces. Manhattan stands stripped like a gallant fighter about to enter the ring. And, boy, have I got the hiccups!"

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

A Man's Vows

In these days, a bride feels that she is lucky if a man's honeymoon vows last as long as his New Year's resolutions.

Next to last night's newspaper or last week's newsreel, nothing on earth is so easily forgotten as a debt—or a self-effacing husband.

The habit of fifteen-years of law-breaking is hard to overcome. The average man still looks a little sheepish and tries to whisper confidentially to the waiter, when he orders a perfectly legal drink in a perfectly respectable restaurant.

The only thing more futile than a woman's search for her lost youth in a beauty shop is a man's search for his in a young girl's flattery.

Girls still continue to read all the advice on how to "choose" a husband, even though the "choice" in the average woman's life is about as limited as that in a table d'hote menu.

Men aren't perfect, love isn't perfect, women aren't perfect, and marriage is full of pitfalls and disillusionments; but if you are going to dodge them all, why not just cut out LIVING and spare yourself the effort?

A man doesn't have to be a complete reactionary in order to cling to the old masculine theory that the fragrance of a boiling dinner or a broiled steak is a sweeter greeting for a tired husband than the merry laughter of the departing bridge-hounds and a cold snack out of the ice-box.

* * *

The average man is not as nervous, impatient and highly-strung as a woman—but then, he is not married to anything as irritating and uncertain as a MAN!

* * *

The average woman spends at least one-quarter of her life in listening to masculine "advice"—and pretending to take it.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Cavalier: A Portrait

Perhaps we bore you, Cavalier,
You seem so alien to us here,
As from the wall with somble gaze
You frown upon our futile days.
When you were in the flesh, ah, then
You fought and drank and fought again!
The women, too, with dancing feet
Had eyes more bright and lips more sweet
Than these slim girls of our today;
Your loves were far more bold, more gay.
And when one passed a wind-tossed leaf,
Another soon assuaged your grief.
No wonder that you look askance
Upon our maids with cold, veiled glance.
Your very cloak a symbol seems
Of times as colorful as dreams;
And through its crimson draperies
Bespeaks more vivid hours than these.
For ways so savorless and queer
We ask your pardon, Cavalier!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Do They Sneer?

She's furious. Last night as she swept, lace-gowned, from her car to the theater lobby, a ragged man sneered at her—mumbled a vile name.

"It has destroyed the last shred of my patience with the so-called 'underdog,'" she storms.

"I was always in sympathy with the working classes, because I was one of them—and still am. The car, which aroused that tramp's anger, I paid for myself, every dollar of it. I earned the dress I was wearing, and the ticket that took me into that show.

"I've earned these things by years of drudgery, discipline and sacrifice, such as that loafer would never have endured. Every line of his weak face and shambling body told his story. But just because I love the fine things of life, and have been willing to work for them he and his kind treat me like a criminal.

"And it's happening everywhere. In spite of our better times and tremendous effort to give everyone a better deal, there has never been so much class hatred. You hear it on all sides—from whining and grumbling to open threats. And nine times out of ten, the unfortunate people who are threatened are workers, like themselves.

"Where is the justice in that? And how can you openly sympathize—as you do—with the attitude of such people?"

How can I sympathize with them? Because once I was one of them, my dear. Once I, too, stood in the shadows, ragged and desperate, and watched the lace-gowned fortunates sweep by—and the bitterness that filled that man's heart last night filled mine.

I didn't call names, as he did. I didn't threaten. But that was due to no saintliness in me. It was simply due to the fact that life gave me a healthier body and viewpoint than it gave him. And so, bitter though I was, I saw the reason for it all.

I saw that the thing that put me in the shadows and them in the light wasn't the work of any one person. IT WAS A CONSEQUENCE OF A SYSTEM. SOME COULD PROFIT BY THAT SYSTEM—SOME COULDN'T.

You, for example, have profited by it. I have profited by it now—when it's too late to save the thing I loved best on earth. And you think we're being rewarded for our individual efforts. But we're not!

WE'RE SITTING PRETTY BECAUSE THINGS BROKE RIGHT FOR US—AND BECAUSE OUR EFFORTS CLICKED WITH THE STATUS QUO.

Millions of others worked hard as we did, sacrificed greatly, endured as bravely—were unable to make the grade. It wasn't their fault. They were doomed to failure by birth, environment or tragic circumstances. The cards were stacked against them.

Why did that man sneer? That's why. He wasn't sneering at you, as an individual.

HE WAS SNEERING AT A SYSTEM WHICH IMPOSES SUCH INJUSTICE AS THAT.

Democracy? It's a noble theory—and some day, with God's help, we'll achieve it. But the simple truth is, we haven't achieved it. We haven't even sincerely tried to achieve it yet.

All men are NOT "born equal" in America, or given an equal chance after they are born. This is NOT the "land of the free and the home of the brave." It is the home of the privileged—and the land of frantic, bewildered millions who must take the leavings.

That isn't because America is a bad country. America, I profoundly believe, is the greatest country on earth—the country with the finest vision. And it's making the most sane and sincere effort to express that vision.

But Americans, like all other human beings, are still 75 per cent savages—with far more respect for jungle mumbo-jumbo than for the Golden Rule.

So don't be angry when they sneer from out of the shadows.

COMMISERATE YOURSELF, RATHER, BECAUSE IN A LAND OF SUNSHINE, SOME MUST LIVE IN SHADOWS!

AND USE THE ENERGY WHICH MADE YOU AN INDIVIDUAL SUCCESS INTO WIPING OUT THE SHADOWS FOR THOSE WHO WEREN'T SO FORTUNATE!

Leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.
